

The Tribune.

VOL. III.

DESERONTO, ONT. FRIDAY, JAN. 1, 1886.

NO. 16.

THE TRIBUNE,

Published every Friday Morning.

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO. (LIMITED).

Publishers and Proprietors.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.—One copy, $1.00 per year
0 cents per six months. Strictly in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE	1 YEAR.	6 mos.	3 mos.
Column.....	$20.00	$20.00	$18.00
Half Column.....	18.00	18.00	17.00
Quarter Column.....	12.00	12.00	7.00
One-eighth Column.....	5.00	3.00	2.00
Business Cards, (less than one page).....	4.00	2.50

"Wants, Lost, Found, Strayed, etc. 25 cents each insertion; on a contract at the rate of 75 cents per month.

Casual advertisements 5 cents per line first insertion; each subsequent insertion 1 cent per line.

communications should be addressed to

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO., (LIMITED), Deseronto, Ont.

MARRIAGE LICENCES.

T. G. FILE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENCES, 3 Deseronto Ontario.

COAL.

FOR HOUSE USE OR BLACKSMITH SHOPS, AT lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

SALT.

BY CAR LOAD, BARREL, OR IN BULK, AMERICAN or Canadian, at lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

WATER LIME.

WATER LIME, PORTLAND CEMENT, AND Plaster of Paris for sale, cheap, and full directions given how to use successfully. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN HOTEL.

JOHNSON & O'NARIO STS., KINGSTON. This house has been refurbished and relisted throughout. Charges moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.

NOTICE.

INSURANCE ON FARM OR VILLAGE PROPERTY IN low rates from all Stock Companies—the Royal Insurance Company and Commercial Union of England, Western, and British American of Toronto.

THE RATHBUN CO.

Agents.

O'CONNOR HOUSE.

THIS HOTEL IS ELEGANTLY FURNISHED throughout, in the latest styles. Large comfortable rooms, Bedchambers, and all accommodation and comfort for guests. The Bar is supplied with best imported and domestic Liquors and Cigars. Charges moderate. First-class ruling in connection. Good Yard and stables attached.

F. O'CONNOR, Prop't., Deseronto Ont.

QUEEN'S HOTEL.

OPPOSITE CITY HALL, BELLEVILLE, ONT. First-class hotel connecting with all trains. Street cars pass the door every fifteen minutes.

2.4. SIBBITT & CO., Proprietors

Agents.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Watson Kirk of the Village of Deseronto has pursuant to the provisions of Ontario Statute 45 Victoria, Chapter 26, made an application for a Notary Public to be received and personal to Joseph Nadeau, a resident of the City of Montreal in the Province of Quebec, accountant for the general benefit of the creditors of the said Charles Watson Kirk.

D. H. PRESTON,
Solicitor for the said Trustee.

Dated this 19th day of November, 1885.

FIRE INSURANCE!

We beg to advise those desiring Insurance that we are Agents for

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, OF ENGLAND;

THE COMMERCIAL UNION INSURANCE COMPANY, OF LONDON;

THE WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY, OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN INSURANCE CO., OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Will who will write Policies as low as any other Stock Company in the Dominion.

The standing of these Companies is such that all insurance companies of lots the settlement will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find to their interest to insure Record of all Buildings and Notices sent insure before completion of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY, 6-L Deseronto, Ont.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE

SHAREHOLDERS of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Ltd., will be held at the Rathbun Company's office at Deseronto, on Tuesday, the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, evening, for receiving the report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

F. S. RATHBUN,
Secretary.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

of the Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's office at Deseronto, on Tuesday, the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, afternoon, for the election of Directors and other business.

Deseronto, Ont. S. RUSSELL,
Secy-Treas.

*Stop only when Passengers sit at or for.

G. C. CARTER, J. B. SHERWOOD, E. W. RATHBUN, Gen. Mgr. Superintendent Gen. Mgr.

WANTED—A good competent girl to do general housework.

Apply to
MRS. J. M. POITRAS.

HOUSE FOR SALE.

A comfortable house is offered for sale on Second Street, Village of Deseronto. For particulars apply to

JAMES ALLEN,
Deseronto, Ont.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

PARTIES WISHING TO HAVE LETTERS POSTED after hours will please leave them at Egar's Drug Store, Main St. Deseronto.

STOVES FOR SALE.

3. LATEST PATTERN BASE BURNER Coal Stoves for sale very cheap.

Apply to H. C. JEFFERS,
The Rathbun Company.

11-15

BONES

WANTED AT THE CHEMICAL WORKS. The market price will be paid for same.

E. C. FRENCH.

FOR SERVICE.

A THOROUGHBED SUPPOL BOAR Took 1st Prize at the Midland Fair, Kingwood, and at the leading Eastern Shows and County Fairs.

This bird... $1.00 to be paid at time of service.

MICHAEL KENNEDY.

11 Lot 22, 4th con. Tyndinage

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

THE UNDERSIGNED HAS FOR SALE Five Milch Cows all due to calve before the 15th of April and bred to a Durham Bull (Registered) which he will exchange for good Store Cattle 3 years old.

FRANK SOLMES,

Somerville,

P. E. County.

E. HARRISON.

350 Front Street, Belleville,

In Stock and makes to order on short notice all classes of Account Books. General Book binding, from the Plainest Library Style to the best Morocco and Calf, with gilt or Marble edge. Paper ruling, Map Mounting, Vanishing, Music Binding, Picture Framing. Improved Milk and Cheese Factory Books. Mercantile Books and intricate ruling a specialty. Prices close.

9.14

NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Watson Kirk of the Village of Deseronto has pursuant to the provisions of Ontario Statute 45 Victoria, Chapter 26, made an application for a Notary Public to be received and personal to Joseph Nadeau, a resident of the City of Montreal in the Province of Quebec, accountant for the general benefit of the creditors of the said Charles Watson Kirk.

D. H. PRESTON,

Solicitor for the said Trustee.

Dated this 19th day of November, 1885.

FIRE INSURANCE!

We beg to advise those desiring Insurance that we are Agents for

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, OF ENGLAND;

THE COMMERCIAL UNION INSURANCE COMPANY, OF LONDON;

THE WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY, OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN INSURANCE CO., OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Will who will write Policies as low as any other Stock Company in the Dominion.

The standing of these Companies is such that all insurance companies of lots the settlement will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find to their interest to insure

Record of all Buildings and Notices sent insure before completion of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY, 6-L Deseronto, Ont.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE

SHAREHOLDERS of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Ltd., will be held at the Rathbun Company's office at Deseronto, on Tuesday, the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, evening, for receiving the report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

F. S. RATHBUN,
Secretary.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

of the Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's office at Deseronto, on Tuesday, the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, afternoon, for the election of Directors and other business.

Deseronto, Ont. S. RUSSELL,
Secy-Treas.

NEW YEAR WISHES.

What shall I wish thee?

Treasures of earth?

Plants in the springtime?

Flowers on the pathway?

Skies ever clear?

Would this ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

What shall I wish thee?

What shall I wish thee?

What can be found?

Bringing the sun?

All the round?

Where is the treasure?

Lasting and dear?

That shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

What shall I wish thee?

Where is the wealth?

What is the cost?

What is the value?

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is perfect;

Casting out fear;

These shall ensure thee?

A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,

Walking in sunshine;

Hope that abounds;

Love that is

THE WEDDING BELLS;

OR,
TELLING HER FORTUNE.

By the Author of "PROVED OR NOT PROVED," ETC.

CHAPTER X.

RICHARD BURKE'S STORY.

"I have said that in what I am going to tell there is much toadden and pain you." Dick began, in a low voice; "but I want you, while you listen to the short story, to remember always that if Grant Ellison had known that his brother had found such a beloved and accomplished daughter in the Fifth his misery would have been infinitely less great. When he—spoke of her," he added, hesitatingly, "it was always being alone and childless. He did not know she had found a better child and a sweater companion than he could ever have had."

"As if I could tell her, much as I love her, what he was!" said Clara, sadly.

"His own life was miserable and desolate to a degree unusual even in the wild, rough life in the bush. He had been brought up in such luxury and extravagance, that he was totally unfit for the hardships he was forced to associate with those he was forced to associate with nearly all of them beneath him in station and congenital society."

"But he had his wife?" Clara said, softly.

"His wife!"—and a deep flush stained the speaker's pale face for a moment—"his wife was not with him."

"How was that?" said Clara, quickly.

"She had left him at Melbourne with another man, a rich sheep

farmer, but I will not insult your ears by speaking of her," he continued, as Clara sank back in her chair very pale and trembling. "She was utterly worthless, and before he had known her six months his miserable domestic life had fully explained his deceit and disloyalty."

"The poor fellow—poor fellow!"

"Do you pity him?" Mr. Burke said, grimly.

"Surely, he deserved his fate, hard as it was," said Clara, quickly.

"She had left him at Melbourne with another man, a rich sheep

farmer, but I will not insult your ears by speaking of her," he continued, as Clara sank back in her chair very pale and trembling. "She was utterly worthless, and before he had known her six months his miserable domestic life had fully explained his deceit and disloyalty."

"Dear mother! Clara said, softly.

"She went out into the whistling wind, and for an hour they sat talking over the future, while this misery not to add to his pain. His father was away, as you are aware, so that no one knew of that interview. He told her his plans, and what he intended to do, and she understood the remark. She had given him straight in the face, "I am not going to deny that he had sacrificed for her his name, his prospects, his future; but he had given up all, even his honor, for her, and he would have given his life willingly to save her a pang, and the repaid his gifts by the basest treachery; a woman was ever capable of that!"

He spoke with a sudden passion, which showed that although she had been deeply grieved, she had not been able to restrain her tears.

"How could she—how could she?"

Clara said, pitifully. "when he loved her!"

"At least she had nothing to reproach him with," Mr. Burke continued, stringing with his agitation. "He had given her his all, and he would have worked with all his might so that she should lack nothing, although he knew that she had no love for him—that she was untrue to him, and had sacrificed for her his name, his prospects, his future; but he had given up all, even his honor, for her, and he would have given his life willingly to save her a pang, and the repaid his gifts by the basest treachery; a woman was ever capable of that!"

He spoke with a sudden passion, which showed that although she had been deeply grieved, she had not been able to restrain her tears.

"How could she—how could she?"

Clara said, pitifully. "when he loved her!"

"The news almost killed him," continued Mr. Burke in a moment, while Clara's tears fell fast. "It brought him to death's door, and for months he who had gloried in his strength was reduced to the most pitiable weakness: he could not move a limb, he could scarcely speak, he lay prostrate, exhausted, and during all that time the rough and kindly men about the station treated him with a tenderness of which I cannot speak."

"Was it then you knew him?" Clara said, looking up at him for a moment, although the tears in her sweet eyes made his face seem blurred and indistinct."

Mr. Burke hesitated a little.

"I know him then," he answered quietly, in a low voice. "He recovered at last, but which does not come to the miser-able, I think; it did not come to him then, for he passed through many years of misery after that."

"Were you with him when he died?"

No," he answered, slowly.

"Do you know—can tell me?"

Clara began, but he interrupted her gently.

"There is no need to ask more, my child," he said. "I have told you all, and more than all, you need know, and the time of which I speak was a time of misery to myself not inferior to his, and it urged me to go back to him."

"Forgive me," Clara said, hurriedly.

"Forgive me," Clara said, hurriedly.

"One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

"You do not despise me now, do you?"

You know why I deceived you, and you forgive the deception?"

"I have been doing honor to your talents as a raconteur, and my red eyes would tell tales; besides I am not in humor for dancing now," she added, breathlessly.

"I am very grieved for you," he said, gently, taking her hand in his.

"Oh! no, please do not think so. One or two things you have said have made me very happy," she said, confusedly.

AN UNEXPLAINED MYSTERY.

A TALE OF CANADIAN BACKWOODS LIFE.

A dilapidated, old and ruined dwelling stood at Lewis was, until a short time ago, surrounded by a few ancient log dwellings more dilapidated than it. It was the home of Mr. Sampson, who was the head of a small mill situated on the Lewis River in Ontario. If those old buildings had not been used for many years; and when I last saw them they had reached an advanced stage of decay. The roof, which once paraded their log sides, had long ago dropped away; the roof had in many instances fallen in; and the windows, now covered with green wreaths of ivy, were broken. But her husband, city-born as he had been, was resolved to persevere in his determination to remain buried in the wilderness, and the wife who agreed to submit, far, to her husband's will.

With the light of a few afternoons before us, who knew that Mrs. Sampson was prompted in this by the dictates of self-preservation alone? It was only by reason of her husband's absence that she had been allowed to remain with him. But her husband, city-born as he had been, was resolved to persevere in his determination to remain buried in the wilderness, and the wife who agreed to submit, far, to her husband's will.

In short, the whole locality possessed an exceedingly depressing and repulsive aspect, which was considerably intensified by the presence of a number of Indians, whose skins of cedar and maple, from whose depths issued the lively waters of a rushing stream, which flowed across the clearing with a calm, imperturbable course, until, coming in contact with the machinery, they were dashed into a wild spray of foam.

A breeding melancholy had taken possession of the deserted place, and claimed it for its own. This decaying collection of ruined mills and old log huts was called Millhouse, and the old frontier town of the thriving little settlement in origin was almost precisely like half the villages and towns in this country; its location was good, and indeed there was no reason, in the ordinary course of circumstances, why Millhouse should not have prospered, as it has done, with some of its contemporaries. But this little settlement was not destined, for any such future; its history was to be short and calamitous, ending in desolation and decay.

The present writer was naturally interested in these old ruins, particularly as he, almost from early boyhood, had heard vague hints from several old wine-skins who called themselves the first settlers, of a certain uncanny event in connection with their history, which had hitherto remained out of sight of the historian's records; the results of which, gleaned with care from many diverse sources, he thinks curious enough to present to the public.

Forty years ago this Christmas, or thereabouts, James Sampson and his wife Matilda, came to Millhouse from London. A few years previous to their arrival, the country had been a little land by the side of a small stream in the midst of a dreary swamp, and built himself a log house, which he left a few months afterwards, driven away it is said, by the loneliness and desolation of the place. Mr. and Mrs. Sampson took temporary possession of. Being a man of some means, Mr. Sampson immediately purchased a considerable tract of land surrounding the clearing and set about building a large saw-mill and a number of log houses for the use of his retainers.

These completed, he energetically proceeded to provide lumber needed by the rapidly arriving settlers, to build their houses, on the road some miles away, known as the "old London road." He prospered at this business exceedingly. The mill was ready and ever increasing work for all his skill and energy. A few years went swiftly past, and still the thrifty mill found his busy mill, and cash (in kind) flowing rapidly. In any one passing through Millhouse in those days, and noting how every wealthier settler seemed to hesitate to believe that a few more years and all would become silent again as before the advent of the first settler. Superstition and crime are most potent factors in retarding the healthy growth of a community, and Millhouse was destined to know nothing of either. In those early days, however, could be heard the sharp whirr of the steel saw, the roar of the mill-stream, the quick strokes of the woodman's axe, the commanding sounds of a multitude of men unloading logs, the lumber, and the thousand and one things incident to a settler's life in a new country.

Mr. Sampson had built his mill nearly in the centre of a clearing of about fifteen acres in extent, and surrounding it at short intervals he had also built about twenty log houses, to accommodate his men and their families. His own house was probably like any one of these, but in size: it was as large as any two of the others in the settlement. All the houses had little garden plots of perhaps a quarter of an acre in extent, surrounding the clearing, though the tall firs, completely by themselves but furnishing very necessary protection to the poultry, pigs, and cows from the wolves and bears of the wilderness. The river which supplied the mighty power to the mill, emerged from the Cataract, the right bank, running through the centre of the clearing in an almost straight course, and re-entered the swamp again at the extreme left. On one side of the mill was a great heap of sawdust cut from enormous white pine trees. On another side, a few feet away, stood a tiny saw-mill, lumber awaiting transportation to the London Road. Scattered here and there over the clearing were rude sledges used for hauling lumber and logs in winter, and heavily wagoned wagons in summer. Millhouse was typical backwoods settlement, of which there were, at that time, scores throughout Ontario.

This year Millhouse, several years after the arrival of the Sampson family, the owners seemed well content with what had been accomplished. They had an income from every source of generation by miles and miles of lonely forest, he had lived those years in blessed tranquility, and he often said in the hearing of his mill hands that he was hardly glad to leave. So was not his wife, Mrs. Sampson. She was a woman of an entirely different mental disposition from her husband. When he was reserved and quiet, she was lively and sometimes even boisterous; where he was refined and affectionate, she was cold and calculating; where he was modest and courteous, she was proud. In short the couple had very little in common, and it was a very fortunate coincidence that the house was deserted, and Mrs. Sampson pointed to a guilty complicity of the wife and the stranger, but suspicion was not necessarily fact, and the pair, if they were guilty, had covered their tracks so well that it was available. Time, money, and opportunity as these, and the settling generally referred to their associations. Mr. Brooke, as foreman of the workmen of the mill, assumed charge of before the master, and the master with it, was known what had become of Mrs. Sampson.

The tragedy continued as a matter of course, the all-absorbing topic in the settlement. The main house had been left, and not one of them within sight. Dick Hart, notwithstanding, ever cared to venture to the gloomy recesses under the upper floor where the murderer might have sought shelter. The sun was too oppressive. The dim uncertain rays of light which struggled feebly through the interstices of the logs and clap-boards, were just dim enough to shed an uncanny glamour over the scene. The water of the stream, which had railed race, interrupted the feeling of dread which every one felt the moment the cheerful day light above was left behind. "I trap down the approach door," he said.

"It is 10 o'clock," he said. "On Christmas evening, several months after the occurrence of the tragedy, Mr. Brooke, the foreman, his wife and family, and a number of his hands, including the respectable Dick Hart, were gathered after supper around the immense open fire place, in which great logs of wood roared and flamed and sent out volumes of genial warmth and light throughout the spacious apartment, which served the double purpose of living and dining room to Mr. Brooke and his wife.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I wonder why this feeling has arisen?" said Mr. Peters, the guest of the place, the story at the time, that he saw this stranger, who was as ill-favoured as looks could be, being ended with a terrible curse, and never reflected the slightest opportunity to obtain a clue to the famous hidden mystery, if mystery there was. But Mr. Sampson's secret died with him, and the secret itself, and guesses and surmises proved a waste of valuable time.

At last, however, an event occurred which excited the settlers considerably, and which, it is said, was the cause of the expense of Mr. Sampson. A strange guest to the settlement hung about the place for weeks, appearing at irregular intervals, from nobody knew where, and departing just as mysteriously. He always carried with him a bag containing a number of small articles, which he sold at a trifling price. At first, the guests of the place, of whom there were many, paid no attention to him, but as he was seen to be a man of some means, and had been seen to pass through the village, it was natural that he should be noticed.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

When she reached her vantage point, she found to her surprise that Mrs. Sampson was gone, but the stranger was still there with a mocking smile on his lips and his face directed toward the dwelling of the Sampsons. Mrs. Peters followed him, and the house approached from the direction of the mill.

The stranger, evidently hearing them, looked surprised and apprehensive, glanced this way and that, and finding that he could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

"Do you think Mrs. Sampson shared her husband's fate?" inquired Mr. Brooke of her.

"No," said Dick Hart, as if he had been personally appealed to. "No; you can depend upon it wherever that look-needed stranger has gone Matilda and her husband are far away."

"I don't think he got much money," said Mr. Sampson, removing his pipe from his mouth with a jerk. "Who knows but that follow may be a thousand miles off by this time. I believe he got 'em enough from Sampson to carry him to China."

"I don't think he got much money," said Dick Hart, "for I've heard Mrs. Sampson say that the old man always hid his money somewhere and never carried much around with him."

"Do you think Mrs. Sampson shared her husband's fate?" inquired Mr. Brooke of her.

"No," said Dick Hart, as if he had been personally appealed to. "No; you can depend upon it wherever that look-needed stranger has gone Matilda and her husband are far away."

"I don't think he got much money," said Mr. Sampson, removing his pipe from his mouth with a jerk. "Who knows but that follow may be a thousand miles off by this time. I believe he got 'em enough from Sampson to carry him to China."

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

The stranger turned away with a derisive laugh, and as he strode off Mrs. Peters heard him say:

"Hunting! You've had your hunting! Sample me, I want to have mine if I have to follow you to the pit!"

entreated Peters to tell them the particulars of some such occurrence as he had mentioned.

Peters, after hemming and hawing for a little while, finally told his story. "Time, money, and opportunity as these, and the setting generally referred to their associations. Mr. Brooke, as foreman of the workmen of the mill, assumed charge of before the master, and the master with it, was known what had become of Mrs. Sampson.

The tragedy continued as a matter of course, the all-absorbing topic in the settlement. The main house had been left, and not one of them within sight. Dick Hart, notwithstanding, ever cared to venture to the gloomy recesses under the upper floor where the murderer might have sought shelter. The sun was too oppressive. The dim uncertain rays of light which struggled feebly through the interstices of the logs and clap-boards, were just dim enough to shed an uncanny glamour over the scene. The water of the stream, which had railed race, interrupted the feeling of dread which every one felt the moment the cheerful day light above was left behind. "I trap down the approach door," he said.

"It is 10 o'clock," he said.

"On Christmas evening, several months after the occurrence of the tragedy, Mr. Brooke, the foreman, his wife and family, and a number of his hands, including the respectable Dick Hart, were gathered after supper around the immense open fire place, in which great logs of wood roared and flamed and sent out volumes of genial warmth and light throughout the spacious apartment, which served the double purpose of living and dining room to Mr. Brooke and his wife.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

It had been snowing heavily all day, and now as the night had settled down the storm was greatly increased, the wind driving over the rocky and grassless fields, and cutting in bitter and well-sustained gusts against the staunch log house, rattling the windows as if it would shake them off their frames, and roaring sellers down the chimney. Every one sat in silence, and a general air of sombre thought pervaded the room.

"I think it very strange," Mr. Brooke began, "that the authorities have yet made no headway in tracing in that direction who this person is, or where he comes from. He is a poor-looking fellow, with a haggard face, and a pair of strong jaws, thin, hard grey eyes, a hideously disengaging look, and a crooked cheek, earnest conversation with Mrs. Sampson for over two hours behind the mill."

"He curiously prodded at my eye, and I could not get out of sight, drew himself to one end of the house, making a circuit of the room to the opposite window, and tension being to get behind a dump of bushes a short distance from where the pair were standing, and over hear what was being said.

FARM.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS.

A large proportion of the most successful bee-keepers in the United States are minors. Several rovers of the established church in England give instructions verbi gratia THE TAN.

Many pronounces that in Tennessee have resolved to abandon the business, owing to the want of a dog law, asserting that 300,000 dogs cannot be maintained against 500,000 dogs.

Hogs differ as much as other animals in their ability to take on fat. Thirty young hogs of improved breeds will gain much faster on the same amount of food, than old and fat animals which belong to no repute.

It is claimed that the sugar beet in California does not exhaust the soil. A beet farmer reports raising his ground from fourteen to twenty-nine tons per acre in four years, plantings on the same ground each year without fertilizers.

The Roosevelt Sugar Beet is the big thousand-acre farms of the West, and says that in almost every case these farms have really bankrupted most of the rich men who tried to run them, but who had to have their farms taken over by the government.

The experiment of milking cows three times a day was tried at the Iowa Agricultural College, and the average daily gain of the herd was four pounds, or half enough to pay for the extra trials and labor. The result is not considered sufficient to pay for the labor and expense; even when cows yielding over twenty quarts daily are used.

The only advantage is that the cows will have to be kept in the barnyard all winter, thereby effecting a saving of round.

A London paper claims that "there is no better way of securing a heavy crop of peaches and nectarines than by putting a colony of bees in the house when the trees are in blossom. The English grow peaches in the orchards here."

A correspondent hints that the Stockmen, is the too common one of feeding on the ground. Go where you will and you will find farmers feeding their sheep on the ground in the worst weather that ever storm comes along, out of consideration for the dumb animals, but as a matter of economy, troughs should be constructed in which to place the feed.

Prof. Cook, in his paper on Economic Entomology, says the reason why imported insects are for a time more destructive than native species is in the fact that they have fewer parasites, and the idea occurred to me that the figure was possibly my brother Adam come home from sea. I put out my hand and touched the figure on the shoulder, before I knew scarcely what I was doing, and it moved. The figure turned itself towards me and raised its hand, and I instantly saw that it was really my brother.

"It was Adam but, indeed, greatly changed from the Adam who left us so long ago. He was in a frightful manner, and his hair seemed to be wet and all matted together; and there was a great cut on the temple from which blood was still oozing. It was an awful, painful sight that I saw here in the parlor at night."

"I could not bear to look at it, and buried my face with a shudder, among the bad clothes. When I recovered sufficient courage to confront my ghastly bed fellow, I found the figure had arisen from the bed and was standing by the window of the room, or had sunk through the floor. Then I got up and searched the room but nothing was there. If any of you, I think, had seen what I saw that night you would never doubt but that the dead can, and sometimes do, come back from the grave."

"That's a very singular story," admitted Dick Hart, puffing away more rapidly at his pipe, "but did it not some blood about next morning?"

"Not a particle," Peters declared indignantly, "but the fact of Adam having been in the house does not depend altogether upon me. He shaved himself to my mother, and pointed out the wound in his forehead as he had to do, and then faded away just as I had expected. But the next morning he was still there, and the next day he died."

"Adam died in his bed, I suppose?"

"Yes, we put his body, poor man, into the ground; but do you suppose, as I do, that his master stays unshaven, thus his spirit can rest quiet? No. Hell claims one of these days and we are all afraid from the report of our master's death that he will never be quiet again."

"Heavens! That's a pretty strong ghost story, and that's a fact," said Dick Hart, as the old man concluded, "but it's not so very late yet. Couldn't you tell us another?"

"No, no, Hart; one must do you," said Mr. Brooke; "but I see you Peters in you're in trouble again!"

"And, I suppose, you're in trouble again?"

"Yes, I am, but I'm not afraid of it," said Peters.

"Well, I just did, dad, an' I crept out long or half mile, an' I shade ob de fence comin' home, cos de sun po' hot ter."

"Huh! I go laung, yer good for nothin' niggah. I jes erguted with yer. Huh! yer ole daddy tol ye often enuf dat niggahs' niggah evah tomes him fix at dia time or day?"

Oftentimes women will dissuade their sons from marrying, but it is suspected that she is influenced by her desire to keep a big fool in the house.

Mr. Gabe Snowdown to his son, my boy, how's yo' kin by dat or squan? said

Many pronounces that in Tennessee have resolved to abandon the business, owing to the want of a dog law, asserting that 300,000 dogs cannot be maintained against 500,000 dogs.

Hogs differ as much as other animals in their ability to take on fat. Thirty young hogs of improved breeds will gain much faster on the same amount of food, than old and fat animals which belong to no repute.

It is claimed that the sugar beet in California does not exhaust the soil. A beet farmer reports raising his ground from fourteen to twenty-nine tons per acre in four years, plantings on the same ground each year without fertilizers.

The Roosevelt Sugar Beet is the big thousand-acre farms of the West, and says that in almost every case these farms have really bankrupted most of the rich men who tried to run them, but who had to have their farms taken over by the government.

The experiment of milking cows three times a day was tried at the Iowa Agricultural College, and the average daily gain of the herd was four pounds, or half enough to pay for the extra trials and labor. The result is not considered sufficient to pay for the labor and expense; even when cows yielding over twenty quarts daily are used.

The only advantage is that the cows will have to be kept in the barnyard all winter, thereby effecting a saving of round.

A London paper claims that "there is no better way of securing a heavy crop of peaches and nectarines than by putting a colony of bees in the house when the trees are in blossom. The English grow peaches in the orchards here."

A correspondent hints that the Stockmen, is the too common one of feeding on the ground. Go where you will and you will find farmers feeding their sheep on the ground in the worst weather that ever storm comes along, out of consideration for the dumb animals, but as a matter of economy, troughs should be constructed in which to place the feed.

Prof. Cook, in his paper on Economic Entomology, says the reason why imported insects are for a time more destructive than native species is in the fact that they have fewer parasites, and the idea occurred to me that the figure was possibly my brother Adam come home from sea. I put out my hand and touched the figure on the shoulder, before I knew scarcely what I was doing, and it moved. The figure turned itself towards me and raised its hand, and I instantly saw that it was really my brother.

"It was Adam but, indeed, greatly changed from the Adam who left us so long ago. He was in a frightful manner, and his hair seemed to be wet and all matted together; and there was a great cut on the temple from which blood was still oozing. It was an awful, painful sight that I saw here in the parlor at night."

"I could not bear to look at it, and buried my face with a shudder, among the bad clothes. When I recovered sufficient courage to confront my ghastly bed fellow, I found the figure had arisen from the bed and was standing by the window of the room, or had sunk through the floor. Then I got up and searched the room but nothing was there. If any of you, I think, had seen what I saw that night you would never doubt but that the dead can, and sometimes do, come back from the grave."

"That's a very singular story," admitted Dick Hart, puffing away more rapidly at his pipe, "but did it not some blood about next morning?"

"Not a particle," Peters declared indignantly, "but the fact of Adam having been in the house does not depend altogether upon me. He shaved himself to my mother, and pointed out the wound in his forehead as he had to do, and then faded away just as I had expected. But the next morning he was still there, and the next day he died."

"Adam died in his bed, I suppose?"

"Yes, we put his body, poor man, into the ground; but do you suppose, as I do, that his master stays unshaven, thus his spirit can rest quiet? No. Hell claims one of these days and we are all afraid from the report of our master's death that he will never be quiet again."

"Heavens! That's a pretty strong ghost story, and that's a fact," said Dick Hart, as the old man concluded, "but it's not so very late yet. Couldn't you tell us another?"

"No, no, Hart; one must do you," said Mr. Brooke; "but I see you Peters in you're in trouble again!"

"And, I suppose, you're in trouble again?"

"Yes, I am, but I'm not afraid of it," said Peters.

"Well, I just did, dad, an' I crept out long or half mile, an' I shade ob de fence comin' home, cos de sun po' hot ter."

"Huh! I go laung, yer good for nothin' n

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, JAN. 1, 1886.

PRAY THE OLD YEAR OUT AND THE NEW YEAR IN.

As on December's frosty air
Rings out the midnight peal,
Oh, let us in the hours of prayer
With reverent faces kneel!

There bid the dying year farewell,
In humble posture low,
Whose joy have made our heart to swell,
Its grief our tears to flow.

O dying year! we can but weep!
At thought that we must part;
And oh! thy mercies long shall keep
Their record in our heart.

Our future path before us lies
Untraversed and unknown,
Wishon the sight to us denied,
Known but to God alone.

But ah, in Him is all our trust
Who holds the heavens secure,
And though the mountains fall in dust,
His love to us is sure.

Then let us, while the old year's knell
Tolls deep through midnight air,
Greet, while our hearts with praises swell,
The glad New Year with prayer.

And while in gratitude we bend
For blessings of the day,
Forgive our sins; dear Christ, our friend,
And bless our future way!

The local legislature meets for the transaction of business on the 28th day of January. The coming session will, we trust, be different from those of the past few years, by an absence of those trifling party squabbles, cabals and conspiracies of which the country has had more than enough. It is time now for our public men to undertake some practical legislation.

CORRESPONDENCE

CORRECTION.

Deseronto, Dec. 29th, 1885.

To the Editor of the Tribune.
Sir.—I notice by your last week's issue you give the result of the National Election upon the Report of the election, and you do it up by saying the first four were lost, the last won by out Chief Sampson Green, whom I presume is an error or oversight. Clint Green was elected against the Culbertson party, the Evans and the Recollets combined, and it is said with the free use of bottles of fluid, not supposed to be Adam's Ale.

Yours truly,
SCHUBLER.

THOUGHTS FOR NEW YEAR'S.

To the Editor of the Tribune.
With the present number of The Tribune we step over the threshold of the New Year. The year behind us is spent, worn out and done with, what it has had to give us it has given. It is like a broken box with its contents packed up before us. Perhaps it has not been to any of us just what we expected or wished for. To some it has brought many sorrows, many failures, and many disappointments. Its good things were not so great as we looked for, and many unexpected evils came with the year. If it has been so with our circumstances, it has been no less with our performances. As the past year before us with its failures, omissions, short comings, wasted opportunities, lost seasons, black pages, and the record of good, its foul pages with their record of evil; as we look upon it there must be a feeling of dissatisfaction and shame. But the new year has come, and all of us look upon it with a peculiar interest. It is the unprofitable, disappointing, and failures of the old that brings out kindly greeting and hearty welcome when we give to the new, and as we step over its threshold, the feeling which more or less takes possession of us is hope. The new year comes with a smile and receives our joyful welcome because it comes laden with the boundless treasures of, h. g. But what is hope? What security have we that it shall not be disappointed? Well hope is an instinct of the human heart; it springs from man's consciousness of the infinite power and goodness of God and abounding confidence in the love and resources of his Creator. Whether present troubles may press upon us, or whether we remain in all its fulness the goodness of God, and that is our trust. Temporary clouds may hide the sun, but when the clouds have blown away the sun will be seen shining as brightly as ever. So that we have a right to feel that behind any cloud of trouble, of disappointment, of failure, or of despair, there yet remains shining in all its glorious hues the infinite, eternal and unchanging goodness of God, and in that unchanged love may our hope be anchored, and being so anchored it cannot be removed.

Yours truly,
Deseronto, Dec. 29, 1885. SENEX.

DISTRICT.

Wm. Kimmerly, of Nanapace, had his right arm broken recently by a fall from a ladder.

Mr. Abrams, of Gananoque, has been very unfortunate during the year. In May one of his cows dropped dead, value $80; in June, a horse, $150; in August, another horse, $75; and on Tuesday, a third horse, value $80.

Mr. & Mrs. Pell have been arrested by Chief McKinnon being charged with burning their residence near Canifton. Several boxes of furniture alleged to have been destroyed were found at Trenton and other places.

On the evening of the 24th, Mr. Wm. West, of Hungerford, was coming with his team near the Wesleyan Church, west of Peterborough, his horse became frightened, upsetting the cart and dragging him about forty rods. When picked up he was found to be badly bruised.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Mr. W. H. Waller, Registrar of Carleton County, died on the 23rd inst.

The navigation receipts of Toronto for the season show an increase of $490 over last year.

Ambrose Shee, a native of Newfoundland, has been appointed Governor of that island province.

The riots at the Polish Church, Detroit, culminated on Friday night in the shooting of a man.

The late Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg purchased one third of his property to his wife.

Schaefer won first prize in the Chicago billiard tournament on Saturday night by defeating Slosson. Score, 890 to 600.

Sergt. Gilchrist, who got one of his legs broken at the fight at Duck Lake, died at Regina barracks on Saturday of heart disease.

It is reported that King John of Abyssinia, is engaged in the occupation of Massawah, and is preparing to make war upon the Italian.

The Newfoundland executive has issued a proclamation forbidding an orange procession in Harbor Grace and other parts of Conception Bay.

It is probable that the Brisson cabinet will resign, and that Mr. DeFreycourt will form a ministry after the election of M. Grey as president of the republic.

MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS.

THURLOW.—The entire Council were elected by acclamation. Reeve—H. Ashby; 1st Deputy—N. Vermilyea; 2nd Deputy—Jeremiah Hurley. Councillors—Ross and Caldwell.

HUNTERSTON.—For Reeve—R. Gordon and P. Murphy. A. McGowan, 1st Deputy Jas. Clare 2nd both by acclamation. For Councillors—Henry Monck, W. Dempsey, W. Morley, R. Tufts.

HUNTERSTON.—For Reeve—M. Robertson and J. Haggard. For 1st Deputy Jas. Foster, John Gordon and John Fox. For Councillors—Richard Porter, George Reid, Wm. Hawken, David Fleming and John Sears.

TENDINGA.—For Reeve—J. C. Hanley and Wm. McLaren. For 1st Deputy—F. West by acclamation. For 2nd Deputy—J. Miller and L. Phillips. For Councillors—George Munro, John Meagher and L. Brown.

BANGOR ET AL.—For Reeve—P. J. Green, Councillors—H. Dennis, Robt. Murdoch, J. Steel, M. Ryan, elected by acclamation.

MOOSEHEAD AND HESQUIA.—For Reeve—John Fitzgerald and Edward Bourne. For Councillors—M. Hickney, Jas. McLean, P. Ward, Jno. Parsons, C. Jordison, John Pettibone, Van Hemmey, H. Lawson, S. Haylett, D. Ryan, W. McDevitt, Geo. Thompson, etc., W. Rutledge.

CARLTON AND ST. GEORGE.—For Reeve—Wm. McMunn, E. McLennan. For Councillors—W. D. Parkhurst, Jas. Williams, W. Rankin, J. Sutherland, A. Whyte, A. Grant, W. Hynes, A. Patterson, W. Allison, A. Stewart, J. Stewart, R. D. Wilson.

MADOC VILLAGE.—For Reeve—C. F. Aylesworth, elected by acclamation. For Councillors—W. Kerr, N. M. Maybee, C. G. Wilson, J. Waystock, F. Rollins, O. Hara.

ELIZER.—J. Tuttle, Reeve; W. Thompson, J. D. Breeze, A. Jeffs, H. James, councillors, by acclamation.

MARMOA.—A. W. Carrascal, elected Reeve by acclamation. Councillors, M. Sullivan, R. Laycock, R. Champion, J. Bailey, W. Hilton, J. Hamilton.

HOW TO USE A GRINDSTONE.

A grindstone is one of the worst used implements on the farm or in the workshop, giving much trouble to think about their work, and consequently, the great majority of people fail to get the most and best use from their tools. The few who do think, will agree with us when we say, that a grindstone is both badly made and badly used.

It is too small; took thick; it is not evenly and well tempered; it is poorly prepared, and in tempering too fast, and made to throw the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

A grindstone, to do good service, should be at least three feet in diameter and two and one-half to three inches in thickness, having a bevel on each side of the face for grinding on. It should be quite free from rust and scale, or iron pyrites, which are injurious to tools, and should be well tempered, and made to take the water around or too slow, and so fails to do its work well; it is not well taken care of, and it is badly used.

DESERONTO MARKET.

Deseronto, Dec. 29th 1885.

BARLEY, 55 to 65 cents per bushel.
OATS, 30 to 35 "

BUTTER, 19 to 21 cents per pound.

LAMB, 5 to 6 "

BEF, 3 to 4 "

LARD, 9 to 11 "

Eggs, 18 to 20 cents per dozen.

POTATOES, 50 to 70 cents per bag.

HY, 8 to 10 dollars per ton.

CHICKENS, 20 to 35 cents per pair.

DUCKS, 50 to 60 "

GESE, 50 to 60 cents each.

TURKEY, 60 to $1 "

Hides 5 to 7 dollars per cwt.

Pelts 50 to 75 cents each.

Tallow in rough 3 cents per lb.

Tallow rendered 6¢

Hogs, live weight, $4.00 to $5.00 per wt.

Hogs, dead, $5.00 to $6.50 "

ESTABLISHED 1873.

Apothecaries Hall.

FRESH and PURE DRUGS

CHEMICALS

FANCY SOAPS,

PERFUMES,

BRUSHES,

HERBS,

ROOTS,

PILLS,

OILS,

FANCY POWDER FOR THE TOILET.

PIPES,

CIGARS,

TOBACCO,

SPONGES,

PATENT MEDICINES.

RAZOR STRAPS,

LAMP GOODS,

Horse & Cattle Medicines.

OFFICE OF DR. NEWTON.

W. G. EGAR.

MAIN STREET, DESERONTO

THE RATHBUN CO.,

Deseronto, Ont.,

Manufacturers of

Doors, Sashes, Blinds,

Mouldings, Frames,

and every description of

House Finish.

We make a Specialty of

GLAZED WINDOWS

And parties building will find it greatly to their advantage to buy their Sashes Glazed and Primed ready for use. Send for prices.

—ALSO—

LUMBER,

At reduced prices, including

Flooring, Siding, &c.

Dressed Lumber always on hand.

You will also be able to purchase from us

SHINGLES

Cheaper than ever.

Call or write before purchasing of the articles required for new building or for repairs.

RARE CHANCE FOR HOLIDAY SHOPPERS.

LATEST NOVELTIES AND BIG BARGAINS IN

+ELEGANT CHRISTMAS GOODS+ Novelties, Silver & Platedware.

Repairing Watches, Clocks and Jewelry, and Engraving, &c.

We Meet all Wants at Prices Low.—COME.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

GEO. E. SNIDER.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING.

BUY USEFUL PRESENTS.

Buy a Parlor Set for a present.

Buy a Bedroom Set for a present.

Buy an Organ for a present.

Buy a Sewing Machine for a present.

Buy a nice pair of Chromos for a present.

Buy a nice Easy Chair for a present.

Buy a nice Fancy Table for a present.

Buy the Children a nice Sleigh for a present.

All the above are offered very cheap at

DALTON'S FURNITURE WAREROOMS

ST. GEORGE-ST. DESERONTO.

I have also a large range of CARPETS which I am

Selling at Cost.

JOHN DALTON.

Deseronto, Dec. 3rd, 1885.

Cheap! Cheap! Cheap!

THE DESERONTO NEWS COMPANY

Offers BOOKS and STATIONERY of every description at exceedingly low prices.

INK

PENS

PAPER

SLATES

PENCILS

MUCILAGE

all marked down to lowest rates.

NEW SERIES SCHOOL READERS.

A new supply of well selected books by popular authors at prices from 10 cts. up.

BAY OF QUINTE

Railway & Navigation Company.

CHANGE OF TIME.

THE TRAINS OF THIS ROAD MAKE

sure connection with all G. T. R. trains both East and West, and with Steamers of the Deseronto Navigation Company for all

Bay and River ports.

1885. TIME TABLE. 1885.

DESERONTO & GRAND TRUNK LINE.

BAY OF QUINTE RAILWAY.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS TIME DISTANCE

SO. 1 20 min. 30 miles

20 7:45 12:29 4:45 9:30 12:00

30 8:00 12:45 3:15 6:30 9:30 12:00

40 8:15 12:50 3:45 6:45 9:45 12:15

50 8:30 12:55 4:00 7:00 10:00 12:30

Trans. Nos. 1 and 13 run daily, (Sunday included) sure connections to and from Bay of Quinte Port.

MACDONALD.From Our Own Correspondent.

No more.

Hollister fast going by.

Mrs. Jordan of Pickton, is visiting at her uncle's, Mr. John Joyce.

The Sabbath School Jubilee on Christmas evening was a grand success. $35 was taken at the door though the admission fee was only 15¢.

Miss Mary Clark, of Belleville, is spending her holidays at our worthy postmaster's, Mr. H. Goodfellow.

Timothy Murphy lively, here to help over the election of councillors at North Fredericksburg.

Moses, John Carmichael and Ervin Parks are candidates for the Reeship, and Messrs. Chas. Lloyd and Thos. Hanley for deputy Reeve.

Mr. Hinman, Park & Deseronto, spent a few days last week at Mr. W. R. Miller's.

Miss Libbie Gray, of Bath, and Miss Nellie Thistlethwaite, of Napanee, are the guests of Mr. John McWain.

SHANNONVILLE.From Our Own Correspondent.

Miss G. Lake has returned home having spent six months pleasantly in Toronto.

A tea-meeting under the auspices of the Methodist Church will be held in the Masonic Hall on Wednesday evening, Jan 13th, the proceeds to be in aid of the parsonage fund.

The Christmas Tree and Concert under the auspices of the Methodist Sabbath School held on the evening of the 23rd was a decided success, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. After the trees were distributed to the children, Mr. Geo. Howes on behalf of the school presented Mr. L. E. Mills, the superintendent, with a beautifully bound photograph album, and Mr. D. Lazier on behalf of the young peoples prayer meeting presented him with a small book, same, also with a beautiful album and card. The programme then opened with a song by Miss Mabel Roblin entitled "Come Birdie Come" which was rendered very nicely. Several soloists sang and recited poems, several songs were also performed, and it was closed by the tableau, "There is Poison in the Wine Cup." The proceeds amounted to $25, which after deducting necessary expenses, will be appropriated for the benefit of the school.

MELROSE.From Our Own Correspondent.

On Monday Dec 28th the nomination of Reeve, Deputy Reeve and councillors took place in the Town Hall. As the Clerk was unable to attend Mr. Chas. Simpkins was appointed in his place. The nominations for Reeve were Mr. J. C. Hanley, Mr. McLaren, Theo. Deasy and John White.

For first deputy, Mr. Frank West, who was elected by acclamation. For second deputy Patrick Nash, John Miligan and Lester Phillips. For Councillors, Lewis Brown, Geo. Smith, C. McLaughlin, John Egan and Eliza Barber. For School Trustees electors, Mr. Deasy and White resigned, Mr. Nash resigned as second deputy and John Egan resigned as councillor. Eliza Barber not being present his mover and second was withdrawn from motion. The following day the men so balloted for Reeve, J. C. Hanley and Wm. McLaren. For second deputy, John Miligan and Lester Phillips. For Councillors, Lewis Brown, Geo. Monroe and J. C. Meagher.

One evening a number of people got into a party and went to Mr. Jim Frazer's who keeps bachelor's hall in the Salem Neighborhood. They had an abundant supply of oysters and as Don Carlos of the Mowsonian Club at Read, furnished the music, it would naturally be supposed that they had a good time. People were pleased to see Mr. Wesley Reid, of Shannonville, among the guests.

The family of Mr. Philip Badgely, is again visited with diphtheria. A few months ago a son died after a short illness, Tuesday, they buried another who died from the same fatal disease. It is said that the present outbreak was caused by their using tom bed clothing that the other child lay on. It seems strange as they disinfected it and it has lain in their driveways since. They have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood in their affliction.

READ.From Our Own Correspondent.

Monday last was the all important day of Nomination when the various candidates for municipal honors appeared before the public. Your old correspondent was not present at the opening, and regretfully failed to learn that he had incurred, through no fault of his own, the ire and wrath of one or two more or less important individuals.

Mr. Frank West was returned by acclamation as first Deputy Reeve. Messrs. Nash, Phillips and Miligan were nominated for second Deputy Reeve. We regret to say that Mr. Nash has retired from the contest. A gentleman who is so well known and so popular will be a loss to the Township. The other candidates, Mr. C. McLaughlin, did creditably himself and his friends. Messrs. L. Brown, G. Munro, J. C. Meagher, John Egan and E. Barber were nominated for Councillors. The two latter have retired. Mr. Hanley gave a full explanation of Township affairs, showing that the money stored in the good "position" namely, stock in trade, is a position indeed.

The debt has been completely wiped out, and the rate of taxation lowered since he and his colleagues have been in office. There were several other interesting speech made on the occasion, and the result of the vote for the various honorours endeavored to gain the approbation of his constituents. The old Read correspondent, when last I saw him, did not seem much broken down under the rather sly insinuations of the McLaughlin orators.

Miss Annie McHenry has been engaged as teacher for the ensuing year.

Messrs. Malone, Callaghan and Murray have arrived from Dakota.

Professor Denys who was not present last Sunday owing to professional engagements, will meet the choir on Sunday next as usual.

One day last week as Mr. Wm. McLaughlin was driving to Napanee, a man with a load of dynamite was driving along, and a box of the explosive device fell off close to Mr. McLaughlin, but fortunately did not explode. Mr. McLaughlin is a promising young man and is about to be married, so on all accounts he is to be congratulated on his narrow escape. "Alls well that ends well."

There was a ball at Erinville on Monday evening, and one at Markham on Wednesday evening, another at Stoco on Friday evening; and the great social event of the season will be held in Hanley's Hall on the 2nd January. Very numerous reunions took place at Christmas, and Mr. Lawrence McDermott's and Mr. James Jordan's, Mr. Hugh McGibbons' celebrated mare, the well-known successor to Goldsmith Maid, was the fastest horse on record on the 7th con., between Hoffmann's Course and J. Culhane's, Mr. John Gaffey being time-keeper.

Mr. John Walsh, of Cleveland, Ohio, is visiting his relatives for the Christmas holidays. Our friend Joe looks well and seems well pleased with our American cousins.

The Rev. Father Mede we are happy to learn is improving in health.

Miss West, of Belleville, has been visiting her relatives here.

MASONIC INSTALLATION.

At the regular meeting of Craig Lodge, A. F. & A. M., G. R. C., No. 401, the following officers were duly installed: Bro. Robert Anderson, D. D. M., of Franklin; Edward Anderson, assisted by Bro. C. Z. Perry, P.M., of Napanee, and Bros. R. J. Craig, P. M., and J. F. Sills, P. M., of Deseronto.

Bro. R. Geddes, I. P. M.
Dr. Clinton, W. M.
A. H. McGahey, S. W.
Isaac Allum, J. W.
Rev. R. J. Craig, Chaplain.
W. Stoddart, S. W.
W. H. McRae, S. W.
G. A. Browne, S. W.
George Gordon, J. D.
Wm. Evans, M. C.
G. Wright, G.
Bro. W. R. Longmore,
John McCullough, S. W.
John Gough, T. S.
Bro. John Gough, T. S.

After Installation the brothers proceeded to the O'Connor House where a sumptuous repast was provided. After doing ample justice to the good things prepared before the meeting adjourned to the town hall for "The Queen and Craft" which was responded to by Bros. Longmore, D.D.G.M., and Perry, P. M., Bro. Longmore said he was proud to respond to the Queen and Craft. It was a pleasure to belong to such a body as the Craig Lodge. He would have his remarks more particularly on the Craft. After reviewing the history of Masonry from the building of King Solomon's temple down to the present time, he retired by wishing the brethren of Craig Lodge a Happy New Year.

Bro. Perry in his remarks said it was a pleasure to be present, and he felt proud of Craig Lodge which was a branch of Union Lodge.

Bro. Allum than proposed the J. W. toast. "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again." After singing "God Save the Queen" the company retired well pleased with the evening's programme.

FAMOUS MEDICINE MEN.

Meers Root & Tinker, of New York City, who have published from time to time handsome lithograph portraits of the prominent journalists of the United States and Great Britain, have just issued a very attractive engraving, made by themselves, of the leading Patent Medicine Manufacturers of the United States, including Dr. J. C. Ayer, C. J. Hood, Dr. Hostetter of "Hostetter's Bitters," John Hodge of "Medicinal Spring Oil," Dr. H. H. Warner of "Warner's Safe Remedies," Dr. J. H. Schenck of "Electric Bitters," Mr. Powell of "Iron Bitters," Dr. Tatt, Dr. Brandreth of "Brandreth's Pill," and H. H. Warner of "Warner's Safe Remedies." For "Tranquillizers" we doubt if a more attractive looking group of eleven men could be got together from any walk of life. It is quite appropriate to call such figures as H. H. Warner, the "Great Medicine Men" of America.

We doubt if a more attractive looking group of eleven men could be got together from any walk of life. It is quite appropriate to call such figures as H. H. Warner, the "Great Medicine Men" of America. The remedy to which he has given world-wide fame—"Warner's Safe Cure." The sale of the "Warner's Safe Remedies" has been so widely extended that warehouses have been established in all quarters of the globe, the not least prosperous being one in far distant Australia. People have erroneous notions both of the motives and character of patent medicine men. In a word, a really wise and substantial trust worthy citizen, who wins the success that comes to them purely on the merits of the goods they produce and of the work they perform. This is especially true concerning those in this group. This picture hangs side by side with prominent journalists, religious men, political and foreign, will probably attract more attention than those famous editorial writers, because there is hardly a man in the country who has not heard of or used some of the remedies manufactured by these men or had their interest stimulated in the gentlemen themselves by the record made by their remedies among personal friends.

This picture was sent out for circulation in the U.S. by Dr. H. H. Warner, who, besides having won such distinguished fame as the manufacturer of "Warner's Safe Cure," is well known as the founder of the "Warner Astronomical Observatory, Rochester, N. Y." and the "Warner Astronomical Prizes," for meteorological discovery so prominent that it is difficult to find its equal in the world. Mr. Warner is a self-made man, and those who know him best say that the success he has won thus early in life (he being at present not over 45 years of age), is in all respects eminently deserved, for he is a man of very broad views and wide-extended liberality.

1885. FALL 1885.THE BIG STORE TO THE FRONT.*BUSINESS BOOMING IN EVERY DEPARTMENT.*FURS! FURS!! FURS!!!

A large assortment at the most reasonable prices.

Ladies' Astrachan JACKETS; Persian Caps, Muffs and Boas; Seal Caps, Muffs and Boas; Mink Caps, Muffs and Boas; Black Fur Capes

A splendid assortment of Woolen Goods at remarkably low prices for Women and Children, unsurpassed by anything in the Trade.

Flannels of every description and quality now in Stock at the BIG STORE, and we respectfully solicit an inspection of these Goods; they are special value and will excel in make and prices anything previously offered to the public in Deseronto.

The Tailoring Department is now replete with the most fashionable and varied makes of goods that can be obtained in the European and Continental Markets, and we wish to impress upon our friends, that, as the best of Trimmings only are used in the making up of Garments, we can guarantee a style and finish which will stand comparison with any House in the Trade. Mr. Stoddart, who is already well known for his superiority in making a good stylish fit, is in charge of this Department, and will be pleased to have an opportunity of exhibiting these special goods to his friends, and quote prices for same.

BOOTS & SHOES.

In this Department the BIG STORE still maintain their well known reputation for keeping only the best quality and the most fashionable Goods manufactured, their facilities for buying, and the immense quantity of Boots & Shoes disposed of, enable them to offer at more advantageous prices than can be done by other competitors who profess to sell the same class of Boots. Do not be induced to purchase inferior Goods simply because the price is low; such articles are dear at any cost. The Big Store do not impose upon their customers trashy goods, but sell only first-class articles, and this principle has won for them their well earned reputation which is so generally known and appreciated by their Customers and the Public.

HIS RE is the head rendezvous for Groceries and Provisions of Sterling Quality and finest brands. Canned Goods of every description in the market being on sale, but space will not permit us to enumerate in detail the specialties obtainable, but suffice it to say that for all Provisions seasonable and of the best quality, we recommend THE BIG STORE as unsurpassable.

HARDWARE, CROCKERY, GLASSWARE, LAMPS, VULCANISED CHIMNEYS, RUBBER GOODS PAINTS, OILS, SALT.

We must not omit the astounding fact that the sales at the BIG STORE during the month of October were the largest since the erection of this establishment, which proves beyond doubt that in their endeavors to supply their Customers with the best goods at the most reasonable prices, they have won the confidence of the public, and now beg to thank their Customers for the very liberal support hitherto accorded them, and in the future solicit a continuance of the patronage so gratuitously bestowed upon them during the past

THE BIG STORE,A. A. RICHARDSON,

Deseronto, Nov. 5th, 1885.

MANAGER.

DRY GOODS & MILLINERY.MRS. DALTON

Has now completed opening her large importation of FALL and WINTER GOODS, which will be offered at prices to suit the times?

GREAT BARGAINS! GREAT BARGAINS!DRESS GOODS!! DRESS GOODS!!

In great variety—Very Cheap—Call and Inspect them

—FLANNELS! FLANNELS!! FLANNELS!!

all colors and all prices, exceedingly low!

CLOUDS, CLOUDS, CLOUDS,

CHILDREN'S HATS, AND KNITTED CAPS AND HOODS.

Ladies' Wool and Cotton Underclothing,

Men's and Boy's Wool Shirts and Drawers at a bargain.

THE MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.

Is now open and comprises all the novelties in HATS, BONNETS AND

TRIMMINGS for the coming season, and all exceedingly CHEAP]

MRS. DALTON, St. George Street.

NEVER FAILS TO GIVE SATISFACTION.MCOLL'S LARDINE MACHINE OIL

Our "English" Wool Oil—something new—finest in the market. Our Cylinder Oil,—600 fire test—much superior to tallow;

GIVE OUR TRAVELLER A TRIAL ORDER.

MCOLL BROS. & CO., Toronto, Ont.

TRY THE GREAT BON TON SOAP.

P. S.—Coal Oil 20 cents per Gallon.

J. T. GREATRIX, DESERONTO.SANTA CLAUS'

HEADQUARTERS FOR

FOR THE HOLIDAYS IS

T. N. CARTER'S,

OPPOSITE THE O'CONNOR HOUSE,

A LARGE LOT OF RUBBER GOODS Just Received,

AT VERY LOW PRICES.

Head Quarters for FELT BOOTS, OVERSHOES, and MEN'S HEAVY RUBBERS for Feet Socks.

First Class Boots and Shoes Made to Order in the Latest Styles and

At Reasonable Prices.

T. N. CARTER.

Deseronto, Dec. 17th, 1885.

The Mysteries of Sleep.

The mystery of sleep is one with which we have become familiar through long acquaintance. We forget that it is as great a marvel as death. There are few, if any, who have seen persons pass away without being moved by scenes of quietude, of being delighted by sweet sounds and sights, diversified by dreams. It is hardly accepted that death, the most awful of the mysteries, are not often food for wonderment, simply because we are so accustomed to them. The National Review, in an article on "Sleep," observes, drawn attention to the fact that the dreamer in possession of all his senses describes his dream as depending upon that night.

In that most famous vision upon record Jacob saw the ladder which angels ascended and descended. The dreamer in the harvest field of Canaan, three thousand years ago, declared:

"Behold I was binding sheep together, and lo! my angel stood before me, and said, 'Jacob, I am God before me, and I am thy God after thee; thy name stand round about.'

Dives in his palace behold new tables spread with a thousand viands. Lazarus sees the very dogs that fed him, Lazarus sees Lazarus in the vision of Clarence, presents a succession of pictures to the eyes, and when Dido dreamt of her lost Aeneas, it is to the sense of vision that his image addressed itself.

What must be the dream of those who have been blind from birth? Since they have never beheld a real object, how shall the brain conceive of one?

It is clear that every sense comes to the blind man by touch or hearing, without a gleam of fancy or imagination. Yet if questioned, he will tell you that he has just as much imagination as other people, and even more, and that he can dream.

"I often dream," said a blind boy, "about people. I dream of my brother. I know he is there; I hear his voice; I am in the place where we used to be before he died."

"But how do you know you are in a certain place?"

"The impression of the place is with me; I feel I am there. Sometimes I dream that I am walking in the fields; I tread on the grass, I smell the fresh air, I taste the dew. I am a blindfolded man, "that I am in the basket shop where I work, known. I am there by the size of the room, the length of it, the height of the windows, the width of the door."

"But how can you judge us to the size or length of what you cannot see?" said the boy.

"I am in my own old place where I work," said the boy.

"You sit on your own box, then," said the boy.

"Yes, I touch it; and if the dream goes on, I get my tools out."

"What I dream," said a blind tramp, "is just as I am. I dream of the world, of hearing and touching. The last dream I had was about a blind chap that's in prison just now. I went into his wife's house—I knew it was her by the sound of my foot in it, and whether it was clean or dirty. As we're talking, I heard a voice at the door, and I said,

"Bless me, if that ain't John!" But he took no notice.

"Haloo!" said I, "is that you?" And I took him by the sleeve; it was his shirt-sleeve I felt, and I was half afraid of him, and surprised I was out weeks before his time."

"It is, therefore, not with the blind man as with the rest of the world, that in dreams the sense of touch, swifter intelligence, and more exact, is a more strong or more language and fancy.

"Having never seen a definite image, he cannot comprehend one, even in his waking moments. Hence arises a tendency to scepticism, which leads him to the existence of things he cannot touch, as in the case of Nelson Sanderson, one of the most gifted blind men that ever lived.

"If I said he, as he lay dying, 'you would have me believe in a God,' I must feel like a fool."

"Yeah, then, your own frame," was the answer, "and find God there—in His hands."

"All this," said the dying man, "may be enough for you; but it is not for me; what relation there is between His hand and His God!—the world eternal! Time, matter, space, are but a point. God of Newton, give me light!"

Struggling with Robbers.

While Farmer Thomas Kendrew was driving his team from his farmhouse in Monroe to Scranton, he had sold a load of produce, three highwaymen stopped at a thicket near where the road pitches down a steep hill. One of them seized the horses by the bits, a second grabbed the team by the arm and undercoat to pull him off the road, while a third hit him on the head. The blood did not stop, however, and when he had pulled off his overcoat and freed his impaled arm, he found that the robber who had struck him had got him in a wagon. Kendrew then seized his whip and struck the robbers with all his might, and the robber at their horses was thrown head over heels into the ditch. The horses ran down the hill at a terrible gait, followed for a short distance by the robbers, who yelled at the one who had the wagon.

"Choke the old devil to death, or crack his skull."

Meanwhile a struggle had begun between Farmer Kendrew and the robbers in the wagon. The robber tried to knock the farmer out of the wagon, but the robber held his arms and forced him down on his knees. By this time the horses had reached the bottom of the hill and were running as fast as ever over a rocky terrain. The desperado realized that his companions were too far behind to be of any assistance to him, and that the farmer would be too much for him unless he could suddenly disable the latter, so by a desperate effort he loosened his arms and tried to hit Kendrew on the head with a shotgun.

He missed Kendrew's head, but hit him on the shoulder instead, and then the farmer got hold of the shotgun and grabbed his arm with a vice-like grip, rent his hair to the hind end of the wagon and pitched him out onto the frozen ground. The horses were still running, but they kept in the road and when Farmer Kendrew had disposed of the highwayman he had to hit the wagon, got hold of the reins, and quieted the mams down to a trot. Kendrew was only slightly bruised, and he said next day that it was a mighty lucky escape.

A Frenchman wrote home to his father: "Dear papa—I want a little change." The parent replied: "Dear Charlie—just wait for it. Time brings change to everybody, and when they know that cause a man's preacher they can't hit 'em up."

Health.

The Doctor's Notes.
One of the most beautiful instances of the beauty of a healthy nose is when the face is a shapely, fine curved nose. If the nose is deformed, the whole face is injured, however perfect otherwise. But a bad nose is not the portion of every healthy person. In the past, however, it was not unusual for the nose to be deformed by a blow, or by disease, or by accident.

The tippler may try ever so hard to conceal his habits, but his nose is an emblazoned signal, proclaiming the fact to every passer-by.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

Every organ of the body is in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit, but a disease of the entire system.

It is this that the alcohol increases the action of the heart and arteries about one fifth, thus driving the blood to the surface faster than it is normally done, and causing the capillaries to dilate, which makes them normally livable, are distended with impure blood, are kept in a state of permanent congestion, and give rise to pimples and blotches.

But the nose is also the chief organ of the body in a similar condition. The head, therefore, aches; the sleep is disturbed; the appetite is poor; the hair is discolored; the skin is coated with a yellowish tint, the limb is apt to palpitation; the back and limbs hurt; frequent pain; and the lungs become inflamed from the slightest exposure.

This is not a mere deformity, nor simply a prominent sign of a degenerate habit

VARIOUS TOPICS.

The fruit trees in Santa Barbara are being dug up and English walnuts planted in their place.

A rustic visitor to Burlington, Vt., spent Thanksgiving Day on the horse railway, making the trip of four miles twenty-two times.

"It is absolutely impossible," said Lord Rosebery in a recent Address in Scotland, "that in the future war could ever take place between the United States and England."

The man who receives the most letters a day in Washington is not the President or any member of his Cabinet, but a pension attorney, whose daily mail frequently numbers 500 letters.

The physicians of Sanford, Florida, have signed an agreement not to visit any patient who will not pay their bills on the first of every month. Those failing will not be attended until the next month.

It is believed that in ten years Yankton, D. T., will be an inland town. In front of the city, where the river ran twenty feet deep five years ago, there are now 100 acres of land six feet above high water mark.

A small street corner lot that was bought three years ago for $10,000, has just been leased for ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $35,000. A ten-story building, to cost a round million, will be erected upon it.

Dartmouth College has sold snap-shots at $1. Imitations were watching along the levees all day and night ready to snap on the ice the moment it was able to bear them, and stake out a "claim" to an area for cutting. Such claims are always respected.

Ordinary armenians signalized by ten words or so a minute, spelled out by letters; but an adaptation of the Morse telegraphic alphabet, now generally employed, has more than doubled this rate of speed.

The late Mr. Ballierge, publisher of some of the most important of the French medical works, recently concluded his business for nearly twenty years and worked until within a few days of his death—in his 88th year—although he had become blind during the latter part of his life.

The residents along a lumber flume in the mountains above the Gulf of California have no way of getting their mail. It is started on a raft from the head of the flume at regular intervals, and the people below watch for it, take out what belongs to them, and then send the raft with their purchases cargo on the way.

An object of considerable curiosity near New Palestine, Ind., is a man who never shears the wool from his sheep, or plucks his geese or "flings" his swans. He says, "It is sinful to interfere with nature." His hair, hands and beard are never shorn, nor are his nails cut. Every animal about the farm is likewise uncared for.

An employee of the New York, Penn., Sylvan, and Ohio Railroad whose duties require him to observe signs of disease, has recently been examined for color blindness, and about four per cent. were found to have defective sight. One of the oldest and most experienced passenger conductors found totally blind to any difference between red and green.

Three statues have just been brought to light from the cellar beneath the old court of law, at Guildford, London, where they have been hidden for nearly thirty years. They form part of the collection of Sir G. Chichester, and are the representative of Edward VI, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

In India a man on an astrophysic appeal, Dr. H. Raman of Berlin admits that "the most fascinating advocates of the doctrine of descent are becoming more and more convinced that man cannot be the issue of any extant form of anthropoids."

"The hypothetical being, the common ancestor of man and the apes, was found to be totally blind to any difference between red and green."

Three statues have just been brought to light from the cellar beneath the old court of law, at Guildford, London, where they have been hidden for nearly thirty years. They form part of the collection of Sir G. Chichester, and are the representative of Edward VI, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

A New Haven boy recently, "for fun," inserted an advertisement in a local paper for a husband. A Western farmer answered it, and the young man wrote at length, describing himself as a man of means, aged twenty-five, with a large bank account.

The young man's name was Edward C. Jones, and he was the representative of Edward Vi, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

In India a man on an astrophysic appeal, Dr. H. Raman of Berlin admits that "the most fascinating advocates of the doctrine of descent are becoming more and more convinced that man cannot be the issue of any extant form of anthropoids."

"The hypothetical being, the common ancestor of man and the apes, was found to be totally blind to any difference between red and green."

which could not find a hirer, was strictly enclosed to everybody.

A story went the rounds at the election in England that a Roman Catholic chaplain had been sent to him at his home, and as privately celebrated there. It seems there is just so much foundation for this story as may be discerned in the fact that a French organist attended to the Mass in the Newman Chapel. But who is writing an ecclesiastical history, having been for some weeks the guest of Lord Salisbury, who not only permitted him to attend the Mass in the usual documents of the Church, but offered him the hospitalities of their ancient dwelling.

At a meeting of the French Society of Medical Jurisprudence a case was reported of a child who had died—as stated the author of the article—when he also caused a rupture of the heart; and the latter fact was confirmed by the autopsy. The father of the child was placed out of having strangled it, and was examined by the medical evidence, and summoned Professor Brondum, who stated that the rupture of a healthy heart can only take place after strangulation.

Professor Brondum examined the heart and found ulcerations and an aneurism in its wall. The father was at once acquitted.

What's in a Name?

There is a great deal that is funny in names. Names are sometimes comic in themselves, but often they become ridiculous by their application. There is nothing more comical than one's own name. If we considered what the name might mean. But to see the sign, "A Poor Shoemaker," painted without any punctuation, as one is said to have seen it in New Orleans, would certainly provoke mirth.

Announcements of engagements and marriages bring many names into strange connection.

A happy fitness is seen in the union of a Mr. Catt to a Miss Mew, and of a Mr. Jones to a Mrs. Jones. It is not known what is the secret of the man of learning, closed by saying, "I am still ignorant of Jones."

"In fact, gentlemen, he was a great man, a very great man, gentlemen; he was the father of chemistry, and brother of the Earth of Cork."

From this it appears that the Earl of Cork must have been an uncle of chemistry.

No words are more familiar than our own names than see none of our familiar names and no words have often been degraded to his service. The name of Theodore Hook, a famous wit of the last generation, was made the subject of a very clever pun upon a man of learning, closed by saying, "I am still ignorant of Jones."

"Oh yes," was the answer, "Hook and Eye is also crooked."

It is related of two men, one named Fuller, the other Hawke, both fond of a joke, that when they met each other, what was the difference between an owl and a hawk? Hawke replied,—"The owl is fuller in the head, and hawk is full in the body, a short, he is short, he is Fuller all over."

Another old but very good instance of punning upon a name is told of a Mr. Green, who was a poor man, a passenger on a ship, who had a sum of money which he had found, totally blind to any difference between red and green.

Three statues have just been brought to light from the cellar beneath the old court of law, at Guildford, London, where they have been hidden for nearly thirty years. They form part of the collection of Sir G. Chichester, and are the representative of Edward Vi, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

In India a man on an astrophysic appeal, Dr. H. Raman of Berlin admits that "the most fascinating advocates of the doctrine of descent are becoming more and more convinced that man cannot be the issue of any extant form of anthropoids."

"The hypothetical being, the common ancestor of man and the apes, was found to be totally blind to any difference between red and green."

Three statues have just been brought to light from the cellar beneath the old court of law, at Guildford, London, where they have been hidden for nearly thirty years. They form part of the collection of Sir G. Chichester, and are the representative of Edward Vi, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

A New Haven boy recently, "for fun," inserted an advertisement in a local paper for a husband. A Western farmer answered it, and the young man wrote at length, describing himself as a man of means, aged twenty-five, with a large bank account.

The young man's name was Edward C. Jones, and he was the representative of Edward Vi, Charles I, and his consort, Queen Henrietta Maria. All three possess great artistic merit.

In India a man on an astrophysic appeal, Dr. H. Raman of Berlin admits that "the most fascinating advocates of the doctrine of descent are becoming more and more convinced that man cannot be the issue of any extant form of anthropoids."

"The hypothetical being, the common ancestor of man and the apes, was found to be totally blind to any difference between red and green."

His Sister.

A young collegian, in the junior year, was packing his valise to go for the Christmas holidays.

"What are you taking your new mess-chamber for? it will be broken," said his chum.

"I must risk it. I told Jenny about it; she'll be angry."

"And your diagram; what do you want with them?"

"Well, Jenny would like to see if I have improved. She is very much interested in my diagram."

"Any person is packing up all your medals; Liverpool prizes, too."

"Oh, Jenny knows all about the sports! She is impatient to examine the prizes. You ought to hear her talk! if touch-downs and serves, soft little things, like that too?" his eyes shone with tender pleasure.

"Jenny" was considered at school, but a dull scholar, and she "had no talent for languages or music," the teacher said. She was not brilliant, or pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"Jenny" was considered at school, but a dull scholar, and she "had no talent for languages or music," the teacher said. She was not brilliant, or pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"Jenny" was considered at school, but a dull scholar, and she "had no talent for languages or music," the teacher said. She was not brilliant, or pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and Pot's chances of the scholarship. She was not a trifler, or a pretty girl. But she had a good figure, and a very nice girl.

"She always understood his games; knew what the 'fellows' thought of each other, and of 'Prix' knew all about Jones's average and

THE
DESERONTO NEWS CO.Y.
(LIMITEDE.)

OUR JOBBING DEPARTMENT is replete with abundant supply of new type and printing material. We are the only firm in the position to execute Fine Job Printing in all its branches in first class style and at rates to suit the times. Send or call and get prices. Orders by mail will receive our prompt and careful attention.

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, JAN. 1, 1886.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Such fine mild weather.

DIVISION COURT will be held here on Wednesday next the 6th January.

Mr. Jesse Martin gave his hand a severe cut while chopping wood the other day.

SKATING and iceboating have been the principal amusements during the past week.

Rev. J. C. ASH and wife, of Demorestville, celebrate their silver wedding today.

The Dentist, Dr. Irish, will be at the Deseronto house on the 6th and 20th of January.

The saw factory has received the order for the wood furnishing of the new Martin block at Picton.

"Scrubber" corrects a printer's error in our last issue. We should have said that the first "we" were elected.

The turntable at Deseronto Junction has been completed and will prove a great convenience.

The Choir of St. Marks Church were very effectively aided on Christmas Day by Miss Dell, of Toronto.

Mr. Chas. Dryden has been busy collecting stray logs along the Napanee river and drawing them to town.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in the Church of the Redeemer next Sabbath morning.

A few copies of the "AMERICAN CHAT-TERBOX" still on hand. If you want to make a boy or girl supremely happy purchase one of these cheap and attractive books at Trenton.

The Annual Missionary Meeting will be held in St. Mark's Church on Sunday evening the 10th inst. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Canon White, of Iroquois, and Rev. W. Wright, of Newboro.

The Chief will locate a spot on the ice where residents may deposit their garbage, &c., during the winter. Any person driving elsewhere on the bay will be prosecuted by the board of health.

The Rathbun Company Band serenaded
Mr. E. W. Rathbun on Christmas day.
On Monday and Tuesday evenings they took advantage of the fine weather to call on the candidates and others.

The Express says that Mr. Butler will soon commence a survey of the extension of the line from the station in Napanee to the water's edge. The Company intend running the line to the river early in the spring.

Chief Cornelius Maricle, who although almost certain of recovery, declined to be a candidate at the election of the Reformed prefering rather to devote himself to Church work under the direction of his Pastor to look after the temporal condition of his people.

Mr. CHAS GOUGE, of the post-office, returned home on Tuesday morning, having spent his Christmas vacation very satisfactorily at his home in Sydenham. During his absence Mr. E. Edwards prepared Christmas cards with great dexterity and providence.

The entertainment in the Presbyterian Saloon on Saturday evening was well attended. The sale of statuary was a feature which created no little amusement.
The young men were very cautious in their bids, and prices ruled low. There were readings and music afterwards and the whole a pleasant time was enjoyed by the participants.

The Annual Missionary Meeting in behalf of Diocesan Missions will be held in Christ Church, Indian Reserve, on Sunday the 10th of January, 1886, at 11 a.m.; and in All Saints Church at 3.30 p.m. on the same day. A cordial invitation is extended to all the members of the congregation.
The Misses Spragues, Mr. & Mrs. McAlister,
Miss McMichael, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Thomas
Wilson, Mr. Charles Patten and Miss Georgina Patten, and Dr. McLaren and his family.

CHRISTMAS DAY passed off very quietly and pleasantly. The absence of snow was greatly regretted, but there was excellent sleighing and the children enjoyed the youthful population. The services at the churches were well attended. There were the usual family parties and reunions, and every person was a happy and contented apparition. Not one boy or girl was seen by Santa Claus.

This tea-table of the Presbyterian Sunday School was invited to a blow a slight dive on Christmas afternoon. The absence of snow forbade the pursuit of the promised drive. Mr. E. W.
Kerrison, Superintendent of the School, alas! has had a bad attack of the general disease of the season. The proceedings were brought to a close by rounding cheers for Superintendent and Pastor.

During the progress of the entertainment on Christmas eve, Rev. E. J. Craig, pastor of the Church of the Reformed Protestant, presented by the members of his congregation with a purse containing fifty dollars.
The presentation was made by Mrs. M. D.
Campbell and Miss Davis, who on behalf of the congregation expressed the pleasure it afforded them to thus testify to their appreciation of their pastor's services. Mr. Craig in a few words thanked them for their generous Christmas gift.

There seemed to be no limit to Methodist and Congregational. The Church was again packed to the doors on Christmas night, the occasion being the entertainment in aid of the Sabbath school. There were two large Christmas trees laden with gifts for the poor and destitute. The programme of recitation, dialogue and comedies by the children followed the distribution of gifts. Mr. J. L. Ferguson proved a capable chairman and the handsome sum of $400 was added to the library fund. The children, to the number of 150, were admitted free of charge.

Five cent scribbling books, ruled, at THE TRIBUNE office.

The crush at Egars drug store on Christmas was phenomenal.

A Happy New Year to all the readers of
THE TRIBUNE.

MR. GUY Clement cut his hand quite badly the other day. Dr. Short made the necessary repairs.

Patient medicines of all kinds, toilet goods, perfumes, soaps combs, hair dyes, all at Egars's.

The "mixed" trains on the Grand Trunk Railway are now nearly always late. It is to order for the "Expresses" soon to follow

The services in the Roman Catholic Church on Christmas Day were very interesting and attracted a large congregation.
The organ on the occasion was exceptionally good.

A little girl, daughter of Mr. James Meager, who it will be remembered fell and broke her arm some months ago, slipped off the stone wall and fractured the same in another place.

The little daughter of Mr. E. Deroche, of Napanee, strayed from home and took her way to Deseronto. She was found near the sand hill by Mr. Oliver, who returned her to her mother.

Miss Matilda Hopper and Colp have resigned from the municipal contest having sent in their resignations to the Clerk in writing as prescribed by law. The six candidates now are Messrs. Irvine, Cameron, Stewart, Edwards, Barker and Gault.

We were looking through Egars's drug store yesterday when we assumed all
Santa Claus appears all gone.
He has filled up with a fresh lot of drugs and goods. The shop is now heated satisfactorily with hot water.

Mr. D. G. Wartman spent last Sunday in the city. Mr. D. R. McRae spent last Monday in the Limehouse City.

Mr. W. H. Lake, of Eagle Mill, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Thomas Magurn, of Marysville, was in town last Friday.

Mr. W. H. Lake has left Deseronto to take up his residence in Kansas.

Mr. & Mrs. Herbert B. Wadsworth left on Wednesday.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

In the recent High School entrance examinations 48 candidates passed out of 124.
Edith Hewitt, Regis, heads the list with 488. Bertha Davidson, Sherrillville, comes second with 486. Ruth Ash, Sherrillville, 486;
John W. Win, Horne, No. 9 Tyndale, 483;
Ida Embury, 433 and Flora Embury, 388, both taught by Miss Warden, No. 5 Tyndale.

The players for the lady's dressing case toys, Baird's, paid off their bill to Mr. Egars, luckily winner. Mr. Wm. Wilson became at the same time the fortunate possessor of the prize, which was a silver plate on the New Year's day. Mr. C. W. Whitten, who showed himself with great energy into the work, disposed of 182 tickets, 117 of which were sold by himself. He realized $27.30. The proceeds of the grand prize were $100.00.

The players for the lady's dressing case
toys, Baird's, paid off their bill to Mr. Egars, luckily winner. Mr. Wm. Wilson became at
the same time the fortunate possessor of the prize, which was a silver plate on the New Year's day. Mr. C. W. Whitten, who showed himself with great energy into the work,
disposed of 182 tickets, 117 of which were sold
by himself. He realized $27.30. The proceeds of the grand prize were $100.00.

PERSONAL.

Mr. D. G. Wartman spent last Sunday in the city. Mr. D. R. McRae spent last Monday in the Limehouse City.

Mr. W. H. Lake, of Eagle Mill, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Thomas Magurn, of Marysville, was in town last Friday.

Mr. W. H. Lake has left Deseronto to take up his residence in Kansas.

Mr. & Mrs. Herbert B. Wadsworth left on Wednesday.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,
having spent the past year among friends in Detroit, Galt, Stratford, and other western cities.

Mr. Walter Eller of Marysburgh, Prince
Edward, spent a few days in town this week with Mr. R. Geddis prior to his departure for Texas.

Mr. John Milne spent Christmas in Kingston.

Mrs. Wm. Edwards spent Friday and Saturday in Trenton.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Martin are spending

Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Miss Emma and John Doreen Jr., of
Shanoville, are spent Christmas in Deseronto.

Mr. & Mrs. Paterson, of Chicago, is the guest of his Davis.

Miss Bella Douglas, of Napanee, and Miss
Anne Turner, of Kingston, are the guests of
Mrs. F. C. Whitten.

Mr. & Mrs. McMurrich, who have been visiting at Mr. & Mrs. Rathbun's, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. W. G. Egars, and Master Ego, Egars
have gone west on a visit to friends in Toronto, St. Mary's and Brantford.

Messrs. Joseph Hopper and W. Bowen of the Commercial College, Belleville, are enjoying the holidays in town.

Mr. & Mrs. W. B. McMurrich and family
returned to Toronto on Monday after enjoying the Christmas holidays as the guests of
Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun.

Miss Euphemus Innes has returned home,<

The Tribune.

VOL. III.

DESERONTO, ONT. FRIDAY, JAN. 8, 1886.

NO. 17.

THE TRIBUNE,

Published every Friday Morning.

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO.
(LIMITED.)

Publishers and Proprietors.

TRIBUNE OF DESERONTO.—One copy, 10.00 per year.
10 cents per six months. Sixty in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE	1 Year	6 mos.	3 mos.
Column.....	$50.00	$30.00	$15.00
Half Column.....	30.00	18.00	9.00
Quar. Column.....	20.00	12.00	6.00
One Inch.....	5.00	3.00	1.50
Business Cards, (less than one inch).....	4.00	2.50	1.75

*Wanted, Lost, Found, Strayed, etc., $1.00 each insertion, or on a contract at the rate of 17 cts. per month.

Casual advertisements 5 cents per line first insertion; each subsequent insertion 2 cts. per line.

Communications should be addressed to

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO. (LIMITED),
Deseronto, Ont.

MARRIAGE LICENCES.

T. G. FILE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENCES,
Deseronto, Ontario. 5

COAL.

FOR HOUSE USE OR BLACKSMITH SHOPS, AT lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

SALT.

BY BAR LOAD, BARREL OR BULK, AMERican or Canadian, at lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

WATER LIME.

WATER LIME, PORTLAND CEMENT, AND
Plaster Pails for sale, cheap, and full directions given how to use successfully. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN HOTEL.

JOHNSON & O'NEILL STS., KINGSTON.
This house has been refurbished and refitted throughout. Charges moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.

NOTICE.

I NEEDLEWORK ON FARM OR VILLAGE PROPERTY at low rates in Standard Stock Companies—the Royal Insurance Company and Canadian Union of England, Western, and British American of Toronto.

THE RATHBUN CO.

Agents.

O'CONNOR HOUSE.

THIS HOTEL IS ELEGANTLY FURNISHED throughout, in the latest styles. Large and convenient Sample Rooms; also every convenience and comfort. The Hotel is supplied with best imported and domestic Liquors and Cigars.
Charges moderate. First-class Library in connection
Good Yard and Stables attached.

F. O'CONNOR, Prop't.
Deseronto Ont.

QUEEN'S HOTEL.

OPPOSITE CITY HALL,
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

First-class hacks connecting with all trains. Street cars pass the door every five minutes.

2.1.y. SIBBITT & CO., Proprietors

Napanee, Tamworth

—AND—

QUEBEC RAILWAY.

NAPANEE VALLEY LINE.

TIME TABLE No. 6.

IN EFFECT MAY 15th 1885.

ASTERN STANDARD TIME.

TRAINE GOING NORTH.

STATIONS. No. 2. A.M. P.M.

STATIONS.	No. 2.	A.M.	P.M.
Naparone.....	Leave 1.00	3.15
Naparone Mills.....	1.20	5.45
Newburgh.....	1.30	5.50
Thompson's Mills.....	1.35	5.55
Camden East.....	1.40	6.00
Yarker.....	1.55	6.15
Goldsmith's Mills.....	2.00	6.30
Gairdson Road.....	2.05	6.30
Moore.....	2.10	6.30
Midlake Bridges.....	2.15	6.30
Enterprise.....	2.20	6.45
Wilson's Crossing.....	2.25	6.50
Tamworth.....	Arrive 2.50	6.50

TRAINE GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS. No. 1. P.M. A.M.

STATIONS.	No. 1.	P.M.	A.M.
Tamworth.....	Leave 1.00	3.15
Wilson's Crossing.....	7.15	3.30
Enterprise.....	7.20	3.45
Midlakes Bridge.....	7.25	3.50
Moscow.....	7.30	3.55
Goldsmith's Mills.....	7.40	3.60
Gairdson Road.....	7.45	3.65
Colbrooke.....	7.50	4.00
Yarker.....	7.55	4.05
Camden East.....	8.00	4.10
Thompson's Mills.....	8.15	4.25
Newburgh.....	8.25	4.30
Enterprise.....	8.30	4.35
Wilson's Crossing.....	8.35	4.40
Tamworth.....	Arrive 8.50	4.50

*Stop only when passengers at or for.

B.C. CARTER, H. B. BARNWOOD, E. W. BARTHOL, Ass't Gen. Mgr., Superintendent. Gen. Mktg. Co.

HOUSE FOR SALE.

A comfortable house is offered for sale on Second Street, Village of Deseronto.
For particulars apply to

JAMES ALLEN,
Deseronto, Ont.
Nov. 12-85.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

PARTIES WISHING TO HAVE LETTERS POSTED after hours will please leave them at Egar's Drug Store, Main St. Deseronto.

STOVES FOR SALE.

3 LATEST PATTERN BASE BURNER
Coal Stoves for sale very cheap.

Apply to H. C. JEFFERS,
The Rathbun Company. 11-15

BONES

WANTED AT THE CHEMICAL WORKS. The market price will be paid for same.

9 E. FRENCH.

MONEY TO LOAN AT 6 PER CENT.

$35,000.00 of Private Money.

Old Mortgages paid off. New Loans taken and Mortgages Purchased.

Apply to GIBSON & CLUTZ, Barriers, Napanee.

FOR SERVICE.

A THOROUGHBRED SUFFOLK BOAR Took 1st Prize at the Midland Fair, Kincardine, and at the leading Eastern Townships and County Fairs.

TERMS.—$1.00 to be paid at time of service.

MICHAEL KENNEDY.

11 Lot 22, 4th con. Tyendinaga

E. HARRISON.

350 Front Street, Belleville.

Keeps in Stock and makes to order short notice all classes of Account Books. General Book-binding, from the Plainest Library Slip to the Most elaborate. Cal, Gilt or Marble edge. Paper ruling, Map Mounting, Varnishing, Music Binding, Picture Framing. Improved Milk and Cheese Factory Books. Mercantile Books and intricate ruling a specialty. Prices close.

9-14

NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Watson Kirk of the Village of Deseronto has assigned his interest in the business of Royal Insurance Company and Canadian Union of England, Western, and British American of Toronto.

The assignee is Mr. Joseph Newlands Henderson of the City of Montreal in the Province of Quebec, accountant, for the general benefit of the creditors, the said Charles Watson Kirk.

D. H. PRESTON,

Solicitor for the said Trustee.

Dated this 19th day of November, 1885

FIRE INSURANCE!

We will advise those desiring Insurance that we are Agents for

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF ENGLAND;

WESTERN INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN INSURANCE COY.,
OF TORONTO, ONT.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.,
OF TORONTO, ONT.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock Company in the Dominion.

The standing of these Companies is such that it may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure with us.

Rec'd. kept at all Offices and Notices sent to us before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,

Deseronto, Ont.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE

Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's general office at Deseronto on the second Monday in February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock in the evening, for receiving the report of Directors and other general business.

F. S. RATHBUN,

Secretary.

Dec. 28th, 1885.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

of the Shareholders of the Deseronto

New Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's office at Deseronto, on Tuesday, January 2nd, 1886, at seven o'clock in the evening, for the election of Directors and other business.

Deseronto, Ont.

S. RUSSELL,

Sec'y-Treas.

Dec. 28th, 1885.

WHAT MAKES A MAN.

Not numerous years nor lengthened life,

Not pretty children nor a wife,

Not pins and chains and fancy rings,

Not any such like trumpery things;

Not pipe, cigar, nor bottled wine,

Not coat, nor boots, nor yet a hat,

A dandy, trim or tanned cravat,

Nor all the world's wealth laid in store;

Nor Master, Rev'rend, Sir, or Squire,

With a sword or a pistol in your belt,

Nor ancestry traced back to Willio. Who went from Normandy to kill;

Nor thousand volumes rambled o'er;

Nor Latin, Greek, nor Hebrew lore,

Nor crooked nose that made a royal race,

These all never cast a spell,

Aval to make a single man.

A truthful soul, a loving mind,

Fond of affection for its kind;

A spirit of justice and truth,

That never bends a knee;

That will not bend a feather's weight

That truly speaks from God with truth;

That never leaves a league;

That loves his Master, his God,

That worships God, and him alone;

And bows no more than at His throne;

And trembles at no tyrant's nod;

A soul that fears no one but God,

And thus can sing "I curse or ban-

This is the soul that makes the man.

FOR SERVICE.

THE PRINTER.

How like a son,

Ye women and men,

By courtesy styled "gentle readers,"

How much you owe

To the noble type

And his army of folders and feeders!

THE PRINTER.

The printer singing

Of his lyrical diction

Of his Muse, his Love, and his Graces;

But ah! he's sing small

If he warbled at all,

Were it not for the chases and cases.

THE PRINTING.

The writer of fiction,

Whose beautiful diction

Beguile the long evenings of winter,

His mind would be left

Like a casket bereft

Of its key—if not picked by the printer!

Then who so doth read,

I've taken him to bed

To the lessons these stanzas convey him,

Viz.—Now that you know

What a treasure you owe

To the Printer, be certain "TO PAY HIM."

DIOSCESE OF ONTARIO.

PASTORAL ADDRESS.

To the Members of the Church of England in the Diocese of Ontario.

DEAR BRETHREN:—

The Mission Board of the Diocese has requested me to write a Pastoral Letter on the subject of our subdivision of the Diocese.

It is my desire to do this, because the people of the Diocese have asked me to do this, and I have been asked to do this, and I have

AN UNEXPLAINED MYSTERY

A TALE OF CANADIAN BACKWOODS LIFE.

(CONTINUED.)

The wind rattled and banged amongst the houses of the little settlement, and then flew howling through the wilderness, like a million madmen demons bent upon the destruction of things mundane.

"My conscience!" exclaimed Mrs. Brooke, at last, "what an awful night! God forbid that any human being should lack for shelter while the tempest raged."

The words were no sooner out of her mouth than there came a heavy rap at the outer door.

"God save us all, he's come at last!" cried old Peter, running green with fright. Every one sat stupidly staring at his neighbour; no one uttered a word.

The conversation that evening had been too full of ghosts, if you please. I have something very serious and important to communicate to you, and I have waited until now to tell you that my one was out of the way before I began."

Mr. Brooke felt very uneasy. Who and what was this mysterious person? He was afraid of what he might hear.

The stranger was evidently a man of few words, and without beating about the bush, he went straight to the point.

"I am Detective North, from Bradford, and I told a white fib with it. I was most insinuating ray from the ball's eye of the small lantern, which would be expected to have no more effect upon the outer darkness than a single star, or the star of the sun, might have upon the surface of heaven; they were startled and perplexed to observe that the whole place was entirely pervaded by a sort of misty, bluish light, which seemed to emanate from no point in particular, and yet it was there, and appeared to have a faint yet easily perceptible vibration, passing up and down with varying degree of swiftness. With banished eyes the two men stood and watched the strangely play of light, momentarily expecting something unutterable to happen, they knew not what.

Redlaw, as yet, saw nothing amiss, and was working away busily, though, at his present, with a certain amount of care.

He had in and out of the house with the door closed closely against his person, Mr. Brooke stood for a moment peering out into the storm. Getting impatient at last he called out:

"Old Peter, where are you?"

But there was no response.

The only sound that could be heard was the peculiar monotonous roaring of the wind through the heavy foliage of the tall pines.

Then, shutting the door, he bolted it, and went back to his chair and sat down, without uttering a word. Old Peter found him tongue, however, and piously exclaimed:

"The Lord have mercy upon us poor miserable sinners."

All the time had quite distinctly heard the rap, and now after Mr. Brooke had demonstrated that nobody, in the flesh at any rate, was there they were completely dumbfounded. Every one had a sufficient leaven of superstition to set himself seriously.

What if Mr. Sampson were indeed absent? And what was going to happen next?

No one was therefore greatly surprised, a moment later, when a series of double raps were given on the stout door. There was a pause, and then Mr. Hart lifted up his hand immediately there was open the door once more, when a tall figure, wrapped up to the eyes, advanced into the room. He seemed to be of flesh and blood, at least at first sight, and his voice did not sound like that of a ghost. Redlaw did not stir, but his heart beat with fear.

Mr. Brooke, after recovering somewhat from his bewilderment, caused by this unexpected turn in the affair of the murder, saw that it would be better for him to comply, and so he stepped forward, being in any way concerned in detective work.

"I consent," he said, "to assist you in any way I am able, Mr. North. What do you wish me to do?"

"I wish, Mr. North," the detective answered,

"I wish to speak with you to the point of the matter. It is now half-past eleven o'clock," looking at his watch. "Redlaw will be there about twelve, and it is quite certain that he may not be alone. We must go at once and take up the most admirable position to do the best we can.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if he wishes to do so.

He need not be afraid to bring his companion along with him, if

NEW YORK LETTER.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

The "Holidays" have come and gone, and the reaction begins to be felt! The people in general have a tired look, and laisance is evident in the bearing of many. It is said that, notwithstanding the hard times, there has been a steady increase in sales for holiday gifts. The stores have been literally "packed," people standing three and four rows deep at many counters, waiting for opportunities to be wasted upon. The Christmas trade was very limited, Fourteenth street from Broadway to Sixth Avenue, and thence up to 23rd street, was lined on either side by small booths, tended by men or women of every nationality, and selling such common ware. These seemed to do a flourishing business; and through the few bitter days that passed they kept up their spirits by lustily announcing their bargains and maintaining some of the usual annual heat and vigorous pounding of themselves. The little stalls have vanished now, and will rest in oblivion until another year, when the old salesman, or more like his heir, will take up his business where he left it off last year.

We read a charming account and enjoy beautiful word pictures of the true Kaspar Christmas; but have never seen one. If, however, it is more royally provided for and more hugely enjoyed than the same day in "the States," it must be fine indeed. But we will not trespass by a description of ours.

The sale in jewelry this year rivals anything ever remembered by this generation. Mifflin, Stoddard, and others report the great success of the trade in this country in this line. It would be folly to try and enumerate these articles; but silver headed canes and umbrellas are very near heading the list since the fashionable consider their outfit incomplete without them. Though not Jerry they are installed in the stock of these large houses and so deserve mention.

The most distressing thought of the past two weeks has been the grief and agony of the bereaved families in New York. After repeated hindrance in their work, and narrow escape from death, the hope of rescuing the prisoners alive is abandoned, and the most they can do is to continue their untiring efforts, with the sole wish to shorten the time of their confinement. A complete list of the missing contains about twenty names and most of these men were married and have helpless families. The work of excavation will be continued, and there is talk of raising a monument over the spot, in memory of the victims.

Friday, January 1st, the day for the inauguration of Gov. Hill, was clear and mild and large numbers of the State militia gathered at Albany to join the procession in his honor. The Governor, in his carriage, with his staff about him, and acknowledged the cheers of the spectators by doffing his hat. He received the oath of office from Judge Wm. L. Learned, of the Supreme Court. His inaugural address was very lengthy but listened to with satisfaction. A reception followed at the Executive Chamber, for two hours, during which time, thousands of citizens paid their respects.

An accident occurred on the New Haven Railroad last week, that might have been most disastrous had it not been cleverly managed. About two o'clock in the morning, tow away the platform at the little station at Pelham, landing it across the track. About two minutes later the night express came thundering along and struck the wooden obstacle several thousand of spindling pieces in all directions. The car was thrown from the track and down a steep embankment, the baggage and mail cars following suit. The passenger cars stuck in the ground and so saved number less lives. One man only was killed, the driver of the baggage car, who was buried at cover. The signaling of the following express prevented a double catastrophe and the abhored passengers were transferred to it and brought to the city. Great blame is attached to the village authorities who allowed the train to stop, to stand. The supports were but driven into the ground over the embankment and when it gave way there was no help for it.

Dr. Fulton, of Toronto, was in town last week spending his vacation with New York friends,

READ.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

We regret to announce this week that the Rev. Father Meade has resigned his mission in Northern Ontario and is returning to the United States. The announcement we are sure will be received with universal regret throughout the Township and parts adjacent, as the Rev. gentleman was a general favorite. Father Meade has been the general favorite of the people here during the last three years, and his readiness to meet the calls of duty won the affection and approbation of all with whom he came in contact. It was reported that while engaged in his official duties, he became unable to perform his official duties, but an allwise and inscrutable Providence has ordered otherwise. We trust that with continued rest, he may, in time recover his health. In his retirement the best wishes of all fail to follow him with their earnest prayers for his temporary and spiritual welfare.

Monday last was election day and was the wettest day for this part of the year with the exception of the older inhabitants. Owing to the weather and state of the roads a small vote was polled in some wards. At the time of writing the returns have not been received, but Mr. Hanley and Mr. Milligan have been elected as Reeve and second Deputy Reeve by handsome majorities.

Miss Kate O'Sullivan has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 17, as successor to Miss Whine. She is trusted and popular, especially to the section of the service of Miss Whine who was a most successful teacher and a general favorite with all.

Miss Anna White has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 18.

Miss Maggie O'Sullivan has been re-engaged as teacher in the school on the 7th occasion.

Miss Julia Black has been appointed teacher at Blacks School House on the 8th occasion.

A most successful shooting match for geese and turkeys took place at Mr. Alex. Frazer's 4th con., on the 30th ult. Fifty persons were present, all of whom took part in the contest. The first bull's eye was taken by Mr. J. Meagher, the second by Mr. John Robinson, and the third and last by Mr. Charles Mowson. It was a most successful meeting representing business from Read, Melrose and Bachelor's Walk.

It was refreshing to see the ladies turn out to vote last Monday notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. There was a large number of them and they stood to their heart's content.

DEMOCRATVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The silver wedding at the parsonage on New Year's night was a very enjoyable affair, and a hearty shout down the bountiful repast provided by the ladies of the circuit, and spread in the Town Hall. After the tables were cleared and some speech making in honor of the bridegroom, addressed to the parsonage, where a very pleasant social evening was spent. N. Wood Esq. acted as chairman for the occasion, and the several members of the gentlemen and ladies' committee did every thing in their power to provide for the payment of expenses.

Mrs. Mrs. Day, and Mrs. Alf. Hunter from Kingston, were on a visit to the parsonage.

Mrs. Jane Redman of Redmersville and Mr. & Mrs. John Robins of Ameliasburg, and Mr. & Mrs. D. Hunter, of Brighton have also been guests at the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, of Bloomfield, will preach missionary sermons on this circuit next month.

The people of the Bethel Church neighborhood are preparing for a first class Festival on Thursday the 21st inst. The musical programme will be provided by the Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Deseronto.

COMMUNICATIONS.

GRATEFUL TESTIMONY.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

DEAR SIR.—Please allow me space in your columns for a few words. I desire particularly that my name be withheld, as I do not wish to be known. I have, since this time I have been treated by many eminent physicians. Having heard of Dr. F. Yones, of Deseronto, I came under his treatment in September last. I can now say that I am enjoying better health than I have for the past five years. I cannot afford too much praise to Mr. Yones for his successful treatment.

MRS. LYMAN COLE,
Watertown, N. Y.

Dec. '85.

A HANDSOME TRIBUTE.

HYDE PARK, CRUMWOLD FARM, DUTCHESS CO., NEW YORK.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

DEAR SIR.—I feel that I am still with you; there are so many of your people here that I cannot afford to be known. I desire particularly that your people who are with me are so worthy that I feel what an honor it was to have known you all. I cannot find words to tell you fully how much credit belongs to your Canadian sons for their great industry, steadieness, and constancy. They have labored hard and done a great deal to stand. The supports were but driven into the ground over the embankment and when it gave way there was no help for it.

Dr. Fulton, of Toronto, was in town last week spending his vacation with New York friends,

DEAR READ.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

We regret to announce this week that the Rev. Father Meade has resigned his mission in Northern Ontario and is returning to the United States. The announcement we are sure will be received with universal regret throughout the Township and parts adjacent, as the Rev. gentleman was a general favorite. Father Meade has been the general favorite of the people here during the last three years, and his readiness to meet the calls of duty won the affection and approbation of all with whom he came in contact. It was reported that while engaged in his official duties, he became unable to perform his official duties, but an allwise and inscrutable Providence has ordered otherwise. We trust that with continued rest, he may, in time recover his health. In his retirement the best wishes of all fail to follow him with their earnest prayers for his temporary and spiritual welfare.

Monday last was election day and was the wettest day for this part of the year with the exception of the older inhabitants. Owing to the weather and state of the roads a small vote was polled in some wards. At the time of writing the returns have not been received, but Mr. Hanley and Mr. Milligan have been elected as Reeve and second Deputy Reeve by handsome majorities.

Miss Kate O'Sullivan has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 17, as successor to Miss Whine. She is trusted and popular, especially to the section of the service of Miss Whine who was a most successful teacher and a general favorite with all.

Miss Anna White has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 18.

Miss Maggie O'Sullivan has been re-engaged as teacher in the school on the 7th occasion.

Miss Julia Black has been appointed teacher at Blacks School House on the 8th occasion.

A most successful shooting match for geese and turkeys took place at Mr. Alex. Frazer's 4th con., on the 30th ult. Fifty persons were present, all of whom took part in the contest. The first bull's eye was taken by Mr. J. Meagher, the second by Mr. John Robinson, and the third and last by Mr. Charles Mowson. It was a most successful meeting representing business from Read, Melrose and Bachelor's Walk.

It was refreshing to see the ladies turn out to vote last Monday notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. There was a large number of them and they stood to their heart's content.

Mr. Cornelius Campbell, of Tweed, is visiting many friends in this section. We are always glad to know when the "Tweedy" comes.

A most successful social and reunion took place in Hanley's Hall on Friday evening.

The music was excellent, and the votaries of Terpsichore enjoyed the many dance to their heart's content.

UNDERTAKING.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The silver wedding at the parsonage on New Year's night was a very enjoyable affair, and a hearty shout down the bountiful repast provided by the ladies of the circuit, and spread in the Town Hall. After the tables were cleared and some speech making in honor of the bridegroom, addressed to the parsonage, where a very pleasant social evening was spent. N. Wood Esq. acted as chairman for the occasion, and the several members of the gentlemen and ladies' committee did every thing in their power to provide for the payment of expenses.

Mrs. Mrs. Day, and Mrs. Alf. Hunter from Kingston, were on a visit to the parsonage.

Mrs. Jane Redman of Redmersville and Mr. & Mrs. John Robins of Ameliasburg, and Mr. & Mrs. D. Hunter, of Brighton have also been guests at the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, of Bloomfield, will preach missionary sermons on this circuit next month.

The people of the Bethel Church neighborhood are preparing for a first class Festival on Thursday the 21st inst. The musical programme will be provided by the Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Deseronto.

COMMUNICATIONS.

GRATEFUL TESTIMONY.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

DEAR SIR.—Please allow me space in your columns for a few words. I desire particularly that my name be withheld. As I do not wish to be known. I have, since this time I have been treated by many eminent physicians. Having heard of Dr. F. Yones, of Deseronto, I came under his treatment in September last. I can now say that I am enjoying better health than I have for the past five years. I cannot afford too much praise to Mr. Yones for his successful treatment.

MRS. LYMAN COLE,
Watertown, N. Y.

Dec. '85.

A HANDSOME TRIBUTE.

HYDE PARK, CRUMWOLD FARM, DUTCHESS CO., NEW YORK.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

DEAR SIR.—I feel that I am still with you; there are so many of your people here that I cannot afford to be known. I desire particularly that your people who are with me are so worthy that I feel what an honor it was to have known you all. I cannot find words to tell you fully how much credit belongs to your Canadian sons for their great industry, steadieness, and constancy. They have labored hard and done a great deal to stand. The supports were but driven into the ground over the embankment and when it gave way there was no help for it.

Dr. Fulton, of Toronto, was in town last week spending his vacation with New York friends,

DEAR READ.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

We regret to announce this week that the Rev. Father Meade has resigned his mission in Northern Ontario and is returning to the United States. The announcement we are sure will be received with universal regret throughout the Township and parts adjacent, as the Rev. gentleman was a general favorite. Father Meade has been the general favorite of the people here during the last three years, and his readiness to meet the calls of duty won the affection and approbation of all with whom he came in contact. It was reported that while engaged in his official duties, he became unable to perform his official duties, but an allwise and inscrutable Providence has ordered otherwise. We trust that with continued rest, he may, in time recover his health. In his retirement the best wishes of all fail to follow him with their earnest prayers for his temporary and spiritual welfare.

Monday last was election day and was the wettest day for this part of the year with the exception of the older inhabitants. Owing to the weather and state of the roads a small vote was polled in some wards. At the time of writing the returns have not been received, but Mr. Hanley and Mr. Milligan have been elected as Reeve and second Deputy Reeve by handsome majorities.

Miss Kate O'Sullivan has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 17, as successor to Miss Whine. She is trusted and popular, especially to the section of the service of Miss Whine who was a most successful teacher and a general favorite with all.

Miss Anna White has been appointed teacher in School Section No. 18.

Miss Maggie O'Sullivan has been re-engaged as teacher in the school on the 7th occasion.

Miss Julia Black has been appointed teacher at Blacks School House on the 8th occasion.

A most successful shooting match for geese and turkeys took place at Mr. Alex. Frazer's 4th con., on the 30th ult. Fifty fall when you can judge for yourself. In conclusion I wish you a Happy New Year and prosperous New Year. The Tribune by its thorough independent and painstaking course deserves unlimited success and I heartily wish it such.

Very Truly Yours,
D. E. HOWART.
Dec. 24th '85.

AN AGE OF DISCOVERY.

We certainly ought to appreciate the fact that we are living in an age of progress and discovery, that is especially apparent to all persons that have been afflicted with Rheumatism, as West World's Wonder or Family Liniment is a positive cure for Rheumatism. It is invaluable for Cuts, Sprains, Bruises, Tumors, Scalds and all diseases requiring external application. Sold by G. W. Edgar, druggist. Price 25 cents and 50 cents per bottle.

UNDERTAKING.

JOHN DALTON,
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
KEEPING CONSTANTLY IN STOCK
COFFINS AND CASKETS
of all kinds, from the cheapest to the most expensive.

Burial Robes, BLACK, BROWN and WHITE, at all prices, and all other furnishings usually found in an Undertaker's Establishment.

Mourning Badges & Hearse supplied.
Deseronto, Oct. 23rd, 1885.

BAY OF QUINTE
Railway & Navigation Company.

CHANGE OF TIME.

THE TRAINS OF THIS ROAD MAKE
sure connection with all G. T. R. trains both East and West, and with Steamers of the Deseronto Navigation Company for all
Bay and River ports.

1885. TIME TABLE. 1885.

DESERONTO & GRAND TRUNK LINE.
BAY OF QUINTE RAILWAY.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS REPT. WHEN ARRIVED FROM PREV. STATION.
NO. 1 NO. 2 NO. 3 NO. 4 NO. 5 NO. 6 NO. 7 NO. 8 NO. 9 NO. 10 NO. 11 NO. 12 NO. 13 NO. 14 NO. 15 NO. 16 NO. 17 NO. 18 NO. 19 NO. 20 NO. 21 NO. 22 NO. 23 NO. 24 NO. 25 NO. 26 NO. 27 NO. 28 NO. 29 NO. 30 NO. 31 NO. 32 NO. 33 NO. 34 NO. 35 NO. 36 NO. 37 NO. 38 NO. 39 NO. 40 NO. 41 NO. 42 NO. 43 NO. 44 NO. 45 NO. 46 NO. 47 NO. 48 NO. 49 NO. 50 NO. 51 NO. 52 NO. 53 NO. 54 NO. 55 NO. 56 NO. 57 NO. 58 NO. 59 NO. 60 NO. 61 NO. 62 NO. 63 NO. 64 NO. 65 NO. 66 NO. 67 NO. 68 NO. 69 NO. 70 NO. 71 NO. 72 NO. 73 NO. 74 NO. 75 NO. 76 NO. 77 NO. 78 NO. 79 NO. 80 NO. 81 NO. 82 NO. 83 NO. 84 NO. 85 NO. 86 NO. 87 NO. 88 NO. 89 NO. 90 NO. 91 NO. 92 NO. 93 NO. 94 NO. 95 NO. 96 NO. 97 NO. 98 NO. 99 NO. 100 NO. 101 NO. 102 NO. 103 NO. 104 NO. 105 NO. 106 NO. 107 NO. 108 NO. 109 NO. 110 NO. 111 NO. 112 NO. 113 NO. 114 NO. 115 NO. 116 NO. 117 NO. 118 NO. 119 NO. 120 NO. 121 NO. 122 NO. 123 NO. 124 NO. 125 NO. 126 NO. 127 NO. 128 NO. 129 NO. 130 NO. 131 NO. 132 NO. 133 NO. 134 NO. 135 NO. 136 NO. 137 NO. 138 NO. 139 NO. 140 NO. 141 NO. 142 NO. 143 NO. 144 NO. 145 NO. 146 NO. 147 NO. 148 NO. 149 NO. 150 NO. 151 NO. 152 NO. 153 NO. 154 NO. 155 NO. 156 NO. 157 NO. 158 NO. 159 NO. 160 NO. 161 NO. 162 NO. 163 NO. 164 NO. 165 NO. 166 NO. 167 NO. 168 NO. 169 NO. 170 NO. 171 NO. 172 NO. 173 NO. 174 NO. 175 NO. 176 NO. 177 NO. 178 NO. 179 NO. 180 NO. 181 NO. 182 NO. 183 NO. 184 NO. 185 NO. 186 NO. 187 NO. 188 NO. 189 NO. 190 NO. 191 NO. 192 NO. 193 NO. 194 NO. 195 NO. 196 NO. 197 NO. 198 NO. 199 NO. 200 NO. 201 NO. 202 NO. 203 NO. 204 NO. 205 NO. 206 NO. 207 NO. 208 NO. 209 NO. 210 NO. 211 NO. 212 NO. 213 NO. 214 NO. 215 NO. 216 NO. 217 NO. 218 NO. 219 NO. 220 NO. 221 NO. 222 NO. 223 NO. 224 NO. 225 NO. 226 NO. 227 NO. 228 NO. 229 NO. 230 NO. 231 NO. 232 NO. 233 NO. 234 NO. 235 NO. 236 NO. 237 NO. 238 NO. 239 NO. 240 NO. 241 NO. 242 NO. 243 NO. 244 NO. 245 NO. 246 NO. 247 NO. 248 NO. 249 NO. 250 NO. 251 NO. 252 NO. 253 NO. 254 NO. 255 NO. 256 NO. 257 NO. 258 NO. 259 NO. 260 NO. 261 NO. 262 NO. 263 NO. 264 NO. 265 NO. 266 NO. 267 NO. 268 NO. 269 NO. 270 NO. 271 NO. 272 NO. 273 NO. 274 NO. 275 NO. 276 NO. 277 NO. 278 NO. 279 NO. 280 NO. 281 NO. 282 NO. 283 NO. 284 NO. 285 NO. 286 NO. 287 NO. 288 NO. 289 NO. 290 NO. 291 NO. 292 NO. 293 NO. 294 NO. 295 NO. 296 NO. 297 NO. 298 NO. 299 NO. 300 NO. 301 NO. 302 NO. 303 NO. 304 NO. 305 NO. 306 NO. 307 NO. 308 NO. 309 NO. 310 NO. 311 NO. 312 NO. 313 NO. 314 NO. 315 NO. 316 NO. 317 NO. 318 NO. 319 NO. 320 NO. 321 NO. 322 NO. 323 NO. 324 NO. 325 NO. 326 NO. 327 NO. 328 NO. 329 NO. 330 NO. 331 NO. 332 NO. 333 NO. 334 NO. 335 NO. 336 NO. 337 NO. 338 NO. 339 NO. 340 NO. 341 NO. 342 NO. 343 NO. 344 NO. 345 NO. 346 NO. 347 NO. 348 NO. 349 NO. 350 NO. 351 NO. 352 NO. 353 NO. 354 NO. 355 NO. 356 NO. 357 NO. 358 NO. 359 NO. 360 NO. 361 NO. 362 NO. 363 NO. 364 NO. 365 NO. 366 NO. 367 NO. 368 NO. 369 NO. 370 NO. 371 NO. 372 NO. 373 NO. 374 NO. 375 NO. 376 NO. 377 NO. 378 NO. 379 NO. 380 NO. 381 NO. 382 NO. 383 NO. 384 NO. 385 NO. 386 NO. 387 NO. 388 NO. 389 NO. 390 NO. 391 NO. 392 NO. 393 NO. 394 NO. 395 NO. 396 NO. 397 NO. 398 NO. 399 NO. 400 NO. 401 NO. 402 NO. 403 NO. 404 NO. 405 NO. 406 NO. 407 NO. 408 NO. 409 NO. 410 NO. 411 NO. 412 NO. 413 NO. 414 NO. 415 NO. 416 NO. 417 NO. 418 NO. 419 NO. 420 NO. 421 NO. 422 NO. 423 NO. 424 NO. 425 NO. 426 NO. 427 NO. 428 NO. 429 NO. 430 NO. 431 NO. 432 NO. 433 NO. 434 NO. 435 NO. 436 NO. 437 NO. 438 NO. 439 NO. 440 NO. 441 NO. 442 NO. 443 NO. 444 NO. 445 NO. 446 NO. 447 NO. 448 NO. 449 NO. 450 NO. 451 NO. 452 NO. 453 NO. 454 NO. 455 NO. 456 NO. 457 NO. 458 NO. 459 NO. 460 NO. 461 NO. 462 NO. 463 NO. 464 NO. 465 NO. 466 NO. 467 NO. 468 NO. 469 NO. 470 NO. 471 NO. 472 NO. 473 NO. 474 NO. 475 NO. 476 NO. 477 NO. 478 NO. 479 NO. 480 NO. 481 NO. 482 NO. 483 NO. 484 NO. 485 NO. 486 NO. 487 NO. 488 NO. 489 NO. 490 NO. 491 NO. 492 NO. 493 NO. 494 NO. 495 NO. 496 NO. 497 NO. 498 NO. 499 NO. 500 NO. 501 NO. 502 NO. 503 NO. 504 NO. 505 NO. 506 NO. 507 NO. 508 NO. 509 NO. 510 NO. 511 NO. 512 NO. 513 NO. 514 NO. 515 NO. 516 NO. 517 NO. 518 NO. 519 NO. 520 NO. 521 NO. 522 NO. 523 NO. 524 NO. 525 NO. 526 NO. 527 NO. 528 NO. 529 NO. 530 NO. 531 NO. 532 NO. 533 NO. 534 NO. 535 NO. 536 NO. 537 NO. 538 NO. 539 NO. 540 NO. 541 NO. 542 NO. 543 NO. 544 NO. 545 NO. 546 NO. 547 NO. 548 NO. 549 NO. 550 NO. 551 NO. 552 NO. 553 NO. 554 NO. 555 NO. 556 NO. 557 NO. 558 NO. 559 NO. 560 NO. 561 NO. 562 NO. 563 NO. 564 NO. 565 NO. 566 NO. 567 NO. 568 NO. 569 NO. 570 NO. 571 NO. 572 NO. 573 NO. 574 NO. 575 NO. 576 NO. 577 NO. 578 NO. 579 NO. 580 NO. 581 NO. 582 NO. 583 NO. 584 NO. 585 NO. 586 NO. 587 NO. 588 NO. 589 NO. 590 NO. 591 NO. 592 NO. 593 NO. 594 NO. 595 NO. 596 NO. 597 NO. 598 NO. 599 NO. 600 NO. 601 NO. 602 NO. 603 NO. 604 NO. 605 NO. 606 NO. 607 NO. 608 NO. 609 NO. 610 NO. 611 NO. 612 NO. 613 NO. 614 NO. 615 NO. 616 NO. 617 NO. 618 NO. 619 NO. 620 NO. 621 NO. 622 NO. 623 NO. 624 NO. 625 NO. 626 NO. 627 NO. 628 NO. 629 NO. 630 NO. 631 NO. 632 NO. 633 NO. 634 NO. 635 NO. 636 NO. 637 NO. 638 NO. 639 NO. 640 NO. 641 NO. 642 NO. 643 NO. 644 NO. 645 NO. 646 NO. 647 NO. 648 NO. 649 NO. 650 NO. 651 NO. 652 NO. 653 NO. 654 NO. 655 NO. 656 NO. 657 NO. 658 NO. 659 NO. 660 NO. 661 NO. 662 NO. 663 NO. 664 NO. 665 NO. 666 NO. 667 NO. 668 NO. 669 NO. 670 NO. 671 NO. 672 NO. 673 NO. 674 NO. 675 NO. 676 NO. 677 NO. 678 NO. 679 NO. 680 NO. 681 NO. 682 NO. 683 NO. 684 NO. 685 NO. 686 NO. 687 NO. 688 NO. 689 NO. 690 NO. 691 NO. 692 NO. 693 NO. 694 NO. 695 NO. 696 NO. 697 NO. 698 NO. 699 NO. 700 NO. 701 NO. 702 NO. 703 NO. 704 NO. 705 NO. 706 NO. 707 NO. 708 NO. 709 NO. 710 NO. 711 NO. 712 NO. 713 NO. 714 NO. 715 NO. 716 NO. 717 NO. 718 NO. 719 NO. 720 NO. 721 NO. 722 NO. 723 NO. 724 NO. 725 NO. 726 NO. 727 NO. 728 NO. 729 NO. 730 NO. 731 NO. 732 NO. 733 NO. 734 NO. 735 NO. 736 NO. 737 NO. 738 NO. 739 NO. 740 NO. 741 NO. 742 NO. 743 NO. 744 NO. 745 NO. 746 NO. 747 NO. 748 NO. 749 NO. 750 NO. 751 NO. 752 NO. 753 NO. 754 NO. 755 NO. 756 NO. 757 NO. 758 NO. 759 NO. 760 NO. 761 NO. 762 NO. 763 NO. 764 NO. 765 NO. 766 NO. 767 NO. 768 NO. 769 NO. 770 NO. 771 NO. 772 NO. 773 NO. 774 NO. 775 NO. 776 NO. 777 NO. 778 NO. 779 NO. 780 NO. 781 NO. 782 NO. 783 NO. 784 NO. 785 NO. 786 NO. 787 NO. 788 NO. 789 NO. 7

Mollie's Burglar.

Mary Wilson had passed the first 17 years of her life in a comfortable cottage; then she went to live with her brother, whom she often used to visit to see him and his attractions so that all six months passed away and the time of her return to country life was at last reluctantly postponed. For two years she grieved over her brother's case, and friends had vied with each other in telling her tales of the cunning, wickedness, and subtlety of city sharpers, pickpockets, and scoundrels, until she became so fixed in her mind that she was going into a line of thieves; but as yet she had met with no adventure worthy of note, and was fast reaching the time when she would be more than half out of her country neighborhood when something occurred which caused her, for a short time at least, to change her mind. But of this more anon.

She was still heart whole, although she had been sought by several very eligible suitors, but her brother, who was a good-looking fellow, was a pretty girl, very desirable for her own sweet sake, but still more so as Mary Wilson, sister of the wealthy Lawyer Wilson. And this was the reason why Mollie Sabbe had changed to see stronger in the person of adjoining her brother's, and could not help seeing that the stranger was regarding her with admiring eyes, very handsome as she were, but still more so as Mary Wilson, sister of the wealthy Lawyer Wilson. And this was the reason why Mollie Sabbe had changed to see stronger in the person of adjoining her brother's, and could not help seeing that the stranger was regarding her with admiring eyes, very handsome as she were, but still more so as Mary Wilson, sister of the wealthy Lawyer Wilson.

On Monday evening, when the burglar had taken and invited his wife and sister to attend a lecture, and Miss Mollie caught herself wondering, as she donned her cloak and hat, if the dark-eyed gentleman would be there, and if he would look for her. She found the lecture dull enough, and did not dare to think of returning home. She whispered this intention to her brother, who saw her to his carriage, and, giving instructions to the coachman, to return for them, he went back to his wife, while Miss Mollie was left alone in the homely parlour. Arrived there, she laid him in the hall and ran lightly up the stairs to her room. The door was partly open, although she was sure she had closed it, the gas was now low, and the window was dark, and the half-light she saw, before she reached the doorway, a man in the room. His back was toward her, and he was walking toward a large closet at the other side of the apartment. He opened the door and stepped inside, and she heard him close it. Arrived there, she ran swiftly across the room, her feet making little or no sound on the thick carpet. "Confound it!" she heard him mutter, "why can't they leave things where a feller can find 'em?" Yes, she thought, "I'm finding 'em all right—correct; it was a burglar." Like a flash she threw herself against the door and turned the key. She was terribly frightened, and felt quite sure that she should faint. But a man's power made no demonstration beyond trying to make gently her feeling soon wore off. She turned on the gas, drew a chair in front of the closet door, where she sat down to consider what it was best to do. If he called the servants they would be frightened, and there would be noise and confusion, and perhaps he would get away. If she went down after a policeman, he might get out while she was gone; no, she would stay where she was and keep guard until her brother should return. She had a few moments of indecision, but very quickly, too, and the more she thought of the braver and more jubilant she grew. She wished he would speak; she was anxious to know how he felt about the situation. Presently he did speak; he had a very pleasant voice, and tried the door again and asked: "Who locked that door?"

"And she answered promptly, "I did."

"What for?"

"Why, to look you in there, of course, and I don't intend that you shall get away, either."

There was a silence for a minute or two; then the prisoner remarked: "Don't you think this place has gone about far enough, Mollie? dear? Now let me out."

"Oh, you wretch, you villain! How dare you to say that?"

"How dare I what?"

"'Cause it was my sister, by Jove!" he said, in a low tone. Then he bent down and took a look at the keyhole.

This was what he saw: A great, pale, thin figure, robed in soft, clinging material; a bright, self-reliant face, fringed with masses of fluffy brown hair. It took him some time to take these observations, for the keyhole was so small that he could see but a part of the pretty picture at once. Then he remarked: "I think, miss, there is some mistake."

"Oh, yes, I suppose so," sarcastically.

"I suppose I can't get to the wrong house."

"I think you did."

"Isn't this No. 4?"

"No, indeed; it is No. 2."

"Well, I stop at No. 4; come there on Saturday to visit my sister, Mollie Brown. The house must be just alike. I went to the lecture and found it dull, so came home, or thought I did."

"Humph, a likely story."

"I suppose you may think it acceptable," remarked the young man, who occasionally dabbled in literature. The comical side of the affair forced itself upon him, and he laughed—actually laughed; he heard him.

You seem to enjoy the situation," she said, somewhat apologetically, thinking it proof of his total depravity.

"I do, immensely."

"I should think you would, with the galloping horse in the face."

"The galloping horse."

"Yes, my brother will have you hanged."

"Your brother? that doubtfully and hesitatingly. "Are you Billie Clark?"

"No, sir, I am not," very energically said Billie Clark. "Billie Clark's estate and Mrs. Brown's networth on the other side—was what Mollie Wilson always designated as 'a die-away sort of parson,' and was her especial delectation."

"I think you're right," said the prisoner, a relieved look on his face.

"Why?" with evident interest.

"Well, you know," confidentially, "I shan't want her to capture me."

"I don't think not. You need not fear, she never will try."

"A moment's silence, then:

"Don't you think it cruel to keep a felon being shut up in the dark so long?"

"London Times."

"A burglar isn't a fellow-being; he is just a—a—burglar."

"A burglar! whew! Do you think I could put one of my cards through this key-hole?"

"I am sure I don't know."

"May I try?"

"Yes."

Then came a jingling of silver money and a rattling of coins as the man searched his pockets. "Well, hang it all, I haven't got one!"

"I thought you had not."

"I was in the breast-pocket of my coat. I left it in your hall; will you not go down and get one?"

"And have you come out and murder me while I am gone? Not a soul?"

"With pleasure, if you like me out."

"No, sir; never."

"What, never?"

"Well, not smiling in spite of herself."

"I suppose I could kick the door open. Well, there, there, don't be frightened; I will not kick or try to get out."

Then came a rattling, as though he meant to feel a hand domineering over his prisoner, and debating whether she had not better call a policeman, when he heard her brother and his wife in the hall below.

"Harry," she called, from the head of the stairs, "come up here at once."

"Harry came, "What is it, sis?"

"I've got a man shut in that closet. I think he is a burglar, but he says he isn't and I don't know what to tell him."

"How did you know he was in there?"

"Well, I came up the stairs and I ran and looked him in the eye."

"You are who?"

"Charles Kingsley, visiting my sister at No. 4, next door, I presume—left my hat and coat in your hall. You will find letters in your hall. I think he is a burglar."

"I suppose he is a burglar," said Harry.

"Charles Kingsley called at my office door with Brown." Then to Mollie: "It is all right, sis; burglars do not leave their marks behind them."

"You may come in," said Harry, opening the door. And Mr. Kingsley advanced into the lighted room, and looked quizzically at his jailer. She gave one glance at the laughing boyish eyes beamed upon her and the gentle smile she had seen in church.

"Ah, you are Mr. Wilson," said Kingsley, in a pleasant tone, as that gentleman held out his hand. "I hope you will pardon me for entering your house in this manner."

"You may come in," said Harry.

"What fish have they been caught together?"

The reply, "The smallest."

Then the fifth found the Jew so strong on the Bible, he tried another point:

"Who prolongs his work to a great length?"

"A carpenter," said Harry.

"And the carpenter, like an industrious," said the Jew.

They approached the village of Bamblach.

The four ones asked, "In what month do the inhabitants of Bamblach eat the least?"

The reply, "In February, for that has only 28 days."

"The fifth said, There are two natural brothers, and only one is of my uncle's."

The Jew said, "The uncle is your father's brother, and your father is not your uncle."

"A fisherman," said Harry, and the fifth asked,

"What fish have they been caught together?"

The reply, "The smallest."

The sixth was the last. This one asked,

"How can five persons divide five eggs so that each man shall receive one, and still have one egg left?"

The reply, "Break the egg."

"The last has just taken the dish with the egg."

But now it came to his turn, and the Jew determined to make a good sweep. After many preliminaries he paid him with an air of melancholy friendliness.

"I have given you a lesson in geometry, and now a trout may lay in each pan."

No one could answer this, and one after another gave him a 12-kreutzer piece. But when the ninth desired that he should answer himself, he frankly acknowledged that the trout could not be fried in that water!

Then it was affirmed that this was unfair in the Jew; but he stoutly maintained that there was no provision for it in the agreement, save that he could not answer the question in the language of the kreuzers, and fulfilled the agreement by paying that sum to the ninth of his comrades, who had asked to serve it to himself.

The travellers all being rich merchants and grateful for the amusement, laughed heartily over their loss and the Jew's cunning.

The invitation so cordially given was accepted.

Six weeks from the date of his incarceration in the Wilson mansion he entered the hotel, and was soon seated at table with the Hereditary Prince of Monaco, whom he himself present at the meeting, with the object of determining the course of the current of the Gulf Stream. The received belief is that after passing the Azores it flows in a northward direction, bordering on Europe by one side and the northern countries of Europe by the other.

"The Prince took several hundred floats to test the current, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that they had not been recovered.

"The Prince was greatly annoyed at this result, and, calling in the direction of the hotel, he directed that they be sent into the ocean, allowing an interval of nine miles or two between them.

At the end of nine days he was told that

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO.
(LIMITED.)

OUR JOBBING DEPARTMENT

is replete with an abundant supply of new type and printing material. We are therefore in a position to execute fine Job Printing in all its branches in first class style and at rates to suit you. Send us what you can think up for a trial. Both they and their children are thus made to suffer for what is obviously false economy. Especially is this true of the local paper which should be a matter of common pride to every community.

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, JAN. 8, 1886.

LOCAL ITEMS.

That Fourth-st drain is evidently destin-ed to figure extensively in the public mind.

Mr. Joseph Hopps entertained a large party of his young friends to a birthday party on the 30th ult.

Mr. WASHINGTON LOVELESS has sold his house and lot to Mr. John D. Smith, the price being $1,000 cash.

Messengers of the Central Office staff are reported to have made giddy fortunes by investments in the wares of the Canada Tea Company.

The new turntable recently built by Mr. Wm. Mitchell at Deseronto Junction promises a complete success being easily worked by one man.

The Mutual Improvement Association of the Church of the Redeemer had a meeting to-night in the lecture room of the Church. A full attendance is requested.

Mr. R. H. Baker during his recent visit to Houghton saw a turkey displayed for sale which weighed 35 pounds. Can Tyndelinga or Sapphoisburg produce a bird of such dimensions?

The annual congregational meeting of the Church of the Redeemer was held last night when different reports were received and the usual business incident to such occasions transacted.

The ladies of the Roman Catholic con-gregation in Napanee presented their popular pastor, Rev. Father McDonough, with a handsome cutter and a pair of beautiful buffalo robes as a New Year's gift.

An auction sale of farm stock and implements will take place on Wednesday 27th inst. in the residence of Mr. John R. Smith, Indian Woods. It will afford an excellent chance for good bargains. Remember the date.

There were registered with R. N. Irvine, Registrar for Deseronto, for the half-year ending Dec. 31st.—births 48, marriages 9; deaths 12. The total registrations for the year 1885 were 100 births; 10 marriages; and 15 deaths.

The defeated candidates do not appear to be much cast down. Mr. Irvine had to carry all the sins of the old council, and under the circumstances made a gallant fight. As for Mr. Gault he should feel flattered over the large vote he polled on this his first appearance before the electors.

It is believed that when the only bachelor candidate nominated had retired from the contest that the female voters had lost all interest in the recent campaign. The election enthusiasm was however contagious and all the lady voters except one went to the polls and voted for the candidates of their choice.

On Christmas evening the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Deseronto School day school enjoyed a pleasant time in the residence of Mrs. Foote. There was a Christmas tree with appropriate gifts for the children. The children also showed their good-will with a teacher by presenting Miss Foote with a handsome present.

MESSES. James Burgess, Wm. Baker, Solomon Hough, and Melvin Brown, who have for some time been engaged in building operations for Mr. D. E. Howett, of Hyde Park, Duchesne Co., N. Y., have been enjoying their Christmas holidays in Deseronto. They return to Hyde Park in a day or two to complete their work at that place.

Mr. C. Witte, who has opened photographic rooms in Smith's block, has, we regret to state, been quite ill during the past week but is now improving rapidly and will therefore be open in a few days when he will be prepared to attend to all visitors. He is ready to guarantee complete satisfaction to all customers.

EVERYTHING at Bay View Farm present a neat trim appearance—thanks to Mr. A. L. Anderson, who came out with him to help. He has cleared out his pile of stones and disfigured one of the fields and has removed the fallen trees in the wood at the rear of the farm. The new ditches are found very useful in carrying off the water.

Mr. G. S. Wakeford, formerly manager of the telegraph office in this town, but now a member of the C. P. R., despatching st. in Toronto, has been quite ill during the past week but is now improving rapidly and will be well before a few days when he will be prepared to attend to all visitors. He is ready to guarantee complete satisfaction to all customers.

EVERYTHING at Bay View Farm present a neat trim appearance—thanks to Mr. A. L. Anderson, who came out with him to help. He has cleared out his pile of stones and disfigured one of the fields and has removed the fallen trees in the wood at the rear of the farm. The new ditches are found very useful in carrying off the water.

A CHESTERMAN ordering a copy of THE TRIBUNE for a friend in England was surprised to find that it cost only one dollar a year to send it to that country, or just the same as to send it to any part of Canada. It is well to take advantage of this fact. No more acceptable gift could be sent your old friends in the mother country than a good journal like THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Peter McLaren writing from Castlewood, Dakota, to renew his subscription to THE TRIBUNE states that they are enjoying life rather far from home, with but little snow. They had been in the middle of September. The crops are good but prices are low and farmers are holding back for better prices. He wishes all the readers of THE TRIBUNE a happy new year.

An exchange says that at this season of the year people are wont to consider what little economies they can effect and to strike off this and that article from the list of necessities for the winter. Some are only too apt to let go the necessities, however, which they can think can be dispensed with for a time. Both they and their children are thus made to suffer for what is obviously false economy. Especially is this true of the local paper which should be a matter of common pride to every community.

We are indebted to Rev. I. O. Mallory for late Chicago papers.

Mr. H. E. Howell, has received his law office to his old student, Main street.

CALAMITY EAST Club is the name of a new organization started at that institution.

The Belleville Philharmonic Society will hold their first concert on the 20th of January.

Mr. Thom. Pigden is at Malone this winter, having come to him and ties for the Rathen Company.

The water is very high in the drowned lands along the N. T. & Q. Ry. in many places covering the track and washouts are feared.

The Ontario Government have appointed Mr. John Lowe Ferguson as Bailiff of the Division Court of Deseronto, No. 7, County of Hastings.

A change of councillors does not mean, as many suppose, an abrogation of the snow by-laws. The board walls are not yet satisfied off.

The big thaw broke up the ice for several miles above the town and the ferry boats were running for a few days, something unusual for January.

Mr. Ed. Wilson's arrangement for the demolition of the bridge and posts for the Bathurst Co. along the bay shore, at Wellington and along the N. T. & Q. Ry. line.

Firman Abrams of the Gananoque branch was badly scalded the other day by the blowing out of a plug on the locomotive. His wife is taken by Mr. Brown, formerly of this line.

Mr. J. C. Hanley has been again elected Reeve of Tyndelinga by a large majority. Mr. Hanley takes a prominent position in the community and is a man of whom municipal matters being generally recognized.

The Bridge Street Church in Belleville, one of the finest edifices in Canada, was completely destroyed by fire on Wednesday afternoon. Part of the Dafoe House immediately adjoining it, was also consumed.

NEW YEARS day was generally observed by the citizens of Deseronto, there were shooting matches and other amusements, but skating proved the great attraction. Ice-boats could be seen skimming along the bay with great velocity.

A lady, possibly a female voter, asks if it is within the power of the council to prohibit a law prohibiting the practice of smoking while in the presence of others, other places of assembly. Here is a new field for municipal reformers to show their skill.

At the last regular meeting of Deseronto Lodge, No. 102, I.O.O.F., the following officers were elected for the term ending June 30, 1886, viz.—R. N. Irvine, Pres.; J. Scott, V.G.; R. Northmore, Rec. Sec.; E. W. Scott, Per. Sec'y.; G. Egar, Treasurer.

Missionary Meetings will be held at the Reserve at Christ Church on Sunday the 10th of January at 11 a.m. A full choir will sing several hymns in the Mohawk language. At All Saints Church on Sunday, the 10th January, at 3:30 p.m. Appropriate hymns will be sung by an efficient Choir.

As will be seen by an advertisement "Payable on Demand" will be presented at the Open House on the evening of Friday 19th inst. The public have been anxiously awaiting this important announcement, and there is certain to be a large house on the occasion. It will be well to purchase tickets immediately.

The Annual Missionary Meeting will be held in St. Mark's Church next Sunday evening, 10th inst. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Canon White, of Iroquois, and Rev. W. Wright, of Newboro.

It is hoped that there will be a very large congregation present on this interesting occasion.

The Rathburn Company band serenaded a large number of citizens during Christmas and New Year's, and received many proofs of the high appreciation in which their services are regarded by the people of Deseronto. They played in the New Year's eve service, singing particularly good in the calm of midnight.

Tate Public Schools re-opened on Thursday. All the teachers, including Miss Sinclair and Miss Farfor lately added to the staff, were present at the opening. A large number of pupils are now in attendance and it is earnestly desired that parents will interest themselves and regular attendance during the term. Irregular attendance defeats the most assiduous work on the part of teachers.

Who, on New Year's eve, when "Peter families" had gone to bed and "Mater" did proceed to fill the children's socks,

Did such a merrily forth the town to color red And peaceful citizens to arouse by loud and sunry knocks, Echo alone answers—who?

The remarkably mild weather of December continued to the close of the month and the New Year's eve was a day without snow. Spring-like weather continued until Sunday when a heavy rain set in which continued all day Monday. The different creeks were running bank high with great quantities of water but nothing excessive.

On Tuesday morning it began to rain and that night and Wednesday some five inches of snow fell. Wednesday night there was a great fall of temperature the thermometer on Thursday morning marking 10.5 degrees below zero. This morning it indicated 14.5 degrees below. The coldness of the season.

An enterprising club of pleasure seekers including a Christmas tree was held in St. Mark's church last Friday evening, in connection with the Sunday school of the church. There was a very large attendance and the programme included songs, dialogues, recitations, choruses, &c. The children was much enjoyed. The Rector presided and succeeded admirably in restraining any undue outbreaks of enthusiasm. An address by Santa Claus was given and the benigton personage soon appeared on the scene in his well known costume. It was remarked that the intonations of the voices were strikingly similar to those of our fellow citizens Mr. Bedford and Mr. Howett proceeded to strip the Christmas tree of its wealth of presents, much to the delight of the children. Every pupil in the school got a small violin or some other gift, which was pleasing to see that the girls were remembered by their kindly host with some token of regard. Rev. G. A. Anderson delivered a short address before the close. The whole proceedings were admirably conceived and carried out by teachers and pupils.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS FOR THE TOWNSHIP OF TYNDELINGA, A.D. 1886.

Mr. D. E. Howett, in another column bears testimony to the character and skill of our travelling agents abroad.

Dr. J. G. Schmitz, at present professor of Ethics and Philosophy in Dalhousie College, has been appointed to a new chair in the same branches in Cornell College.

The Cedar Mill expects to start up again the 18th inst. A considerable amount of repair work has effected and the interior of the mill has been neatly white-washed during the period that it was shut down.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Henry Clancy, of Newburgh, was in town yesterday.

Miss Prickett and Mr. W. Prickett, are visiting friends in Kingston.

Mr. W. F. Powell, of Ottawa, is spending a week or two in town.

A. G. Northrup, of Belleville gave us the pleasure of a visit on Wednesday.

Mr. Chas. Patten, having regained his health, returns to Mr. Bedford's office.

Mr. Aylsworth is enjoying a trip to Toronto, St. Marys and other points west.

Mr. A. Brunouillet writes from Emerson, Man., to renew his subscription to THE TRIBUNE.

Messrs. Gibson, Madden, and Morden, bartenders of Napanee, were in town on Wednesday.

Mr. H. B. Bedford was in Shannondale Tuesday attending the sittings of the Division Court.

Miss Northcott, of Belleville, who has been spending her vacation in Deseronto, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. John C. Hanley arrived in town on Tuesday to attend Court, and was, during his stay, the guest of H. R. Bedford, Esq.

Mr. A. Brunouillet writes from Emerson, Man., to renew his subscription to THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England States.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. French returned home on Tuesday evening, having greatly enjoyed their visit to the New England

The Tribune.

VOL. III.

DESERONTO, ONT. FRIDAY, JAN. 15, 1886.

NO. 18

THE TRIBUNE,

Published every Friday Morning.

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO.
(LIMITED.)

Publishers and Proprietors.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.—One copy, $1.00 per year
0 cents per six months. Strictly in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE	1 Year	6 mos.	3 mos.
Column	$50.00	$30.00	$18.00
Half Column	30.00	18.00	10.00
Quarter Column	20.00	12.00	7.00
One Inch	5.00	3.00	2.00
Business Cards, (less than one inch)	4.00	2.50	1.75

Twenty, Lost, Found, Strayed, etc. 25 cents each insertion, or on a contract at the rate of 75 cents per month.

Causal advertisements 5 cents per line first insertion, each subsequent insertion 25 cents.

Communications should be addressed to

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO., (LIMITED), Deseronto, Ont.

MARRIAGE LICENCES.

T. G. PILE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENCES, Deseronto, Ont.

COAL.

FOR HOUSE USE OR BLACKSMITH SHOPS, AT lowest market rates. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

SALT.

BY CAR LOAD, BARREL, OR IN BULK, AMERICAN or Canadian, at lowest market rates. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

WATER LIME.

WATER LIME, PORTLAND CEMENT, AND Plaster Paris for sale, cheap, and full directions given how to use successfully. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN HOTEL.

JOHNSON & O'NORR STS., KINGSTON. This house has been refurbished and refitted throughout. Charges moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.

NOTICE.

I NSURANCE ON FARM OR VILLAGE PROPERTY IN low rates in Standard Stock Companies—the Royal Insurance Company and Canadian Union of England, Western, and British American of Toronto. THE RATHBUN CO.

Agents.

O'CONNOR HOUSE.

THIS HOTEL IS ELEGANTLY FURNISHED throughout in the latest style. Large and comfortable rooms, well accommodated with comfort for guests. The Bar is supplied with best imported and domestic Liquors and Cigars. Charges moderate. First-class living in connection. Good food and choices cooked.

P. O'CONNOR, Propy., Deseronto, Ont.

QUEEN'S HOTEL.

OPPOSITE CITY HALL, BELLEVILLE, ONT. First-class hacks connecting with all trains. Street cars pass the door every fifteen minutes. 2.1 y. SIBBITT & CO., Proprietors

Napanee, Tamworth

—AND—

QUEBEC RAILWAY.

NAPANEE VALLEY LINE.

TIME TABLE No. 6,
IN EFFECT MAY 18th 1885.

ASTERN STANDARD TIME.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS. NO. 2. NO. 4.
Leave 10 30 12 30
Arrive 1 30 5 45

Thompson's Mills..... 1 30 5 50

Canadian East..... 1 30 5 55

York..... 1 40 6 00

Colebrook..... 1 45 6 15

Galt Brook*..... 2 05 6 20

Mosse..... 2 10 6 30

Midvale Bridge*..... 2 20 6 45

Enterprise Bridge*..... 2 25 6 50

Windsor's Crossing*..... 2 30 6 55

Tamworth..... Arrive 2 50 6 60

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS. NO. 3. NO. 5.
Leave 10 30 12 30
Arrive 1 30 5 45

Thompson's Mills..... 1 30 5 50

Midvale Bridge*..... 1 30 5 55

York..... 1 40 6 00

Colebrook..... 1 45 6 15

Galt Brook*..... 2 05 6 20

Mosse..... 2 10 6 30

Midvale Bridge*..... 2 20 6 45

Enterprise Bridge*..... 2 25 6 50

Windsor's Crossing*..... 2 30 6 55

Tamworth..... Arrive 2 50 6 60

*Train only when passengers sit at first.

R. C. CARTER, H. B. SWARROW, E. W. RATHBUN, Ass't Gen. Mgr. Superintendent

LOST OR FOUND.

LOST.—A Black Fur Cape, on Saturday, 9th inst., between Napanee and Deseronto. The finder will oblige by leaving same at TRIBUNE Office.

18

HOUSE FOR SALE.

A comfortable house is offered for sale on Second Street, Village of Deseronto. For particulars apply to JAMES ALLEN, Nov. 12-85. Deseronto, Ont.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

PARTIES WISHING TO HAVE LETTERS POSTED after hours will please leave them at Eggar's Drug Store, Main St. Deseronto.

STOVES FOR SALE.

3 LATEST PATTERN BASE BURNER Coal Stoves for sale very cheap. Apply to H. C. JEFFERS, The Rathbun Company. 11-15

MONEY TO LOAN AT 6 PER CENT.

$35,000.00 of Private Money. Old Mortgages paid off. New Loans taken and Mortgages Purchased.

Apply to GIBSON & CLUTE, Barristers, 1 yr.

FOR SERVICE.

A THOROUGHREED SUFFOLK BOAR Took 1st Prize at the Midland Fair, Kingston, and at the leading Eastern Town-Country Fairs.

TERMS.—$1.00 to be paid at time of service. MICHAEL KENNEDY, 11 Lot 22, 4th con. Tyendinaga

E HARRISON.

350 Front Street, Belleville,

Keeps in Stock and makes to order short notice all classes of Account Books, General Book-Keeping, the Plainest Library Style to the best Manufacturers and Cash Gilt or Marble edge.

TERMS.—$1.00 to be paid at time of service. D. H. PRESTON, 11-14

NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Watson Kirk of the Village of Deseronto is a subscriber to the Ontario Statute 45 Victoria, Chapter 29 in assignment of all his estate and effects personal to Joseph Newlands Henderson of the City of Montreal in the Province of Quebec, account for the general benefit of the creditors of the said Charles Watson Kirk.

D. H. PRESTON, 11-14

OILING HARNESS LEATHER.

Oils when applied to dry leather invariably cure it, and to leather containing water it will penetrate and make it pliable. Wet the harness over night, cover it with a blanket, and in the morning it will be damp and supple; then apply neatso oil in small quantities, and with as much elbow-grease as will ensure its disseminating itself through the leather. A soft, pliant harness is made in a trice, and lasts longer than a neglected one. Never use vegetable oils, animal, and among the animal oils neatso fat is the best.

WHITEWASH.

Take half a bushel of unslacked lime, and slake it with boiling water. Cover it during the process. Strain it and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water, three pounds of green rice boiled to a thin paste, put in boiling water, had a pint of Spanish whitening and a pint of clean oil dissolved in warm water. Mix it and let it stand for several days. Keep it in a kettle and put it on hot as possible with a brazier. It is said to look as well and last longer than lime putty, wood ash, or stone. A very simple wash may be made in the following manner: Slack as above, and add to each pint half a pint of salt and the same quantity of wood-ash, sifted fine; this makes it thick like cream, and covers smoke much better. Use hot. Coloring may be used if desired.

KEEPING VEGETABLES.

We observe that some writers on vegetable gardening speak of the difficulty of keeping succulent vegetables, like beets, turnips and parsnips, from wilting, when placed in cellars, and recommend packing them in earth or sand in wooden boxes. This is unnecessary and cumbersome and inconvenient. An easier and more perfect way is to pack them in damp sawdust, placed in barrels of moderate size, or in boxes more than two feet in width. Place a layer of sawdust at the bottom, then a layer of the roots, then fill in all interstices with another layer, and so on till the box is full, leaving no crevices. We have taken beets out of such boxes after remaining in them full year, so fresh in appearance that they have been sold at market. It can be seen between them and the fresh roots. Nurserymen's moss is neater than sawdust where it can be had, and serves an excellent purpose for packing winter cabbage in large boxes, take some exchange.

AN AGE OF DISCOVERY.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF the Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's general office at Deseronto, on the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, afternoon, for receiving the Report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

F. S. RATHBUN, Secretary, Dec. 28th, 1885.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's general office at Deseronto, on the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, afternoon, for receiving the Report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

Deseronto, Ont., S. ROUSSELL, Sec'y-Treas., Dec. 28th, 1885.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF the Shareholders of the Deseronto Navigation Company, Limited, will be held at the Rathbun Company's general office at Deseronto, on the Second day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, afternoon, for receiving the Report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

Deseronto, Ont., S. ROUSSELL, Sec'y-Treas., Dec. 28th, 1885.

MOTHER'S MENDING BASKET.

Over and under, and in and out, The swift needle, the needle flies; For always aches the needle, illness And the mending basket lies.

Work lovingly on and on At tasks that never are finished;

For mending that never is done,

She takes up the father's stocking,

And skillfully knits in the heel.

And smooths the seam with a tender touch,

That he may no roughness feel;

And her thoughts to her girl go,

And she smiles at the first pair of stockings

She knits so long ago.

Then comes to the little maiden

Leaning to her basket,

And tells her about the stockings.

Uneven and shapeless and wide—

"I had to ravel them out, my dear;

Don't be discouraged, but try,

And after a while you'll learn to knit

As swift and easy as I."

She takes up a little white apron,

And thinks of the world face

Of her darling when she came crying:

"Oh, mother, where is my torn lace?"

So she meandered back to the pet apron;

Then took up a tiny show,

And fastened a stitch that was broken,

To the far-off future have fled.

The maiden was weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

The maidens were weary of working

And gave up to the world again,

Leaving the basket to the world again.

The sun in the west is sinking,

At the close of the quiet day.

Now the mother's hands are resting

Still holding a stocking of red,

And her thoughts in the twilight shadow

To the far-off future have fled.

</

THE WEDDING BELLS;

OR,
TELLING HER FORTUNE.

By the Author of "PROVED OR NOT PROVED," ETC.

CHAPTER XIV.

The day passed slowly and heavily; a sense of mystery and oppression hung over Fetherstone Hall and its inmates. Mr. Graves, the superintendent, arose promptly, and went about his work some time before Fetherstone and his brother. Thus a strict search over the entire house was instituted, the ladies and gentlemen abiding willingly to allow their wardrobes and trunks to be searched, in order to prevent the household feeling hurt at the inspection. But nothing was found, and the policeman's soiled face bore an expression of perplexity which rather amused Ted.

Clara kept her room, suffering. Sylvia said, from a nervous headache which had completely prostrated her. Lady Elliston, anxious about Clara, sent for a doctor, who came, and the physician's sonorous voice gave an expression of perplexity which rather amused Ted.

In the afternoon Mr. John Fetherstone and Mr. Burke drove off to the station, accompanied by Ted; and just as they were about to leave, the train to the station was driven round from the stables Clara awoke from a troubled sleep, into which she had fallen, and lifted her head from her pillows.

Sylvia was sitting by her reading, and Clara's movement she started up.

"Is your head better, dear?"

"A little," the girl answered, languidly. "It is a tiny one going away, Sylvia."

"Only Mr. Burke," Sylvia said, hesitatingly.

"Mr. Burke!" repeated Clara, sinking back, her face as white as the pillows against which she lay. "Why—why why!"

The pale, parched lips refused to finish the sentence. Sylvia bent down anxiously.

"He is only going away for a day or two on business," she said, hastily; and Clara caught her hand.

"You are sure—you are sure?" she said, faintly.

"Quite, dearest."

"Is it not sudden?"

"Yes, I think so. Uncle John going also."

"O, Sylvia—Sylvia!" Clara cried, suddenly; and clasping her friend close to her, she burst into a wild passion of tears.

Two or three days passed in the same dreary, oppressive manner. The wedding guests departed. Letters came from the happy pair in Paris, which brightened up Lady Mary immensely. Clara Firth had come down-stairs again, looking very white and fragile, and showing a strange reserve of manner unusual to her, also carefully avoiding the mention of her jewels. These were the last spoken of before her she could find, and now pale alternately, and such a fit of shivering would seize her, that by tacit consent they were silent in her presence, on the subject.

As yet nothing had transpired; the theft remained surrounded by perfect mystery. All investigation had been on the—the strict search had been fruitless; and when Mr. Burke departed alone on the third day after his return, they were as far as ever from discovering the truth.

Ted's friend, as he was still very generally called by the Fetherstones, drove up, looking very handsome and fair bright as he had ever seemed before. Whatever business had taken him away, it had evidently had a satisfactory termination. Ted, who went out on the wide stone steps to meet him, put his hand affectionately on his shoulder.

"How is she?" were Mr. Burke's first words.

"Who?—Clara, or yours?"

But Mr. Burke's hasty movement prevented him completing the sentence.

"Clara, of course! Ted, be careful!" said Mr. Burke, with a quick glance around.

"Clara is better; she is down-stairs again. Why, there's no one to hear us, old fellow. Dick, was it all right down there?"

"Yes; thank Heaven, there was no mistake!" And standing on the stone steps, Mr. Burke drew a long breath of relief; then arm-in-arm they entered the house together.

"Lady J. has gone up to town, to-morrow," said Ted, as they crossed the outer hall.

"Yes; he was anxious to settle some business there," replied Dick; and they entered the inner hall, where Sylvia was providing over five o'clock tea; and when the home party were gathered, Sylvia, looking very pretty, when his Dashwood was attending tea, and smiling a welcome to her brother's friend, who crossed the hall to greet Lady Mary, who was standing on a great rug which was thrown down before the old-fashioned hearth. Beside her stood Clara, tea cup in hand, and Lady Mary saw that though the girl's face had been white, the young man entered a bright red spot appeared on each cheek, and a sudden flush came into her soft brown eyes.

Stepping for a moment to exchange a cordial hand-clasp with Mr. Fetherstone, Dick turned up to Lady Mary, while he gave out a low, stagey, passionate, tender, "At the British figure by her side,

"I am very glad to see you again, Mrs. Burke," her ladyship said, cordially. "We have missed you greatly, have we not, Clara?"

Clara made no answer; it seemed as if she had not heard the question; but Lady Elliston, who occupied a low seat near the high, carved oak mantel, answered for her.

"Greatly," she said, in her low, sweet voice; and going to her side, Richard Burke took her hand in his, and bending, brushed it softly with his lips with graceful courtesy and courtesy of a former age.

"The girl turned back to the fire, and put on her hands.

"I am glad to see you so much better," he said, in a low tone of unutterable tenderness, with his gray blue eyes fixed on the girl's fair face. "You are better, are you not?"

Clara said nothing, neither did he say anything more to put her hand in his.

Suddenly, and still in the same unbroken silence, she lifted her eyes, and looked him full in the face; and while his countenance expressed nothing but the utmost tenderness and the most unspoken love, she was full of the cruel, the bitterest of the bitterest anger.

For a moment she looked at him, surveying him from head to foot as she might have done a stranger who had grossly insulted her; then she turned scornfully and silently away, crossed the hall, and disappeared up the wide oak staircase.

Lady Mary and Mr. Burke looked at each other in surprise, mingled, on Mr. Burke's face, with an expression of keen pain; while Ted's face flushed angrily at this insult to his friend. He started forward impetuously, but Dick's hand on his arm, and a meaning glance at Lady Elliston, who was, of course, unaware of Clara's strange conduct, stayed the angry words on his lips.

Still, it was very strange! What could such a reception mean?

CHAPTER XV.

"I KNOW WHO STOLE THE JEWELS."

"It is no use, old fellow; I have made a terrible mistake, and must suffer the consequences. I shall give it up and go away."

"What do you advise me to do?" Dick asked, calmly.

"This is Clara alone, and insist on receiving an explanation of her conduct on your part. You have every right to command it. She has given you permission to withdraw her; she has no right to withdraw to it and to insult you without reason."

"How can I see her? She shuns me like a pestilence."

"I will manage that. Will you let me?"

"If you will; but, Ted," and Mr. Burke spoke faintly, "I may as well tell you beforehand that I shall be as wax in your hands."

"Not you," said Ted, laughing. "Tomorrow, when the party for Arundel goes, make some excuse and remain behind. Clara is not going." Lady Elliston thought it would be too fatiguing for her. I am going to stay at home, and between us we shall bring this refractory young lady to a sense of her iniquities."

This conversation took place some time after Mr. Burke's return, and during the time Miss Firth had treated him with the same unconquerable coldness and insolence. She never spoke to him, she never looked at him; she avoided him in every possible manner, and a slight bowing and evening was the only notice she ever took of his presence. Had Mr. Fetherstone and his wife been less preoccupied they might have commented upon the conduct of the boy, but the host was concerned in trying to make up for the jewel robbery, and Lady Mary was anxious about one of her children who was laid up with a sharp attack of the inflammation of the lungs; while Sylvia was too much occupied, between her new duties as Miss Fetherstone and her engagement to her cousin, who had at last won his uncle's consent, to heed anything else.

Thus it happened that Clara's strange conduct remained unnoticed, except by Ted, who was quick to see anything that was amiss in his friend, and especially with him at a loss to understand it; while the girl herself was strange and irritable in her manner, and more than once her maid had surprised her in her room weeping passionately.

Having entered into the little conspiracy which was to explain Miss Firth's conduct and bring her to a sense of her iniquities, the two young men rose to leave the library, and the boy had just reached the outer door, and the girl had just descended, as the two friends passed into the hall; the door of Mr. Fetherstone's study opened, and he put his head out.

"Is that you, Ted? Come here, will you? You are also, Mr. Burke, if you please," he said, hastily, and obeying the summons, thus was he admitted to the study.

Father Fetherstone laughed; then his eyes fell on the direction of his friend's, and upon Clara a general figure.

"She is evidently awfully unhappy," he said, meditatively. "I never saw a girl so changed in a few days. She cannot be fretting about the jewels, for I never saw a girl care less about trifles and gew-gaws. I believe she is unhappy about you, Dick."

The other shook his head sadly.

"And yet she treats you so kindly," said Ted, angrily. "Upon my word, Dick, you would let me, I'd give her a piece of my mind on the subject. Fond as I was of Clara, I cannot justify or excuse her conduct."

"I am not very insolent," Mr. Burke said, slyly. "I am not Clara Firth who thinks thus. It is some unaccountable prejudice and dislike which have actuated her during the last day or two. She may hate me for my presumption, but I think if she knew the pain she causes, she would not act thus."

"She's a little idiot," said Ted, savagely.

"Don't let your friendship for me Sylvia injure, old fellow," said Mr. Burke, quietly. "She is one of the sweetest, truest, noblest creatures I ever knew. Nay, it will not make me a worse man for having loved her, even if I make her weep."

"I am very glad to see you again, Mrs. Burke," her ladyship said, cordially. "We have missed you greatly, have we not, Clara?"

unknown to his mother, employed a lawyer to make every inquiry. A great deal ran down her cheeks as she told her story to her husband. "I suppose you guess, Ted, what a restrain I had to put on myself not to take her in my arms and kiss those tearaways," he continued, with a slight laugh, "you would think me a great scoundrel than ever, unless a fellow could take such wondrous kind."

"I'll you let me speak to her, Dick?"

"Not for worlds."

"Why?"

"Old fellow, surely you can see that this is a matter in which no third person can interfere."

"Then will you speak to her yourself?"

Ted said, easily.

"How can I? She avoids me in every way. If I address her she makes no answer," Mr. Burke answered, wearily; then rising impetuously, he added, "I'll go to her."

"The girl turned back to the fire, and put on her hands.

"I am glad to see you so much better," he said, in a low tone of unutterable tenderness, with his gray blue eyes fixed on the girl's fair face. "You are better, are you not?"

Clara said nothing, neither did he say anything more to put her hand in his.

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he said, hoarsely.

"I am a friend, and perhaps a good one."

He broke his hold, and sitting down by the table, covered his face with his hands.

Ted Fetherstone went softly to his wife, and put his hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"Old friend, dear old friend," he

AN UNEXPLAINED MYSTERY.

A TALE OF CANADIAN BACKWOODS LIFE.

III.

The morning succeeding that dreadful Christmas night, dawned clear and beautiful. It was one of those gloriously bright weeks, when in mid-winter, for which Western Canada should be famous. The pale and wan fal over night had heaped the white rye-tales many feet deep alike in the forest and the clearings. Even the tree branches were weighted down by the bright rays, and the sun, bursting in radiant flame over the eastern margin of forest, transforms the whole landscape into a fairy-like scene of splendor. The air was crisp and frosty, and every icicle, touched by the sun's rays, and duly turned into a sparkling diamond, every snow crystal a lesser gem, every encrusted tree-leaf a cluster of brilliants—until the gaudy effect of the whole is dazzling in the extremity.

As far as eye can reach an Aladdin's gar den, more splendid and marvellous perhaps than ever Oriental imagination dreamed lay spread out, like some magical transformation scene, over the evergreen forests of Canada.

Responsive to the change from a long night of cold and storm to a morining bright and beautiful, every living thing warms with fresh life, and the myriad souls who have been the attentive ear attest the unusual joy in the sun-awakened day. Every frost-nipped bird and beast sends forth a blessing after its manner.

Away off in the forest depths one hears the heavy breathing of the wood grouse, from the trees; the warbler's song, from the numberless cross-bills and pine-sinches; and from the settler's out-houses rises, husky and cheerly, the clarion notes of the guardians of the poultry-yard.

Now, some human being, oblivious of the ghostly visitation of the night, starts the machinery of the mill, and the sharp noise which it makes, carries far and wide through a solid pine forest, to slight lesser sounds. The mill hands are now gathering for the day's labours, and a certaining in little knots discuss the mysterious cry. And so the attention of the shivering folk above the winter storms of the preceding night. Before much opinion has been elicited, the door of M. Brooke's house opens and that gentleman, accompanied by the stranger guest, emerges and walks slowly across where the men are gathered.

Both men look serious and somewhat care-worn, evidence, not yet disclosed, of the events of the previous night. They had come to a mutual understanding regarding the search for Redlaw, which the detective was anxious to make at once, and delay. He had greater expectations of finding him dead, however, than alive.

M. Brooke selected Hart and Peters from among the men and sent them home for their office, telling them that he wanted for his son a few hours in the woods.

The remainder of the men, although wondering greatly what was in the wind, were obliged to go to work as usual. In a few moments the two men selected returned edgingly, having immediately the detective taking the lead, and making direct for the westerly side of the clearing, he having noticed the night before that Redlaw's foot steps were pointed in that direction. These tracks were still faintly perceptible and they had agreed to follow them which ever way they led.

"This is much better than I feared," remarked the detective. "I was almost sure the track would be quite obliterated, and thus our work made much more difficult. We could only follow up these foot prints and Redlaw is out."

"You are more confident than I am," answered Mr. Brooke. "There are several possibilities in the case to be considered and some of them are pretty weighty. For instance, he may be dead or exposed; or he may have been torn to pieces. He may have got off the road and reached the London Road, in which case he is likely to be safe for the present. Or his tracks may grow indistinguishable presently. You see already how the footprints of wild animals cross and re-cross the trail we are following."

The detective acknowledged the justice of this opinion, but said that the search must be kept up until the man was taken, track or no track.

The four men were now some distance within the grim borders of the interior, when they reached a spot where Redlaw had stopped to rest and talk with them. He had probably rested for a spell. After passing this point the foot prints no longer led in a straight course, but grew uncertain and finally actually doubled back a short distance. The party followed on, but they could not have found them way again, for the earth was bare, the ground covered with a thin layer of snow, and the trees were silent, dim, mysterious shadows cut from the sunshine of the clearing by rank upon rank of heaven-towering trees, whose dark, evergreen crowns in turn the sun's rays, allowing but a few straggling beams to find their way down to the earth.

Hour after hour passed and still the trail led the way deeper and deeper into the gloom. By the time they came to a spot where Redlaw had stopped and talked with them, he had probably rested for a spell. After passing this point the foot prints no longer led in a straight course, but grew uncertain and finally actually doubled back a short distance. The party followed on, but they could not have found them way again, for the earth was bare, the ground covered with a thin layer of snow, and the trees were silent, dim, mysterious shadows cut from the sunshine of the clearing by rank upon rank of heaven-towering trees, whose dark, evergreen crowns in turn the sun's rays, allowing but a few straggling beams to find their way down to the earth.

Every one kept a sharp lookout for the object of their pursuit with both hands near the load of their rifle. They expected to have to cope with a desperate man, perhaps armed, who would not allow himself to be easily taken, and who would doubtless hold his own, and even murder, very cheaply. But the fact had been discovered, and given to their work by his personal assurance that Redlaw was nearly exhausted.

Every one kept a sharp lookout for the object of their pursuit with both hands near the load of their rifle. They expected to have to cope with a desperate man, perhaps armed, who would not allow himself to be easily taken, and who would doubtless hold his own, and even murder, very cheaply. But the fact had been discovered, and given to their work by his personal assurance that Redlaw was nearly exhausted.

Their abhorrence of that deed was all the stimulus required to move them forward with the intent purpose to bring the criminal to justice. Yet they all felt that the task was a very dangerous one.

They moved on slowly but surely along the difficult path, in Indian file, which was now headed by Mr. Hart, and followed by Mr. Hart. The party had now entered a still gloomier part of the forest, a region of dense, scrubby firs, growing at the bottom of a deep valley, or rather basin, which in the summer season would be simply a cold, boggy marsh. To the right and left, from the nature of the soil, were twisted and contorted into every hideous, weird and fantastic shape imaginable. Peters grieved at the threatening aspect of this ghoulish place, and all the party, more or less, fell the uncanny and diabolical influence.

Dick Hart, who had gradually drawn a few paces in advance of the rest of the party, turned to the others and said, "I have a premonition that the head will be held up on the opposite side of the valley, and then motioned that all should listen. Then they heard the confused sounds of some kind of a conflict taking place in the bushes, and then a sharp crack, as if a stick had been broken, and the报告者 shuddered passed over his frame, his head high up, his lips gasping, "O, it's come!"

But most pitiful help was of any avail to the man known to the detective as Redlaw, as with the expressed cry, his spirit laid down its earthly burden forevermore.

Following day the dead body was consigned to the earth, and the funeral service, conducted by the priest of the nearest church on the London Road. The simple service, deeply as they abhorred his crime, never dreamt of denying his remains this last privilege. But no stone or other memento remained to mark the spot.

When the events last described became generally known in Millhollow, the mill loomed up a terror to everybody. No one could be induced to enter its precincts even in the daytime. Not even the master of the old-established miller, who had witnessed the scene of the惨案 the evening before, seemed perfectly indifferent to the suffering he was himself undergoing. In fact he seemed to regard the whole scene in the light of a huge joke. But his appearance was frightful in the extreme.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his fellows, would leap at the forlorn stretch, snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist, and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

When the events last described became generally known in Millhollow, the mill loomed up a terror to everybody.

No one could be induced to enter its precincts even in the daytime. Not even the master of the old-established miller, who had witnessed the scene of the惨案 the evening before, seemed perfectly indifferent to the suffering he was himself undergoing.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again.

One instant a wet, more than drenched his

fellow, would leap at the forlorn stretch,

snapping his hungry jaws, only to receive a

stinging blow from Redlaw's clenched fist,

and then, with a cry of pain, drop back again

FRIDAY, JAN. 15, 1886.

GERMANY has on some frivolous pretense taken possession of the Samoan Islands in the Pacific. This action is contrary to treaty agreements with England and the United States, and Bismarck will be compelled to repudiate the action of the naval officers. Bismarck's colonizing ventures have proved in every case only failures, and Germany still remains without a colonial empire.

It is said that Mr. Royal of Manitoba, will be appointed Lieutenant Governor of the Northwest Territories in the place of Mr. Dewdney. The removal of Mr. Dewdney will everywhere be hailed with satisfaction as his grasping and arbitrary conduct was probably more than anything else the cause of the late insurrection. Another official, in the person of Judge Jerry Travis, has been doing his utmost to bring the administration of justice into contempt in the Northwest by his legal eccentricities. He has imprisoned a Mr. Cayley for alleged contempt of court and disqualified the Mayor and councillors of Calgary. Officials of the Dewdney and Travis stripe should not be allowed to exert their authority over a free people.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH.

The annual Missionary Meeting of St. Mark's Church was held on Sunday evening. There was a good congregation who manifested much interest in all the proceedings. The delegation on the occasion consisted of Rev. Canon White, of Iroquois, and Rev. W. Wright, of Picton. Rev. G. R. Anderson, of the Mohawk Mission, was also present. After the regular services of evening prayer, the Rev. Mr. Stanton, the Rector, who presided, proceeded to introduce the speakers. He remarked that the church was the proper place and no time better suited for such meetings as the present season for such meetings. As far as Deseronto was concerned, winter, he thought, was not the best time for these meetings as business was then dull. He pleasantly remarked also that the delegation had as usual brought but nothing.

Rev. Mr. Wright first addressed the meeting, congratulating the congregation on having such a comfortable church. The object of such meetings was to awaken an interest in the great work of the church. He then referred to Christ's commission to the apostles and to the early days of the growth and expansion of the church. Before the preaching of the gospel old religions trembled and old philosophies disappeared. Christ's message proclaimed there was a larger measure of salvation for women especially had been elevated to a higher sphere. Charitable institutions, such as hospitals and orphanages were unknown before the introduction of Christianity. There was a desire to help others, to enlist their active sympathy with the mission work. Much yet remained to be done in the disease. He feared the laity did not realize the importance of home mission work. All should be enlisted in the work and by their contributions help the church in sparsely settled districts. Oshawa did not give as they should to church objects. In political and secular matters it was different. Instead of $25,000 a year the people should give $25,000 for Domestic Missions.

Rev. Mr. Anderson followed in a few remarks stating that he had recently taken a deep interest in Missions, and was particularly in the diocese had been a member of the Mission Board. When the diocese was formed in 1862, there were only 31 ministers and 11 parishes in the treasury. The Mission Board had been established and a delegation sent out and as a consequence the missionaries were paid. Before that time there was nothing but the old Church Society. He referred to the Clergy Reserve Fund and thought its withdrawal a great blunder.

The Rev. Mr. Anderson followed in a few remarks stating that he had recently taken a deep interest in Missions, and was particularly in the diocese had been a member of the Mission Board. When the diocese was formed in 1862, there were only 31 ministers and 11 parishes in the treasury. The Mission Board had been established and a delegation sent out and as a consequence the missionaries were paid. Before that time there was nothing but the old Church Society. He referred to the Clergy Reserve Fund and thought its withdrawal a great blunder.

Canon White, the convenor of the delegation, remarked that as one who had frequently been in Deseronto in its early days he was glad to see the wonderful growth of the town and pleased to see that the congregation had increased so rapidly. His part was to present the financial facts. The Bishop wished delegates to be practical. Towns should take an interest in mission work in the country as from the country districts those who formed the town congregations. During the past year 42 congregations received grants from the Board, four of which were now self-supporting. They were often asked "why are these assist well-to-do farmers?" People in villages and little hamlets and they were getting country parishes to work together. He regretted that the contributions had remained stationary during the past few years, and that last year they were $36 less than the year before. Their first object was to win over the old members who had been incurred by meeting urgent claims. A second object was the subdivision of parishes, so that every person in all the charges could have services every Sunday. To do this the Board recommended greater local contributions. He gave a statement of the Upper Ottawa and in other section of the diocese. He concluded by urging systematic organization to keep growing the interest in the work of the Mission.

At the close of the meeting the congregation organized a Missionary Association and elected officers for the current year.

TYENDINAGA PARISH.

The Missionary Meetings held Sunday were of a very interesting character, the attendance despite the bitter cold weather being good. They were held at Christ Church in the morning. An interesting feature of the service was the singing of a number of hymns in the Mohawk language. Rev. Mr. Anderson in introducing the delegation referred to the misfortune of having such an accompaniment to their choir in any meeting. Some objected to having the meeting on Sunday but he did not believe it wrong for people to meet together on that day in view of the Christian duty of giving. When 33 years ago he was appointed to the charge of the Mission it embraced a very extensive territory. It had been since divided into the parishes of Shantown, Picton, and Tyendinaga. He subsequently referred to the work by the Society for the propagation of the Gospel and to the introduction of Xy and Yuh the Indians. These two were sent among the Indians, the former a woman and the latter a man. They were of late manifesting more liberality by increased contributions. The Revs. Canon White and Mr. Wright, the deacons, then spoke in a general address, referring to the pleasure it afforded them to be present to meet their Indian brethren who had ever been loyal sons of the church. They were especially pleased to hear of the Indians aiding in the Mohawk language. They urged the duty of the Indians also assisting those who were not so highly favoured with church ministrations as they were and gave full statements of the splendid work which the Mission Board had accomplished in that part.

When the convenor of the delegation proposed forming a Mission Association to assist the Indians in their work, the Indians there was no response for some time. At length Chief S. Green rose and said in English that his people had always assisted in every church work according to their ability, but that they owned no land in the church, which they had treated in the late church troubles they declined to do anything outside the Parish. Their late Missionary, not satisfied with dividing the congregation and fostering strife here, had been keeping up ill feeling by corresponding with the other friends he left, Ceciliots, interlopers, and mountebanks, urging them to oppose the supporters of the church, some of whom he called cut throats. The Chief Green, however, was a man of great influence and had done much for his people which would confirm this disorder of the peace and said his people could join in no scheme whilst such interference was permitted to him. After some persuasion the rest of the Indians consented to the plan and consented to form an Association and appointed officers, a list of which we publish below. From what Chief Green said the action of the late Missionary to the Band will be brought before the next meeting of the synod:—

PAROCHIAL ASSOCIATION.

Chief S. Green, President.
Mr. Andrew McLeod, Secretary.
Mr. Allen Loft, Treasurer.

COMMITTEE.

Mrs. Mary Brant.
Mrs. Joseph Picard.
Miss Anderson.
Miss Susan Maricle.
Miss Lydia Hill.
Mr. Isaac W. Green.
Mr. Joseph John.
Mr. Isaac Baptiste.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Harry Burgess, of Picton, spent Sunday in town.

Mr. Sidney Parks, of Richmond, was in town this week.

The Rev. A. L. Geen, of Belleville, was in town on Monday.

Mr. Thos. Dwyer, of Marysville, gave us a call on Saturday.

Mr. Wm. Harland, of Macdonald, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. John Corrigan, of Tyendinaga, was in the city on Tuesday.

Mr. Ed. Wilson is out on the N. T. & Q. Ry. looking after tics and posts.

Mr. E. Arthur Rixen, spent a few days this week in Lindsay on a business tour.

Mr. Maurice W. Britton, of Thomsburg, gave us the pleasure of a visit on Monday.

Mr. Sidney W. Baker, of Kingston, was in the village on Tuesday last on business.

Mr. W. A. McLeod has returned to town after a very pleasant visit to his friends in Oshawa.

We observe that Mr. George W. Madole, J.P., of Richmond, was in the village on Monday.

Mr. Justice McGaughay was confined to the house for a few days by an attack of bronchitis.

Mr. R. R. Johnston takes the position of cutter in the Bigstone during Mr. Stoddart's absence.

Mr. H. Barber, of Thousand Islands Ry., Gananoque, spent a few days in town this week on business.

Mr. Michael Donoghue and family left for Smith's Falls last Friday evening. Mr. Donoghue intends to go into the business of farming in that locality.

Our citizen Mr. James R. Booth has returned from New York State, where he has been employed under a contract. He returns after spending the holidays to finish his work.

Mr. George D. Dickson, Q.C. of Belleville, was the guest of Mr. E. W. Rathburn for a few days during the past week. We are glad to see that the learned gentleman is recovering from his severe attack of sickness.

Mr. Edward Bowen, Attorney-at-Law, of Chicago, is in town on a visit to his father, Mr. A. C. Bowen. We regret to learn that he has been suffering from a severe attack of illness, and trust his visit will tend to his recovery.

MARRIAGES.

MORDEN—MAYRE.—On the 13th inst., at the parsonage, Shannondale, by the Rev. Wm. H. Peake, William Stanley Morden, of Tyendinaga, to Miss Josephine Maybee, of Miller.

DEATHS.

TILLEY.—At Napane, on Sunday, Jan. 3rd, 1886, William Tilley, aged 63 years, 4 months and 24 days.

DARVE.—In Richmond, on Saturday, Jan. 2nd, 1886, John Dafoe, aged 25 years and 7 months.

HANNAN.—In Camden, on Sunday, January 3rd, 1886, Robert Hannan, aged 73 years.

HOWIE.—Fellows' Corners, on Tuesday, Jan. 5th, 1886, Alexander H. M. Howie, third son of Mr. Robert Howie, aged 20 years, 9 months and 20 days.

MORGAN.—In North Fredericburgh, on Wednesday, January 6th, 1886, Henry Morgan, aged 39 years and 9 months.

DESERONTO MARKET.
Deseronto, Jan. 14th 1886.

BARLEY,	55 to 65 cents per bushel.
BUTTER,	30 to 35 "
LAMB,	5 to 6 "
BEEF,	3 to 4 "
LARD,	9 to 11 "
EAGOS,	18 to 20 cents per dozen.
POTATOES,	50 to 65 cents per bag.
CHICKENS,	20 to 35 cents per pair.
DUCKS,	50 to 60 "
GEES,	50 to 60 cents each.
TURKEY,	60 to $1 "
HIDES,	5 to 7 dollars per cwt.
POLTS,	50 to 75 cents each.
TALLOW,	rough 3 cents per lb.
Tallow rendered,	51 "
HOGS,	live weight, $4.00 to $5.00 per cwt.
HOGS, dead,	$5.00 to $6.50 "

ESTABLISHED 1873.

Apothecaries Hall.

FRESH and PURE DRUGS
CHEMICALS
FANCY SOAPS,
PERFUMES,
BRUSHES,
HERBS,
ROOTS, PILLS,
OILS,
FANCY POWDER FOR THE TOILET.

PIPES,
CIGARS,
TOBACCO,
SPONGES,
PATENT MEDICINES.
RAZOR STRAPS,
LAMP GOODS,
Horse & Cattle Medicines.
OFFICE OF DR. NEWTON.

W. G. EGAR.
MAIN STREET, DESERONTO.

THE RATHBUN CO.,

Deseronto, Ont.,

Manufacturers of

Doors, Sashes, Blinds,
Mouldings, Frames,
and every description of

House Finish.

We make a Specialty of

GLAZED WINDOWS
And parties building will find it greatly to their advantage to buy their Sashes Glazed and Primed ready for use. Send for prices.

—ALSO—

LUMBER,
At reduced prices, including
Flooring, Siding, &c.

Dressed Lumber always on hand.

You will also be able to purchase from us

SHINGLES

Cheaper than ever.

Call or write before purchasing any of the articles required for new building or for repairs.

THE BEST AND

AND

SEWING MACHINES

FOR SALE BY

JOHN DALTON

AT THE

FURNITURE WAREROOMS,

ST. GEORGE STREET.

RARE CHANCE FOR HOLIDAY
SHOPPERS

LATEST NOVELTIES AND BIG BARGAINS IN

ELEGANT CHRISTMAS GOODS

OUR ASSORTMENT INCLUDES A FULL LINE OF

Jewelry of Every Description,

WATCHES & CLOCKS,

Novelties, Silver & Platedware.

Repairing Watches, Clocks and Jewelry, and Engraving, &c.

We Meet all Wants at Prices Low.—COME.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

GEO. E. SNIDER.

Cheap! Cheap! Cheap!

THE DESERONTO NEWS COMPANY

Offers BOOKS and STATIONERY of every description at exceedingly low prices.

INK

PENS

PAPER

SLATES

PENCILS

MUCILAGE

all marked down to lowest rates.

NEW SERIES SCHOOL READERS.

A new supply of well selected books by popular authors at prices from 10 cts. up.

SANTA CLAUS'

HEADQUARTERS FOR

BOOTS AND SHOES

FOR THE HOLIDAYS IS

T. N. CARTER'S,

OPPOSITE THE O'CONNOR HOUSE,

Where he has a Large Stock of Boots and Shoes, suitable for the Holidays, which he sells so cheap that everyone can buy a pair for a present for their friends.

A LARGE LOT OF

RUBBER GOODS Just Received,

AT VERY LOW PRICES.

Head Quarters for FELT BOOTS, OVERSHOES, and MEN'S HEAVY RUBBERS for Felt Socks.

First-Class Boots and Shoes Made to Order in the Latest Styles and

At Reasonable Prices.

Deseronto, Dec. 17th, 1886.

T. N. CARTER.

The Tribune.

VOL. III.

DESERONTO, ONT. FRIDAY, JAN. 22, 1886.

NO. 19

THE TRIBUNE.

Published every Friday Morning.

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO.
(LIMITED.)

Publishers and Proprietors.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.—One copy, $1.00 per year
6 cents extra six months. Strictly in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE	1 Year	6 mos.	3 mos.
Column	$50.00	$30.00	$15.00
Half Column	30.00	18.00	10.00
Quarter Column	20.00	12.00	7.00
One Line	3.00	3.00	2.00
Business Cards, (less than one inch)	4.00	2.50	1.75

*Wants, Lost, Found, Strayed, etc., 25cts. each insertion; or on a contract at the rate of 75 cents per month.

Casual advertisements 5 cents per line first insertion; each subsequent insertion 2cts. per line.

communications should be addressed to

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO. (LIMITED), Deseronto, Ont.

MARRIAGE LICENCES.

T. G. PELLE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENCES, Deseronto, Ontario. 3

COAL.

FOR HOUSE USE OR BLACKSMITH SHOPS, AT lowest market rates. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

SALT.

BY CAR LOAD, BARREL, OR IN BULK. AMERICAN or Canadian, at lowest market rates. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

WATER LIME.

WATER LIME, PORTLAND CEMENT, AND PLASTER OF PARIS, for sale, cheap, and full directions given how to use successfully. Write for prices. THE RATHBUN CO.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN HOTEL.

JOHNSON & ONTARIO STS., KINGSTON. This house has been refurbished and refitted throughout. Charges moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.

NOTICE.

INSURANCE ON FARM OR VILLAGE PROPERTY at low rates. Standard Stock Companies—The Royal Insurance Company and Commercial Union of England, Western, and British American of Toronto.

THE RATHBUN CO.

17-4 Agents.

O'CONNOR HOUSE.

THIS HOTEL IS ELEGANTLY FURNISHED throughout, in the latest style. Large and comfortable bedrooms, and every convenience and comfort for guests. The Bar is supplied with best imported and domestic Liquors and Cigars. Charges moderate. Fine view in connection. Good Food and Stables attached.

O'CONNOR PROP'T.

Deseronto, Ont.

QUEEN'S HOTEL.

OPPOSITE CITY HALL, BELLEVILLE, ONT. First-class hacks connecting with all trains. Street cars pass the door every fifteen minutes.

2-14. SIBBITT & CO., Proprietors

LOST OR FOUND.

LOST.—A Black Fur Cap, on Saturday, 9th inst., between Napanee and Deseronto. The finder will oblige by leaving same at TRIBUNE Office.

DESERONTO NEWS COY.
(LIMITED)

OUR JOBBING DEPARTMENT

is replete with an abundant supply of new type and printing material. We are therefore in a position to execute fine Job Printing in all its branches in first class style and at rates to suit the times. Send or call and get prices. Order by mail to receive our prompt and careful attention.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

PARTIES WISHING TO HAVE LETTERS POSTED after hours will please leave them at Eggar's Drug Store, Main St. Deseronto.

STOVES FOR SALE.

2 LATENT PATTERN BASE BURNER Coal Stoves for sale very cheap.

Apply to H. C. JEFFERS,
The Rathbun Company. 11-15

Now for snow-shoe tramps.

FIVE CENT SCRIBBLING BOOKS, ruled, at THE TRIBUNE office

A SHOAL of commercial travellers and agents struck town this week.

Miss Nash, of Napanee, succeeds Miss Sanderson as teacher of the East Marysville school.

HENRY ALEXAMS, who was so badly scalded on the Thousand Islands Railway, is improving rapidly.

CANADIAN ALMANACS for 1886 for sale at THE TRIBUNE office. They contain a great amount of useful information.

MR. DANIEL GOODMAN intends retiring from the butcher business to take up a farm in Tyendinaga, not far from the water mill.

Mr. Reeve and Clerk, together with Messrs. E. W. Rathbun, F. C. Whitton and Dr. Clinton, constitute the new board of health.

MR. WILLIAMS, the new druggist, is busy unpacking his goods and preparing for a grand opening. His shop on St. George st. is quite neat and commodious.

MR. M. J. BUTLER and staff are still busy on the survey of the extension of the N. T. & Q. Railway. He reports much good land on the section between Tamworth and Napanee.

EASTER Sunday of 1866 falls on St. Mark's Day, April 25th, its latest possible date. The last time this occurred was in 1736, and it will not fall on that date again until 1943.

THE NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH at Melrose will be dedicated next Sunday, 24th instant, Rev. Prof. Ross, Queen's College, will officiate. A concert will be held the following Monday.

We have received an exceedingly handsome calendar from Messrs. McFarlane, Austin and Robertson, wholesale stationers, of Montreal. It is a splendid specimen of artistic taste and skill.

THE young people of the Methodist congregation here are surely not despaired of hearing of the matter of a concert or similar entertainment. It is time the community was hearing from them.

MR. JOHN McCULLOCH has been appointed assessor. His duties will be more or more onerous this year, as under the new act he will be required to give a list of children of school age for the school board.

GREEN POINT is yet only served with one mail a week, even though the stage passes through twice a day. There is some person in Prince Edward who can bring pressure to bear on the government to give that important section greater postal facilities.

THE ladies of the missionary Association of the Church of the Redeemer hold a social evening at the residence of Mrs. E. W. Lloyd. An excellent programme is prepared and refreshments will be served. Proceedings to commence at 8 o'clock. Adress Rutledge Publishing Company, Eastern, Pa.

COUSIN CAMERON at the meeting of the Council suggested the propriety of getting a council and gravel that might be required drawn in during the winter months, thus giving employment to the men.

All the councillors were disposed to make the graveling of the streets a matter of prime importance. It was resolved to make inquiries concerning the more convenient method of getting before proceeding to action. A day was set apart for the purpose.

THE new Council met last Monday forenoon and organized for the year. They are not yet fully organized, but Mr. Edwards being the only light available, it is to be hoped, getting to business and seemed evidently aware that the eyes of the ratepayers are scanning their every act.

IT is a pity some one of the post-office in the mail train service so as to prevent packages of letters and papers being carried by the different stations. There is much need for improvement in this and other departments of the postal service.

THE School Board met on Monday last at the residence of George Marsale, Mohawk Reserve, to adopt and name to the Rev. Mr. Anderson's family. After the reverend gentleman had been well received and the members of the board by him, assembled and the new school had been总算fully provided for, the ceremony, a solemn and impressive one, took place. The name given to Mr. Anderson and by him he will henceforth be known in the community is Kay-o-wa-ree, which signifies "a good vine."

AT the close of the meeting the Rev. Mr. Anderson thanked those assembled for the honor conferred upon himself and family. He said that in his childhood he had a mother who had been adopted by the Ojibways of the great Manitoulin island, where he had passed his early life, and now the Mohawks, amongst whom he expected to spend his declining years, had received and adopted him.

He hoped he would always be a worthy member of the band. They belong to a common brotherhood of the church, and while this is not the most disinterested motive, it would make it easier to promote the welfare of the people. After a speech in Mohawk by ex-Chief Marsale thanking the school for the pleasant assembly which showed the ability they had for their clergy and families, the school was separated well pleased with the proceedings.

THE FLORAL GUIDE for 1886, the pioneer annual of American interest, is this year a real gem, not a dry list of hard botanical names, but over thirty pages of roses, flowers, plants, vegetables, which articles on roses, roses, plants, vegetables, onions, mushrooms, mason, young gardens, and very interesting reading followed by about 150 pages containing illustrations of what could desire in the line of seeds, plants, bulbs, roots, &c. It is a mystery how this firm can afford to publish, and really give away, this beautiful book, and not charge 200 pages of cost paper, with hundred of illustrations, and two fine Colored Plates, all enclosed in an elegant cover. Any desiring goods in this line cannot do better than send 10 cents for the catalog, and 10 cents for Vick, Seaman, Rochester, N. Y. Deduct the 10 cents from first order sent for seeds.

*Stop only when Passengers are off.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

Bio corner in snow shovels,
Daily Globe, Mail, News and Witness for sale at THE TRIBUNE office.

MESSES RAYBURN and McGaughy are again appointed assessors on the old salary. Gandy keeps oysters.

THE METHODIST CHURCH has now a new library ready. It will add greatly to the efficiency of the school.

LOCAL TRAIN.—For the benefit of the Travelling Public and to afford accommodation to the people of Deseronto, a mixed train leaves the Depot every morning at 7:45 for Kingston. Passengers go to Kingston or Napanee and back said day having about eight hours in Napanee and four in Kingston. Low rates of Fare, Kingstown return, $2.20. Napanee and return 50 cents.

WE regret to learn that Rev. J. H. McDonough, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church, still continues seriously ill, as the result of a bad cold contracted by exposure at a recent burial service. He has been laid up during the past two weeks.

Rev. J. O'Gorman, of Belleville who celebrated mass and preached a sermon characterized by no ordinary eloquence and ability.

MR. J. H. THOMPSON, who was so badly scalded on the Thousand Islands Railway, is improving rapidly.

MISS NASH, of Napanee, succeeds Miss Sanderson as teacher of the East Marysville school.

HENRY ALEXAMS, who was so badly scalded on the Thousand Islands Railway, is improving rapidly.

CANADIAN ALMANACS for 1886 for sale at THE TRIBUNE office. They contain a great amount of useful information.

MR. DANIEL GOODMAN intends retiring from the butcher business to take up a farm in Tyendinaga, not far from the water mill.

Mr. Reeve and Clerk, together with Messrs. E. W. Rathbun, F. C. Whitton and Dr. Clinton, constitute the new board of health.

MR. WILLIAMS, the new druggist, is busy unpacking his goods and preparing for a grand opening. His shop on St. George st. is quite neat and commodious.

MR. M. J. BUTLER and staff are still busy on the survey of the extension of the N. T. & Q. Railway. He reports much good land on the section between Tamworth and Napanee.

EASTER Sunday of 1866 falls on St. Mark's Day, April 25th, its latest possible date. The last time this occurred was in 1736, and it will not fall on that date again until 1943.

THE new PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH at Melrose will be dedicated next Sunday, 24th instant, Rev. Prof. Ross, Queen's College, will officiate. A concert will be held the following Monday.

WE have received an exceedingly handsome calendar from Messrs. McFarlane, Austin and Robertson, wholesale stationers, of Montreal. It is a splendid specimen of artistic taste and skill.

THE young people of the Methodist congregation here are surely not despaired of hearing of the matter of a concert or similar entertainment. It is time the community was hearing from them.

MR. JOHN McCULLOCH has been appointed assessor. His duties will be more or more onerous this year, as under the new act he will be required to give a list of children of school age for the school board.

GREEN POINT is yet only served with one mail a week, even though the stage passes through twice a day. There is some person in Prince Edward who can bring pressure to bear on the government to give that important section greater postal facilities.

THE ladies of the missionary Association of the Church of the Redeemer hold a social evening at the residence of Mrs. E. W. Lloyd. An excellent programme is prepared and refreshments will be served. Proceedings to commence at 8 o'clock. Address Rutledge Publishing Company, Eastern, Pa.

COUSIN CAMERON at the meeting of the Council suggested the propriety of getting a council and gravel that might be required drawn in during the winter months, thus giving employment to the men.

All the councillors were disposed to make the graveling of the streets a matter of prime importance. It was resolved to make inquiries concerning the more convenient method of getting before proceeding to action. A day was set apart for the purpose.

THE new Council met last Monday forenoon and organized for the year. They are not yet fully organized, but Mr. Edwards being the only light available, it is to be hoped, getting to business and seemed evidently aware that the eyes of the ratepayers are scanning their every act.

IT is a pity some one of the post-office in the mail train service so as to prevent packages of letters and papers being carried by the different stations. There is much need for improvement in this and other departments of the postal service.

THE School Board met on Monday last at the residence of George Marsale, Mohawk Reserve, to adopt and name to the Rev. Mr. Anderson's family. After the reverend gentleman had been well received and the members of the board by him, assembled and the new school had been总算fully provided for, the ceremony, a solemn and impressive one, took place.

The name given to Mr. Anderson and by him he will henceforth be known in the community is Kay-o-wa-ree, which signifies "a good vine."

AT the close of the meeting the Rev. Mr. Anderson thanked those assembled for the honor conferred upon himself and family.

He said that in his childhood he had a mother who had been adopted by the Ojibways of the great Manitoulin island, where he had passed his early life, and now the Mohawks, amongst whom he expected to spend his declining years, had received and adopted him.

He hoped he would always be a worthy member of the band. They belong to a common brotherhood of the church, and while this is not the most disinterested motive, it would make it easier to promote the welfare of the people. After a speech in Mohawk by ex-Chief Marsale thanking the school for the pleasant assembly which showed the ability they had for their clergy and families, the school was separated well pleased with the proceedings.

Mr. Wm. Jamieson is building a new barn on the Grange.

Mr. Williams, druggist, has moved into Peter's brick house.

THE Cedar Mill commenced work again on Monday thus giving employment to a large force of men.

MR. GEO. ACEY, manager of Bay View farm, has started an unlimited quantity of fine pure manure at a quart.

Mr. Wm. Parham slipped on some ice the other day and fell, breaking his shoulder. He was attended by Dr. Newton and is progressing favorably.

Two engines and a snow plow soon cleared the line of the B. of Q. Railway yesterday morning. The N. T. & Q. Ry. was not damaged to any extent by the storm.

Messrs. Williams and Spafford are rushing trade in the brick field and offer tea, coffee, and other groceries at exceedingly low prices. They invite the closest inspection of the quality of their goods.

A YOUNG lady from Dundas-street is reported to have given a young man the cold shoulder when she learned he was not a subscriber to THE TRIBUNE.

NEXT Sabbath being the anniversary of the opening of the Presbyterian Church, Prof. Mowat, of Queen's College, Kingston, will conduct the services, preaching both morning and evening.

A LADY party came from Richmond the other evening on a kind of surprise visit to a residence in the east end. They enjoyed themselves by playing games and writing with a taffy pull. With rare prudence the country cousins passed the hat and took up a collection to defray expenses. Nothing like this.

MR. RAYBURN, Supt. of the Deseronto Flour Mills, was the picture of happy satisfaction on Wednesday. On that day the rush of farmers to the Deseronto Flour Mills was greater than that of any previous date. From all points of the compass they flocked in with grain and departed with "Crown Jewel," "Diadem," and other brands of flour.

We record the death of Mrs. James Wilson, s'r., who breathed her last on Wednesday evening. Decidedly robust, she enjoyed the respect of a wide circle of friends, was probably the oldest resident in this part of the country having reached the advanced age of 88 years. She was a native of the North of Ireland and had been a resident of this district for over forty years.

LAST night the weather continued fine followed on Wednesday with a heavy snowfall Sunday with high winds from the southwest and two inches of snow. Monday there was a dip of the mercury which marked below zero. On Tuesday more snow followed and on Wednesday a heavy drifting snow-storm set in from the north-east, about ten inches having fallen during the night. Great drifts piled up on the streets and railway trains were behind time.

AS WILL be seen by the minutes of the proceedings of the last meeting of the Board of Health, that body is acting with commendable energy and determination. They have determined on the compulsory vaccination of all the residents of Deseronto and with that view have ordered a house to house visitation by medical men. They are also making inquiries concerning the site for a hospital and taking steps to procure the services of an introduction of disease into the village. In this they will be aided by all classes of the community. The Rathbun Company have issued an order insisting on all their employees being at once vaccinated.

A LARGE surprise party consisting of friends came down on Wednesday evening to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lloyd. Arriving there they were most hospitably received by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, who succeeded admirably in making their visitors feel at home by their kind, hospitable reception. The party passed an extremely pleasant evening, and very unwillingly parted from their kind Maryville friends.

It was reported on Monday morning that there was a case of small-pox at "Eagle Hill" about five miles west of Deseronto on the road to Newmarket. Early in the morning Mr. Devereux came from Trenton where he had been working and put up at the residence of his father-in-law, Peter Johnstone, at Eagle Hill. He broke out with a bad rash but recovered from it after some time. Other members of the household were affected with the same disease and two children died of it. Up to this time they had no medical attendance, being either ignorant of or anxious to conceal the nature of the disease and their neighbors appear to have been allowed access to the house though not permitted to come near those who were sick. On Monday morning Dr. Newton having been sent for, the day was spent up to visit the sick when he found that the disease had spread.

He immediately informed the Indian department who wired him to use every means possible to prevent the spread of the disease. Constables were placed on duty to prevent all the Indians from the Mohawks, Oneida, Seneca, and Cayugas from coming near the infected persons. This makes it very easy to isolate the patients. It is hoped that every precaution will be taken by the government, for though those affected are not natives of the country, they are entitled to protection on the Indian Reserve.

We presume that churches will be closed and all assemblies on the Reserve strictly forbidden. It is feared that the Trenton authorities are not exercising proper vigilance in these cases would not need to be reported.

THE WEDDING BELLS.

on,
TELLING HER FORTUNE

By the Author of "PROVED, OR NOT PROVED"

CHAPTER XV.—(CONTINUED.)

"On the night the theft occurred," said Mr. Burke, "I was on the terrace alone, and suddenly I was startled by a slight sound near me. I turned quickly, and saw distinctly a dark shadow on the portico; but when I went forward there was no one there. I thought it must be one of the servants, and the subsequent events disclosed it from my memory."

"You have no other clew, sir?" Superintendent Graves said, eagerly.

"None whatever. I was thinking deeply at the time, and may have been mistaken as to whence the sound proceeded."

"It is a clew, though a slight one. It would seem that the thief came from them," said the superintendent, thoughtfully.

"Does that help you?" said Ted, some what dismally, for he was the boy officer's aide.

"It may prove useful, sir," was the rather dogged reply, and before Ted could utter the rather dogged reply which rose to his lips, Clara stood up and made a step forward.

"The jewels are lost," she said, passionately, "but that man will not help you to find them. Send him away!—send him away!"

"My dear Clara!" ejaculated Lady Eliot.

"Mother—oh, mother," the girl said, passionately, "let me have my way in this. Let the diamonds go. You told me yesterday that I was the sufferer, and not you. I do not care for the loss. I have lost"—she pressed her hands passionately to her heart, "I have lost much more than that in the last few days. Oh! let me go before I think that which I shall regret to dying day."

Ted looked at her in astonishment. Lady Eliot's face was quivering with pain, and Mr. Burke made a sign to the superintendent to retire, and he left the room with a faint expression of surprise and comprehension dawning on his stolid face.

When the door had closed upon him there was a silence, and all eyes and Clara, who stood with flailing eyes and flushed cheeks, in the corner of the room, her hands clasped close against her heart. She was evidently in the deepest agitation and excitement, and as she stood, the slight frown swayed to and fro, as if she were about to fall, and she caught at the back of the chair near her for support.

"My dear child," said Mr. Fetherstone, "will you give me an explanation?"

"An explanation?" she said, slowly. "I suppose my conduct requires an explanation, but I have none to give you. All I can tell you is this: Superintendent Graves will not be able to assist you; nor are you likely," she added, in a tone of the keenest contempt, "to obtain a clew from Mr. Burke."

"What do you mean?" said Mr. Fetherstone. "Clara, tell me now, what are you forcing me to live this?"

"I neither know nor care," she said, desperately. "I know what impositions I am laying myself open to. I cannot help it—I cannot help it. Oh, do let it drop! All search, all investigation is useless—you will not find the diamonds! Mother," she ran to Lady Eliot and fell on her knees, "mother, tell them you will have the diamonds, and have any love and pity for me." She kneeled, and ran back to the center of the room.

"Mr. Fetherstone, let it drop. Ted, Sylva, help me—help me to sake!"

"My darling—my darling!" said Lady Eliot in the greatest distress. "I am willing—I am more than willing—I wish that it should be dropped!"

"But, Lady Eliot," said Mr. Fetherstone, "you must be sensible now. I cannot allow my household to remain under the suspicion which your loss in my house necessarily casts upon them. It must be gone on with."

Clara uttered a little cry of pain, and shrank back against the wall with the look of terror deepening on her face, and held her hands before her as if to ward off some invisible horror. Paling with fear, Ted and Sylva were watching her with eager interest and surprise. Mr. Burke whose face was as pale as her own, looked at her with a sorrow and compassion too deep for words. Once he made a step toward her, as if to shield or defend her, then he drew back; while Lady Eliot's ailing eyes went from one to the other with painful intensity as if she would, by very force of will, see what was passing.

"You must be reasonable, my dear child," said Mr. Fetherstone, kindly. "It is very painful for us all; but there is no reason to distress yourself thus. Even should the culprit be discovered, you would not have to appear on the trial."

"As if I were thinking of myself!" said Clara, bitterly; and she covered her face with her hands.

There was a short silence, then the girl's little, trembling hands dropped and left her face uncovered. She held her hands in anguish toward Mr. Fetherstone.

"I know who stole the jewels!" she cried, in a voice of agony, which thrilled through all those who heard it. "I know who stole the jewels!"

She ran to Lady Eliot, and threw herself on her knees before her, hiding her face on her bosom, and clinging to her with little frantic sobs of pain.

Lady Eliot put her arms round her, and drew her into them with a pitying tenderness, and, moved by some sudden impulse, the others quitted the room, leaving them alone together.

CHAPTER XVI.

FOR COURAGE TO FORGET.

"She will tell me nothing more, and she is not in a state to be advised," said Lady Eliot, a few hours later.

"Mr. Fetherstone, I must beg and entreat you, as a personal favor, to allow the matter to drop. Let the mystery be what it may. I have perfect trust in the honor of your child. She knows of the theft, but she does not know who. Her will not nothing, and her share in the affair is not a guilty one. The master must drop, or I believe it will kill her."

Mr. Fetherstone was forced to submit to this decision sorely against his will, and the letter which he had written to the Chief Commissioner of Police was torn up, and the waste-paper basket received a little of his chagrin.

The master was freely discussed to the family and household; while Mr. Graves shook his head, thought it altogether a most extraordinary business, hinted that young ladies were often either in want of money themselves, or had lovers whom they were anxious to oblige, and looked with a smile on the proceedings. Lady Eliot was the only one who did not share this view. She was anxious about Clara, she avoided giving any expression to that anxiety, and talked of return to Carnock shortly.

On the day following that scene in Mr. Fetherstone's study, a party had been made to go and see Arundel Wood—a beautiful old forest about ten miles from Carnock. Here the young people were going to ride, the elders to drive, and they were to go on to Athurst and have some refreshment at the castle before they started homeward. The only one who was not to go was Clara—Lady Eliot deeming her, and wisely too, unequal to the fatigues; and as the young girl had seemed very different as to whether she went or not, they left her with only one scruple as to her finding lonely.

On their return to Carnock, the master was going to ride, the elders to drive, and he was shut up in his father's study, and overwhelmed—or, at least, so he declared—with letters, and waited for his friend whose presence he forced to endure!

"Ted; why does he not come in?" "He does not prefer to speak to you alone," said Clara, with a smile.

"You are mistaken," she said, proudly. "It may be I have chosen a time when I hoped to be secure from interruption, but I have no wish to force my presence upon you. Even did I wish to do so there are servants within call, and Ted is waiting for me in the conservatory yonder."

"Ted; why does he not come in?" "He does not prefer to speak to you alone," said Clara, with a smile.

"No," she answered, contemptuously. "I do not wish to palm him by showing him the contempt I feel for his friend whose presence I am forced to endure!"

"I told you that I had no wish to force my presence upon you," he said with equal haughtiness. "The explanation of your strange conduct I have almost right to demand, and I am willing to forego it."

He turned toward the door and spoke.

Clara was silent for a moment; then, with the inconsistency of a woman, when she saw him leaving her, she wished him to remain.

"What have you to say to me?" she said, suddenly.

"Much!" he answered, sadly. "But first I must ask you one question, Clara. Will you answer it frankly and truly?"

"I hope I am incapable of answering it in anything but a frank and honest manner."

"How and when have I offended you? What is the reason of your altered conduct to me?" he said looking at her fully with his grave gray-blue eyes, with a look in them which made her falter.

She did not answer him at once; it almost seemed as if she did not understand the question. He repeated it.

"What is the reason of your anger against me have you?" he said, quickly.

"She spoke then, lifting her eyes, and flashing a look of unmitigated contempt upon him. "You ask me that!—you!" she said, bitterly.

"Why should I not?"

She turned her face away from him in silence and said not a word.

and at the same moment a little cry of pain broke from her lips, and she caught at the piano for support.

Mr. Burke was standing by the door, having entered the room while she was still silent.

For a few moments, not quite a minute perhaps, they stood confronting each other from across the room. Every shade of color had died out of Clara's cheeks and lips, and Mr. Burke was alarmed at the peculiar stony look which came over the usually young face. Her agitation was hardly lessened, and neither could find his voice to speak.

Clara was the first to recover some semblance of composure.

"Mr. Burke," she said, in a voice which expressed a contempt it would be difficult to put into words, "do you want to speak?"

The sound of her voice gave him the calmness which the sight of her had so rarely shaken. He made a step or two forward into the room, but as he advanced she shrank back, and at this silent evidence of scorn and dislike, the handsome face of Mr. Burke seemed to stand still.

"I thought you had gone with the others," she said, still in that low, cutting, contemptuous voice.

"I started with them, but I have returned, as you see," he said, gently.

"And why?"

"Because I wished to speak to you."

"To me?"

"Yes, to you."

A pause ensued—a silent, oppressive pause.

"And you chose a time when I am alone in the house—when I could not ask any one to relieve me of your presence," she said, bitterly. "When my friends are absent, and, when, whether I will or not, I cannot prevent you addressing me."

"I have done that," she said, proudly. "It may be I have chosen a time when I hoped to be secure from interruption, but I have no wish to force my presence upon you. Even did I wish to do so there are servants within call, and Ted is waiting for me in the conservatory yonder."

"Ted; why does he not come in?" "He does not prefer to speak to you alone," said Clara, with a smile.

"You are mistaken," she said, madly. "I love myself best."

"Good Heavens! what have I ever done to be degraded thus!"

"Degraded—by my love!"

"Degraded! I bowed to lower her," she said, wildly. "Oh, go—let me never see you again. Go, before I say words which will never be forgotten."

"Your love—me—your!" she said, madly. "I love myself best."

"Good Heavens! what have I ever done to be degraded thus!"

"Then you refuse me the explanation I have every right to ask?"

"Yes, a thousand times yes! I cannot do it! I hate myself more than Heaven helps me!—I have for keeping silence; but I cannot break it. I cannot say to you—to the man who has been my friend, whom I respected, whom—yes, whom I loved for a few hours—hours that he is not what he is now; whom he is not what his friends think him; he is not what his friends think him; but I cannot say it—I cannot say it!"

"The was in a frenzy of misery and anger. She wrung her hands; she pressed them passionately to her bleeding bosom; her breath came in gasps from the little parted lips. One moment her face was crimson from chin to brow; the next it was pale as death.

"Leave me to you," said Mr. Burke, huskily. "What do you know, and who do you know?" he said, adding, earnestly.

"Who has told you?"

"Ah! you are moved at last!" he said, with a wild laugh. "How do I know what do I know? I know that Mr. Burke, who seems all honor, and truth, and integrity, is all deceit."

She turned away with a heart-broken, miserable cry, and covered her face with her hands.

"Clara," he said, very gently, "I sought you to-day to tell you what, by some means or another, has reached your ears. You have closed my lips; there is no necessity to speak."

"You ask me what?" he said, wildly. "My heart is cold, really, none of what has happened to me can move me."

"You know all? There is, therefore, no necessity for any explanation, and to attempt to justify my conduct, he added, with a sad dignity, "would be only useless, but humiliating."

What I had seen of you made me hope that my unhappy story would have had a better ending. It was a bitter mistake, but one which I think Heaven punishes suffering on no one but myself.

At least, you will keep my secret from me," said Clara, with a smile.

"None do not feel anger against you and such as you; one feels only contempt!"

He looked at her, speechless, with surprise, and something like fear dawning in his eyes. Had the trouble which had fallen upon her turned her brain? But she knew—could she know what she was saying?

"Explain yourself," he said, as calmly as possible. "Explain yourself! Such words as those, coming even from your lips, demand an explanation!"

"Need I give that explanation?" he said, wildly. "Does not your own guilty conscience speak for itself?"

"My guilty conscience," he repeated, surprised and dread deepening in his face. Upon his honor as a gentleman I do not know what you mean."

"Your honor! You a gentleman!" she said, with a burst of hysterical laughter.

"Oh! I am not in possession of the first," he said, with a smile.

Mr. Burke turned away from her and paced up and down the room, his eyes fixed on the gay rosebuds on the carpet at his feet. When he turned to her again the girl had sunk upon a chair in which she crouched, her face hidden against the cushions, her hands clasping it convulsively.

measure of justice, untouched by pity, for a past whose wrongs she had suffered, but not conceiving, put the thoughts away. Perhaps it is best after all. You and she were happy; you will be so again."

Mr. Burke waited patiently until the heavy sob ceased and lifted her head. Now that the temporary strength lent her by the tears had left her she was white and exhausted, and her hands fell listlessly at her sides.

"Why don't you leave me?" she said, faintly. "Surely I have humiliated myself enough. You must understand me. Go!"

"As I live, I cannot understand you," she said, earnestly. "Clara, pitiful to yourself, if not to me, tell me what you mean!"

"He drew a chair near hers and sat down. The girl was powerless to prevent him, and when he took her hand she left it in his, cool and heavy as ice.

He waited silently.

"Well," he said, very gently at last, "tell me all about Clara, my darling, as I went on, tenderly, "do you think it does not come to the heart to see you thus and to distress you further? And yet, in justice to myself, for the sake of our mutual happiness, I must bear you. I cannot bear you, Clara—be frank with me."

She drew her hand slowly from his and looked at him.

"What did you call me?" she said, in a low, hollow, mournful voice.

"Did you call me—me—your darling—yours?"

He knelt down beside her and threw his arm round the shaking, trembling figure.

"Ah, Clara!" he said in a tone of the softest tenderness, "did the word surprise you? You know, you must know that I love you. Nay, you yourself gave me permission to love you."

"You are—good!" Clara said, in a tone of dazed bewilderment.

"As my life!" And as he spoke he heard her unrelenting to his heart.

For one moment she suffered the brunt, for one moment her head lay upon his breast; the next she had wrung herself from him and was pushing him away from her with a strength he could not resist.

"I love you—me—your!" she said, madly. "I love myself best."

"Good Heavens! what have I ever done to be degraded thus?"

"Degraded! I bowed to lower her," she said, wildly. "Oh, go—let me never see you again. Go, before I say words which will never be forgotten."

"I found him skulking out from the end of a stick," he said. "It was this coming in contact with his face that had awakened him. A pane had been skilfully cut out from the window which was within two feet of the head of the bed, and $600 in gold, money he had received that day. There is no doubt that an attempt had been made to chloroform and rob him, but there is no suspicion as to who the would-be robbers are."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

A Thief's Use of Chloroform.

George Bestwick of Pulaiki, was awakened one night by a noise which sounded like a struggle, and he sprang out of bed and caught hold of a stick, which was instantly jerked back, but without breaking his hold. Bestwick sprang out of bed, and looking out of a window, saw two men disappearing into the darkness.

He struck the stick on the ground, and found a sponge saturated with chloroform on the end of a stick. It was this coming in contact with his face that had awakened him.

A pane had been skilfully cut out from the window which was within two feet of the head of the bed, and $600 in gold, money he had received that day.

There is no doubt that an attempt had been made to chloroform and rob him, but there is no suspicion as to who the would-be robbers are.

The Cure of Drunkenness.

A task with which the regular practitioner has been unable to cope. Nine-tenths of mankind are subject to it, and it is a disease which a man may overcome by force of will.

Drunkenness is a bad habit, we all admit, in the moderate drinker. In the confirmed drunkard it becomes a disease of the nervous system. The medical treatment of this disease consists in the removal of remedies that act directly upon those portions of the nervous system which, when diseased, cause drunkenness, and the drinking habit. Remedies must be employed that will cure the appetite, for strong drink is the chief cause of drunkenness, balance the mind, and quiet the lassitude, stupor, or abated spirits.

The nervous system of the drunkard being all unstrung, or shattered, must be given a nutriment that will tone the place of the accumulated liquor, and prevent the habitual and morbid habits, which are directly associated with the drinking habit.

Those readers who are interested in this subject should send their address for Lubson's Treatment, in book form, on drunkenness, opium, and other habits, and kindred habits, which will be mailed free to any address, with stamp.

Adress, M. V. Lubson, 47 Wellington street east, Toronto, Ontario.

A Black List.

of diseases follows an unhealthy condition of the liver, one of the most important organs of the body. Impure blood, bronchitis, asthma, malarial diseases, consumption, skin diseases, etc., are common causes of liver disease.

"You know all? There is, therefore, no necessity for any explanation, and to attempt to justify my conduct, he added, with a sad dignity, "would be only useless, but humiliating."

What I had seen of you made me hope that my unhappy story would have had a better ending. It was a bitter mistake, but one which I think Heaven punishes suffering on no one but myself.

At least, you will keep my secret from me," said Clara, with a smile.

"Could I tell her—I could tell her—you will be what you have ever been!" he said, huskily. "You will not let this make any difference!"

"True! She has never known. He hesitated a moment. "Clara," he said, very gravely, but with a tenderness she could not feel. "If, in the future, your harsh judgment of my troubles you, and you may wish that you had not met me such close

III Temper.

Is more rapidly improved by relief from physical suffering than in any other way. Step on your friend's corn, and the impulsive feelings of rage and fury will pass away.

The following prescription will remove them, by quickly and safely:

"Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescriptions' will relieve you of nervous and other weakness, and all theills peculiar to your sex."

Lord Charles Thynne, uncle of the Marquis of Bath, was a priest and canon of Canterbury Cathedral. He resigned his professorship in 1852 and now, in his 73d year, has entered the Catholic priesthood.

THE FARM.

A BALANCE GATE.

The difficulty with most swinging gates about the farm, on roads and pathways used in winter, is that when we have a heavy fall of snow, they cannot be used until the snow is cleared away. We give here a plan of a balance gate, in which the gate proper is hung upon the balance pole by chains, so that it may either be allowed to drag, or it may be taken up so as to hang higher, and thus be used in winter. The arms of the gate are likely to form a latch when the gate is closed, and forms a secure fastening.

A BALANCE GATE.

TENDER FOOTED HORSES
Horses' feet become tender from many causes. Some of the ailments are curable, others will not be relieved. If possible, the feet must be shod; and especially true of chronic laminitis (founder) and navicular disease (coffin joint lameness). In these diseases the horses "points" in a marked manner, limp often badly and manifest tenderness when tapped with a hammer. The feet are usually swollen from all labor and turned hock-footed into a soft pasture for a few months, a permanent cure might be affected. If, however, he must be used, it may be done with a little care. The shoe must be supplied with a elastic steel plate over the whole sole and stiffening the space between the plates and the sole with oakum, saturated with tar. We have employed this method with great satisfaction in the case of a horse tender from navicular disease, as nearly as we the shoe, and the toe of the hoof then rasped, or cut out a little, so that the tongue of the nail can grip under. A nail of red oakum was used, and had in each two nails were driven, and before they were clenched, the shoe was nailed on (see fig. 3), and the clinches drives into notches cut with a sharp chisel. The shoe is then riveted out with the rest. Finally, as much metal as could be crowded in at the heel, was shod under the plate, care being taken not to let it lie in lumps, but to make an even, firm cushion, bearing equally on sole and frog. This was well done, and the horse has not taken a really lame step since. He travels as if he were on the soft turf of a meadow, over rough hill paths, and on MacAdam roads. The pads of oakum are gradually worn down, so that the frog grows so that they rise up the sides of the shoe, after more than three weeks, has not come so excessive as to be troublesome.

FIG. 2.—SHOE.

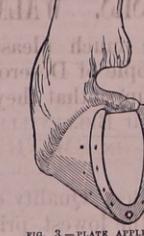

FIG. 3.—PLATE APPLIED.

could determine, in both front feet. There was moderate contraction, the feet being quite small, the heels were high, and the bearing and wear of the feet chiefly at the toes. This indicated tenderness of the toes. On examination, the tenderness was of frog-pond origin. On the second day the horse was square and travelled quite free. On hard ground, he crept along on his toes and could not be urged off of a "groggy" trot or amble. The farrier cut his heels well down, preserving the surface as even as possible, but not so low as to expose the frog. Places are placed like figure 1, were cut from an old saw blade, the temper having been drawn. At the toe, a tongue of metal was left, and a hole punched in it. The edge of each plate was struck into the edge of the other, so that when applied, it lay close and was held in place farther off from the sole than if it were flat. When shoe (fig. 2) and plate and hoof were ready, the plate was retempered, riveted to the hoof, and the shoe was put on the hoof.

HERE AND THERE.

Hartford now prohibits the selling of Sunday newspapers on the streets after 10 A.M.

Mr. Potter, an English shipbuilder, obtained a separation by reason of his wife's cruelty.

Chester (Mass.) farmers are disposing of their surplus apples at $10 a ton, to be shipped to market means of Mexican fruit. The next Connecticut Legislature will be asked to appropriate $1,500 or $2,000 to assist the Hartford foot guard in a trip to London.

The California gull is successfully domesticated upon several English estates; but our eastern variety resists all attempts at acclimation in Britain.

It is reported that the editor of the new edition of Webster's Dictionary, President Porter of Yale, has decided to admit "bull dozing," "boycott," and "dude" into its precincts, but is hesitating about "mung-wump."

A peculiar band established at Log Cruces, N. M., which is composed of vegetarians and "fathers," who have a new Biblical Colony, is reported to have in its community Dr. Tanner of extended pasting.

The Rock Stone, a well-known Druidical rock in the Wye valley, England, which was overthrown last June, has been replaced in its former position by subscribers to a fund for its restoration.

Ice men along the Kennebec and Penobscot Rivers are preparing to gather this winter's crop. If all the Maine houses now empty be filled, it is said the crop will be the largest ever gathered in that section, amounting up far above 1,000,000 tons.

A steamer laden with corn from Chicago arrived at the China Seas Day. Along the route a number of lighthouses were set up to help the vessel on her way, for the department had ordered the lighthouses to be closed for the winter.

Gloomy fisherman who had been cruelly disabled in an open boat on the Baltic, given $500 two years ago by his fellow citizens. He opened a shop with this money, and prospered so well that on Christmas day he returned the $500 to the city, for the poor.

The King of Bavaria's troubles with creditors and health have, according to Pauline, become as intolerable that he has given up mediating marriage with a millionaire widow, the Baroness Von Kraemer. To this morsel, however, he has been unable to bring himself at the last moment.

The custom in vogue in Massachusetts of sending around drinking water to passengers in railroad trains has been adopted by a Boston theatrical manager. The liquid is dealt out between acts—the service being performed by the usher, and without the inconvenience of a thirsty person leaving his seat.

British widowers with eligible deceased wives' sisters need not despair. The Marriage Law Reform Association is in a position to state that its majority in the new House of Commons is larger than in the last, in which their supporters practically numbered two to one. They are going to introduce their bill in each House in the coming season.

The great Burmese river, the Irrawaddy, is much like the upper Mississippi in magnitude or tidal action, fluctuating in a single night, and steamers caught on them have sometimes to stay there a month. A new pilot is needed about every ten miles, which is all the space he can keep himself informed upon to day.

One of the regiments of the British force in India is composed of sepoyshahs, who are widely known at malady in that region. At Kanchan he found an idol which effects miraculously cure when a sufferer plasters a flake of gold leaf upon the part corresponding to the seat of his own disorder and the abdomen of the idol has been caused to protrude for an extraordinary degree by the plastered offerings of health seekers.

William Henry Brown, a Pittsburgh colored man, has received the bequest of a Virginian named James Spanier, who played with him in the colored boys' school, and was badly wounded in the Confederate service at Fort Harrison and captured. Brown, who was serving in the Union army, saw the Spanier receive kind treatment as a prisoner.

A party of Australian savages have been threatening the attention of several of the leading English papers, and M. Taine has suggested three of them, man, woman, and child—to the Societe d'Anthropologie. It was found that they could only count to the number three; for four they said "many," and a hand and a man.

General cavalry for spoke both English and German. M. Dally took advantage of this fact to make a delicate inquiry concerning cannibalism, and was informed that the savages had sunk their teeth into the flesh of the dead. The rest of the crew, I reflected, had either been drowned, or picked up by the steamer. Better a thousand times be drowned at once, I reflected, than pent up alive in a floating coffin.

"After a long time I began to notice some thin light in the distance. It was the sun; and what were my thoughts I must let the reader imagine, as he can. At nineteen, with so much of life before him, it is terrible for a young person to feel himself entombed in a dark, gloomy, silent place.

The rest of the crew, I reflected, had either been drowned, or picked up by the steamer. Better a thousand times be drowned at once, I reflected, than pent up alive in a floating coffin.

"After a long time I began to notice some thin light in the distance. It was the sun; and what were my thoughts I must let the reader imagine, as he can. At nineteen, with so much of life before him, it is terrible for a young person to feel himself entombed in a dark, gloomy, silent place.

"After a time too, I began to be hungry and thirsty. There was no food in the cabin.

"At this time the bulk floated in the midst of schools of cod, hake, and perhaps other fish. I could hear them chattering and chattering, and heard them sonorous in the water, born to me with curious distinctness.

I know that fishing-vessels might be crushing men, but after every few minutes I went about as loud as I could. My voice was a sharp, strange, mournful sound that it frightened me to hear it.

"Night came on again, as I knew by the fading out of the wavy, shadowy light; the wind rose, too, and soon the bulk rolled so much that the water in the cabin stopped over me at every level.

"The dreary terror of such a long, dark Imprisoned in a Wreck.

Mr. B. P. Peterie, keeper of the Wry Head Light, relates the following remarkable personal experience, while on a fishing-voyage to the Grand Bank of Newfoundland eight years ago.

"My father and my grandfather were both Methodist ministers, and when I was a boy, I used quite frequently to hear them read from the Scripture the story of Jonah.

"In those days I had a very strong impression on my mind, and I now read it with a peculiar interest and sympathy, for I sometimes think that there may probably be a living man whose experience so closely resembles the ancient prophet's own.

"Like many another Cape Ann boy, my first experience of life was as a fisherman. I went to the Bay as we used to do, to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, when I was fourteen years old; shipping on the schooner Edna upon 'half-lines,' as was then the phrase, meaning that I had a half-haul, or half-tide, to go to sea. I would catch the other half going to the owner of the vessel.

"For five years I went out on this day every season, and made fair wages. The last year I was on the schooner Edna and the Harriet, Skipper Croome. There was a crew of us, and we had a good captain and cook, a mulatto named Desays.

"On the night of the 28th of August (that was our second trip that summer), we were on our way to some large vessels, astern of us, I suppose, when we were overtaken by a shark or a whale—something like that.

"The schooner was lying at anchor, with lights up as usual. I had turned in that night shortly after eleven o'clock; there was then no fog, and a mist may have risen.

"I was a sound sleep. I was awakened suddenly by a loud shout of 'Ship ahoy!' and a clatter of feet on deck.

"At the same instant I was aware of a rushing, rearng noise, and heard like the bunting of a pugilist's arrows.

"There were shots, too, at a little distance. Capt. Croome and two sailors—Cates and Smith by name, who were in the cabin but lost soundly asleep, perhaps, in the darkness.

"I jumped out of their beds and up the ladder. But before I could follow the example, I felt the swash of a large wave against the schooner, followed the same instant by a horrible crash against our broadside.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed over the deck.

"I gained a foothold, and standing up, found myself in the little cabin, drenching me in a moment.

"I was half-swimming in it, amidst the broken bones, boards and clothes. For some moments the same heavy grinding noise continued overhead. It was the keel of a large vessel passing over us—crushing us down!

"We were at that moment twenty feet under water, and the water was up to my waist, and weight and momentum of the steamer, and time, had caused me to sink.

"I heard a sharp, ringing noise, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed over the deck.

"I gained a foothold, and standing up, found myself in the little cabin, drenching me in a moment.

"I was half-swimming in it, amidst the broken bones, boards and clothes.

"I was the keel of a large vessel, and could not get up. I was then thrown into the water.

"I heard a sharp, ringing noise, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

"Then came another terrible shock, accompanied by a surging noise, and I heard a hoarse, grating sound, as though the hull had passed off her, I felt the schooner give a mighty shudder, which pitched me headlong, and then she was gone.

"I struggled, and tumbled about, over the deck, and then I heard the thrashing of my hands and feet.

"I was thrown headlong. The lantern fell off its peg, and went out. Bulkheads, bed-chests and boxes fell about me and upon me.

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, JAN. 22, 1886.

Up to the present time, the Militia of a part have authorized the payment of a fraction over $4,000,000 on the expenses of the Northwest rebellion. It is supposed that the total cost of the insurrection will be about $6,000,000.

Mr. Bradlaugh has at last been allowed to take the oath and become a member of the British House of Commons. The electors of Northampton returned him at the recent general election by over five hundred of a majority—a majority larger than ever. It is not to be supposed that they did this because they approved of his particular religious views. They elected him because of his aggressive reform tendencies. He is the great advocate of the abolition of perpetual pensions, a system which has been too long a disgrace to the mother country.

The Imperial Parliament was opened yesterday with great pomp and splendour, the Queen being present in person. Her Majesty takes this method of showing her approval of Lord Salisbury's administration. Not once while Mr. Gladstone was premier did she appear at the opening of Parliament. The cable also informs us that several dukes and other nobles threaten the disruption of the liberal party unless Mr. Gladstone changes his policy on the Irish question. The leader of the opposition, who is as much as ever the real, though uncrowned king, of the British race, must smile at all these petty slights. It is not by royal favor or the support of titled magnates that a statesman in England retains power in this age of free democracy. John Hodge and his brother workmen did not control the ballot-box, and with these at his back Mr. Gladstone can proceed to carry out those important reforms which now await completion at his hands.

Mr. George Stephen, President of the Canada Pacific Railway Company, has been created a baronet by Her Majesty the Queen. No Canadian is more deserving of such an honor. Mr. Stephen who has risen from the ranks showed himself when a young man to be earnest and upright in business, as a merchant he was enterprising, and as a banker he proved himself a financier of his views, who completely understood the business interests of the country. As President of the C. P. R. Company he has contributed more than any other man to the success of their great undertaking. His shrewd foresight and indomitable energy have, in the face of the most severe criticism and hostile opposition, enabled him to carry to successful completion the greatest railway enterprise of the age. We have always believed that the Canadian Pacific Railway would be a great advantage to the whole Dominion, and feel confident that under its present capable management it will pay its way. Already the introduction of Manitoba wheat into the older provinces has lessened the price of bread to every consumer.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

DESERONTO, JAN. 18th 1886.

The Council elected in the Council Room at 11 o'clock a. m. Members present, Wm. R. Aylsworth, Reeve, and R. H. Baker, Jas. Cameron, John Edwards and Geo. Stewart, Consulting Clerk.

The members elect having made and subscribed the necessary declarations of qualification and office proceeded to transact business, the Reeve presiding.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

Mr. McQuan, I load wood.....$1.00
The Rathbun Co., I Scraper for.....
Sidewalks.....
Benjamin Brewer, repairs on Town Hall doors.....
.....75

Moved by Mr. Cameron, secy to Mr. Stewart, that Mr. John McCullough be appointed assessor for Deseronto for the year 1886. Carried.

The Reeve introduced a By-Law to appoint Mr. McCullough, Assessor, which was passed.

On motion of Mr. Edwards, secy to Mr. Cameron, Mr. R. Rayburn was appointed Auditor for 1886 and the Reeve appointed Mr. A. H. McGaughy.

A motion introduced by the Reeve to appoint Messrs. Rayburn and McGaughy, Auditors was read and passed, being numbered 109.

On motion the following were appointed a Local Board of Health for 1886:

Dr. Gilmour, Dr. E. W. Rathbun,
Mr. F. C. Whitton,

The Reeve introduced a By-Law appointing Dr. Clinton, Mr. E. W. Rathbun, F. C. Wilson and the Reeve and Clerk of the Village, as a Board of Health for the year 1886, which was read and numbered 110.

Moved by Mr. Baker, secy to the Reeve, that Messrs. Edwards, Cameron and Stewart be a Committee to have Council Room and rooms repaired and therewith cleaned and re-painted. Carried.

The consideration of the Hydemic case having been laid over at the last meeting Mr. Cameron moved, secy to Mr. Edwards, that the Board of Commissioners Baker and Stewart inquire into the case and report to the Council at its next meeting. Carried. Council adjourned.

R. N. IRVINE,
Clerk.

The Locomotive Works at Kingston will be opened Feb. 1st. They will employ one hundred men.

BIGAMISTS SPEEDY DOWNFALL.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 18.—A bigamy case, which has been the subject of much interest in the public press, occurred here on Saturday. In the autumn of last year a young man named Silas E. Shaper, who was engaged in peddling sewing machines and oil burners, married a girl named Alice, and afterward a girl named Maud Vandewater, between 12 and 16 years of age, who had lived with her grand parents on Foster avenue. He at once began paying his addresses to her, after which he sent a letter from him from Oneida, in which he informed her that he had established a grocery business and was doing well, and stated that if she would consent to have him as her husband he would come at once. Miss Vandewater showed the letter to her grand parents, whose excuse being removed, an affirmative answer was sent. On Thursday the girl received another letter from Shaper, in which he said he had been successful in getting his coming as early as he wished, and asking her to send her photograph, which he mailed to him with a love letter the same day. On Friday, however, Shaper arrived with his horse and cutter, and urging immediate marriage, the couple were united by the Rev. J. B. Clarkson, pastor of the Bridge-street Church, between 11 and 12 o'clock on Saturday morning. After dinner they drove to Redford's, on the east of Oneida, about two miles from town, where Shaper was arrested by the chief of police of this place as he was putting up his horse in the stable. The cause of the arrest was, that on Saturday morning, the chief received a telegram from Mr. Morris, constable of Oneida, informing him to meet him at the train at North Hastings junction. He did so and was put in communication with Mr. E. Dancey, of Omemee, and Mrs. Shaper, wife of Mr. Silas E. Shaper, who was then in the stable. The chief learned his horse and cutter to Shaper, who said he was to see a sister of his wife who was very ill. Meeting Mrs. Shaper, he learned that the story was false, and she had received Miss Vandewater's last letter to her husband, she and Mr. Dancey had had a conference, and had agreed to let her husband and the latter to recover his horse and cutter. The chief at once arrested Shaper, who was taken to the cells and confronted with his wife. He at first denied all knowledge of her, but subsequently acknowledged his guilt. Mr. Shaper, who was formerly Miss Kate Welsh of Lindsay, was married to Shaper on the 1st December last. She was the daughter of a widow, and had about $650 in cash with which she established himself in Belleville. Height 5 ft. 2 in., 30 years of age, and states that she comes from the back of Cornwall. He was arraigned in the Police Court this morning, and elected to be tried summarily, and pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

HOW TO BUILD UP A TOWN.

(Going the rounds, no credit attached.)
Talk about it.
Write about it.
Speak well of it.
Help to improve it.
Beautify the streets.
Patronize the merchants.
Advertise in its newspapers.
Elect good men in all offices.
Spend well of its enterprising public-spirited citizens.
If you are rich, invest in something, employ somebody; be a "russler."
If you don't think of any good word to say, don't say anything bad about it.
Remember that every dollar you invest in a permanent improvement is that much on interest.

Be courteous to strangers that come among you, so they may go away with good impressions.

Always cheer up the men who go in for improvements. Your portion of the cost will be nothing only what is just.

Don't kick about any necessary public improvement because it is not at your own door, or for fear that your taxes may be raised 15 cents.

Never condemn a local paper. If it has dealt wrong with you, write to it. Tell the editor about your case. If he was wrong, he will lose no time in telling it to the public.

If you are a business man don't advertise merely to "help the printer along," advertise to help your business and the town along.

AN AGE OF DISCOVERY.

We certainly ought to appreciate the fact that we are living in an age of progress and discovery, this is especially appreciated by all persons that have been afflicted with misfortune, as West World's Wonder or Family Limiting, the best book for Runamuck. It is invaluable for Cutaneous, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all diseases requiring external application. Sold by W. G. Eggar, druggist. Price 25 cents and 50 cents per bottle.

A choice lot of Dairy Butter just received at THE BIG STORE.

Save your money by ordering all newspapers and magazines at THE TRIBUNE office.

DEATHS.

BOWEN—In Napane, on Sunday, Jan. 10th, 1886, Sarah Bowen, aged 79 years.

EMPEY—In Napane, on Sunday, Jan. 9th, 1886, Fletcher C. Empey, second son of Thomas Empey, aged 22 years and 4 months.

HAMILTON—In North Fredericksburgh, on Monday, Jan. 11th, 1886, William F., only son of Mr. Donald Ham, aged 20 years and 5 months.

WILSON—At her late residence near Deseronto, on Wednesday, Jan. 20th, Mary McMaster, relict of the late James Wilson, aged 88 years.

MARRIAGES.

O'BRIEN—FOOT—By the Rev. D. O. Crossley, on the 16th inst., at the residence of Mr. Thomas Carroll, Deseronto. Mr. John O'Brien, of Uxbridge, to Miss Alice Foot of Deseronto.

DESERONTO MARKET.

Deseronto, Jan. 21st 1886.

BARLEY,	55 to 65 cents per bushel.
OATS,	30 to 35 "
BUTTER,	18 to 21 cents per pound.
LARD,	5 to 6 "
BEEF,	3 to 4 "
LARD,	9 to 11 "
Eggs,	18 to 20 cents per dozen.
POTATOES,	50 to 65 cents per bag.
CHICKENS,	20 to 35 cents per pair.
DUCKS,	50 to 60 "
GEES,	50 to 60 cents each.
TURKEY,	60 to $1 "
HIDES,	5 to 7 dollars per cwt.
PELTS,	50 to 75 cents each.
Tallow,	In rough 3 cents per lb.
Tallow rendered,	51 "
HOGS,	live weight, $4.00 to $5.00 per cwt.
HOGS, dead,	$5.00 to $6.50 "

THE BEST AND

CHEAPEST ORGANS

AND

SEWING MACHINES

FOR SALE BY

JOHN DALTON

AT THE

FURNITURE WAREROOMS,
ST. GEORGE STREET.

NEW STORE!

BELLEVILLE PRICES!

MESSRS. WALMSLEY & SPAFFORD,

Have much pleasure in announcing to the people of Deseronto and surrounding country that they have opened a branch of their BELLEVILLE TEA AND GROCERY HOUSE IN SMITH'S BRICK BLOCK, DESERONTO, The Best Quality of Goods will be offered at the lowest prices for cash. We trust to receive a share of your patronage and the good will of all. Our MR. MOTT will endeavor to please those favoring us with a call.

WALMSLEY & SPAFFORD.

Tea & Coffee Merchants.

18-21

Cheap! Cheap! Cheap!

THE DESERONTO NEWS COMPANY

Offers BOOKS and STATIONERY of every description at exceedingly low prices.

INK

PENS

PAPER

SLATES

PENCILS

MUCILAGE

all marked down to lowest rates.

NEW SERIES SCHOOL READERS.

A new supply of well selected books by popular authors at prices from 10 cts. up.

JUST OPENED
$2,000 worth of New Staple Dry Goods,

—AND—

50 SUITS OF MENS' CLOTHING,
Which will be sold at Prices Cheaper than you ever bought them.

Deseronto, Nov. 19th.

C. GOODMURPHY.

THE CANADA WIRE MATTRESS CO.

Are manufacturing the BEST and CHEAPEST mattress in the market.

Any person in want of a good durable mattress at a moderate price, should call at the BIG STORE where the above will be kept constantly on hand.

SAD FATE OF A MUSICIAN.

Perhaps you know young Henri Bland ? If so, I need not say That he was a son, wise and good, And honest as the day ; In fact, I'm sure his character Was free from every mark— Except that one stupendous fault— He picked the light guitar !

He never smoked, nor snuffed, nor shewed, No one e'er saw him tight, On Sunday closing he was sound, And always slept right ; Quaintly he would sit at church, With something for a plate, In fact he seemed an ideal youth. But—praps you'd better wait.

One most unhappy day he came Unto his domicile, A long green bag was in his hand, He wore a sickly smile ; Up to his room with sneaking steps The precious bag bore, And laid it gently on the bed. And double locked the door.

With trembling nerves his fingers drew From out the green bag— A like person looking now guitar— Like many have a guitar ; A harmless looking light guitar, Yet, oh, the woe it wrought ! And, ah, if Bland had only known What wretchedness he brought !

Just let me state that this young man Was a persistent lad, What's e'er he doed to have His heart set and has it ? He meant to play, and though he lacked Both time and tune and taste, Yet still through all his leisure hours, He practised with wild haste.

He scarce had time for sleep and meals, He snapped and twanged and picked, Through long and weary days and weeks— Until the boarders kicked ; Then Henri Bland was forced to move— He found another place, And still his never tiring joints Across the strings raced.

Six times within a single month Poor Henri had to move, But no place suited to the cause Did this young martyr prove. I think 'twas at the seventh place He struck a fatal blow, For there he managed to pick out The Spanish Fandango !

Before he tamed the light guitar A maiden fair he met, And now to serenade the girl His wild desire was set. He went, he picked, he snapped, he sang ! Then through the darkness weird A boor-jack caught him 'neath the ear— He stopped entirely and disappeared.

Was Lynch'd ?—Perhaps—I do not know, And so I'll leave him at dawn, And still the world's a better place— Wore both entirely gone. Some one, I'm told, last week saw Bland— My ear the story tries— High on a telegraphic pole A-picking at the wires.

BEANS AS FOOD.

The nutritive value of beans is very great, greater than almost any other article of food in common use. Considering their richness we are probably the cheapest food we have, yet somewhat difficult of digestion, probably on account of the fact that we eat them thin enough and the starches inamincient. In preparing beans for the table they should first be well soaked in cold water, then thrown into boiling water and cooked of a medium consistency, between a fluid and a solid, neither too soft nor too hard. They require a little acid when eaten, and a sufficient amount of salt to render them palatable. They may be eaten with potatoes or other vegetables which contain more starch and less albumen rather than with too much bread or meat.—Washington Evening Star.

CARE OF UMBRELLAS.

Umbrellas will last longer if when wet they are placed handle downwards to dry. The moisture falls from the edges of the frame and the fabric dries uniformly. If stood handle upward, which is commonly the case, the top of the umbrella holds the water and causes the moisture underneath the rings and therefore takes a long time to dry, thus injuring the silk or fabric with which it is covered. This is the prime cause of the top of the umbrella wearing out sooner than the other part. Umbrella cases, too, are responsible for the rapid wear of the fabric. The cases cover causes the tiny holes that appear so profusely early. When not in use leave the umbrella loose; when wet never leave it open to dry, as the tense condition thus produced makes the silk stiff and then it will soon crack.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A CURE FOR SMALL POX.

A correspondent of an exchange gives the following as a cure for small pox:—"I here-with append a recipe which has been used to my knowledge by hundreds of cases. It will remove all small pox even though the pitting is filling. When Jenner discovered the cow pox in England the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame on his head, but when the most scientific school [lived] in the world—such as the Royal College of Physicians—had no opinion as to what small pox was, it is as unfailing as fate, and conquer in every instance. It is perfectly harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I get it, and it is a most singular thing to see how well it works. I have used it to remove small pox when learned physicians said the patient must die. Sulphur of zinc, 1 grain; glove (digitalis), 1 grain; ½ teaspoonful of sugar; mix with 2 table-spoonsful of water. Take this in the morning, and it will be removed in 24 hours. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, small doses according to age. If afflicted persons would use this there would be no use of pest houses. If you value advice and experience use this for that terrible scourge."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

General DeCourcy has been recalled from Annan.

Montana reports a temperature 48 degrees below zero.

Belfast Loyalists have again protested against Home Rule.

Armenian rebels are advancing against the Italian garrison.

Mr. Sandford Fleming has been again elected Chancellor of Queen's University.

The Queen is reported to have sent a letter to Mr. Gladstone on the Irish question.

Mr. Stead, editor of the "Pall Mall Gazette," was liberated from gaol on Monday.

The Bishop of Toronto opened the proceedings of the new Toronto Council with prayer.

Connection was made last Monday between the northern and southern sections of the Calandale extension.

Mr. George M. Morris, who wrote the moment he would have spent in an inaugural banquet, to the relief of the poor.

During December the total receipts of inland revenue for the Dominion amounted, according to the unvised statement, to $572,340.

The name of the parties who stole Miss Bennett's corpse from the vault at Smithfield Cemetery, London, have been secured by the lady's relatives, who intend prosecuting them.

A young man named Robert Dufour fell through the hoist from the fourth to the second floor in McDougall & Currie's hardware store, Ottawa, on Monday, and was instantly killed.

From correspondence now published it transpires that Lord Carnarvon made it a condition precedent to his acceptance of the Irish Vice Royalty that he should resign after the elections.

McDonald, of Galt, has been arrested with his wife with an axe during a quarrel. Mrs. McDonald is in a very low condition from her wounds.

Prince Edward Island is sending the Provincial and Provincial Secretary to England to insist on the provisions of the B. N. A. Act, and to continue the negotiations with the mainland, being carried out.

A company has been organized of Rochester and Buffalo capitalists to engage in the ice business on a mammoth scale. The idea is to build large ice houses on the shores of Silver Lake. Thence ice will be carried by rail to the Great Lakes and hauled through the streets of the two cities at night on the street railway track.

Col. Herchmer, of the North-West Mounted Police, has been appointed to investigate the value and extent of the suffering among the half-breeds in the Batoche district. All the Indians have been gathered to many villages in the shape of fortifications. Many of the half-breeds assisted have been found destitute of clothing, as was at first reported.

A Woodstock girl named Collins died suddenly while playing with her playmates. She was buried without a funeral service, when it was discovered that a dismal struggle had taken place after burial. The shroud had been torn to shreds, the knees were drawn up to the chin, one of the arms was twisted under the head, and the features bore evidence of dreadful tortures.

THE MERCHANT NAVIES OF THE WORLD.

A comparative table of the strength of the merchant navies of the world which has just been published in France shows that the British navy is the largest in the world, with an aggregate tonnage of 11,200,000 tons. Of these vessels 4,649 are steamers, with a tonnage of 5,919,000 tons, or rather more than one-half the grand total of burden. The United States comes a very bad second, having 2,900 vessels, with a tonnage of 1,400,000 tons. France is third, with 3,000 vessels, a tonnage of 4,200 vessels, 1,500,000 tons, and Germany, which comes immediately after her, has 3,000 vessels, with a tonnage of 1,400,000 tons; France, Italy, and Russia bring up the rear, each with less than 3,000 vessels. The importance of the merchant navy is of greater importance than the total number of ships engaged in trade, and in this regard France stands second, although she has but 458 steamers of 667,000 tons in all, to England's 4,649. Germany presses her closely with 450 steamers and 476,000 tons.—New York Sun.

COMMUNICATIONS.

WELL DESERVED.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR.—Permit me through your columns to extend the thanks of the Dramatic Association to Mr. Samuel Anderson and company for their generous contribution of the orchestra at our late entertainment.

Yours truly,
W. D. MCRAE.

Deseronto, Jan. 20th, 1886.

Mr. Witts is now fairly installed in his photographic studio and is prepared to accommodate all classes of customers. He can paint some specimens of his skill which show that he is an excellent artist. Give him a call.

MOTHERS TAKE NOTICE.—West's cough Syrup contains no Opium, Opium or any minerals, and can be given to the youngest and most delicate child with perfect safety.

A bottle should always be kept convenient as it is also a certain cure for Coughs, Cold Consumption in its early stages, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Throats and Lung Troubles. Price 25 cents 50 cents and $1 per bottle. Call on W. Egan, Druggist.

Our Bu. Store is head quarters for Ladies' Fine boots and shoes; A new stock has just been opened and many new and desirable lines have been added to their already varied assortment. Among them we find a large variety of ladies' shoes, including French Kid buttoned boots, manufactured by J. King & Co., of Toronto, who are so favorably known to the people of Deseronto for the excellency of their goods; these goods are the best quality and are to be had at a reasonable price.

They also keep a full range of sizes of the Dongola Boot, which will wear longer than any other leather of the same weight. You will save money by purchasing your boots at THE BIG STORE.

NEW STORE, NEW GOODS.

Belleville Prices!

MOSSES, WALMSLEY & SPAFFORD

have much pleasure in announcing to the people of Deseronto and surrounding country that they have opened a branch of their BELLEVILLE

Tea & Grocery House,

IN

SMITH'S BRICK BLOCK, DESERONTO.

The Best Quality of Goods will be offered at the Lowest Prices for Cash.

We trust to receive a share of your patronage and the good will of all. Our Mr. MOTT will endeavor to please those favoring us with a call.

WALMSLEY & SPAFFORD, Tea and Coffee Merchants.

18-21

BAY OF QUINTE Railway & Navigation Company.

CHANGE OF TIME.

THE TRAINS OF THIS ROAD MAKE connection with all G. T. R. trains both East and West, and with Steamers of the Deseronto Navigation Company for all Bay and River ports.

1885. TIME TABLE. 1886.

DESERONTO & GRAND TRUNK LINE. BAY OF QUINTE RAILWAY.

TRAIN GOING NORTH.

STATIONS	MON.	TUE.	WED.	THUR.	FRI.	SAT.	SUN.
No. 1. L. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 2. L. 2. 2. 2. 2. 2. 2. 2.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 3. L. 3. 3. 3. 3. 3. 3. 3.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 4. L. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 5. L. 5. 5. 5. 5. 5. 5. 5.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 6. L. 6. 6. 6. 6. 6. 6. 6.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 7. L. 7. 7. 7. 7. 7. 7. 7.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 8. L. 8. 8. 8. 8. 8. 8. 8.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 9. L. 9. 9. 9. 9. 9. 9. 9.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 10. L. 10. 10. 10. 10. 10. 10. 10.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 11. L. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 12. L. 12. 12. 12. 12. 12. 12. 12.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 13. L. 13. 13. 13. 13. 13. 13. 13.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 14. L. 14. 14. 14. 14. 14. 14. 14.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 15. L. 15. 15. 15. 15. 15. 15. 15.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 16. L. 16. 16. 16. 16. 16. 16. 16.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 17. L. 17. 17. 17. 17. 17. 17. 17.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 18. L. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30
No. 19. L. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19.	3:30 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45 7:45	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30	12:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1:30 1

The Tribune.

VOL. III.

DESERONTO, ONT. FRIDAY, JAN. 29, 1886.

NO. 20

THE TRIBUNE,

Published every Friday Morning.

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO. (LIMITED.)

Proprietors.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.—One copy, $1.00 per year
6 cents per month. Strictly in ad. &c.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE	1 LINE	6 MOSES	3 MOSES
Column	$50.00	$30.00	$15.00
Half Column	30.00	18.00	9.00
Quarter Column	20.00	12.00	7.00
One Inch	5.00	3.00	1.75
Business Cards, (less than one inch)	4.00	2.50	1.75

Two Lines, Found, Strayed, etc., 25 cts. each insertion; or on a contract at the rate of 75 cents per month.

Casual advertisements 6 cents per line first insertion; each subsequent insertion 2cts. per line.

communications should be addressed to

THE DESERONTO NEWS CO., (LIMITED),
Deseronto, Ont.

MARRIAGE LICENCES.

T. G. FILE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENCES,
Deseronto Ontario. 3

COAL.

FOR HOUSE USE OR BLACKSMITH SHOPS, AT
lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

SALT.

BY CAR LOAD, BARREL, OR IN BULK, AMERIcan or Canadian, at lowest market rates. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

WATER LIME.

WATER LIME, PORTLAND CEMENT, AND
Plaster Paris for sale, cheap, and direct from the works. Write for prices.

THE RATHBUN CO.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN HOTEL.

J. JOHNSON & O'NORR STS., KINGSTON.
This house has been refurbished and re-furnished throughout. Charges moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.

NOTICE.

INSURANCE ON FARM OR VILLAGE PROPERTY at live rates in Standard Stock Companies—the Royal Insurance Company and Colonial Union of England, Western, and British America, of Toronto, Ontario.

THE RATHBUN CO.

O'CONNOR HOUSE.

THESE HOTELS IS ELEGANTLY FURNISHED in the latest style. Large and convenient Sample Rooms; and every accommodation and comfort for guests. The house is well adapted for business men, ladies, and Cigars.
Charges moderate. First-class Livery in connection.
Good Yard and Stables attached.

P. O'CONNOR, Prop't.,
Deseronto, Ont.

QUEEN'S HOTEL.

OPPOSITE CITY HALL,
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

First-class hacks connecting with all train cars pass the door every fifteen minutes.

2-1. SIBBITT & CO., Proprietors

TO LET.

Comfortably Furnished Rooms with or without Board.

Apply at THE TRIBUNE OFFICE,
Deseronto, Jan. 28th, '86. 3

LOST OR FOUND.

LOST.—A Black Fur Cape, on Saturday,
9th inst., between Napane and Deseronto. The finder will oblige by leaving same at
THE TRIBUNE Office. 18

LOST.

On Monday morning, the 25th inst., between Napane and Deseronto, a

GREY FUR ROBE,

with name of L. T. VORCE printed in large letters inside. The finder will oblige by leaving the same at
THE TRIBUNE Office, Deseronto, Jan. 26th, '86. 2

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

PARTIES WISHING TO HAVE LET-TERS POSTED after hours will please leave them at Egar's Drug Store, Main St.
Deseronto.

E. HARRISON.

350 Front Street, Belleville.

Keeps in Stock and makes to order on short notice all classes of Account Books, General
Book-binding, from the Plainest Library Style to the best Morocco and Calf, with Gilt or Marbled Edge, Paper ruling, Map
Mounting, Varnishing, Music Binding, Picture Framing, Improved Mills and Sewing Books, Books, Memento Books and intricate ruling a specialty. Prices close.

MONEY TO LOAN AT 6 PER CENT.

$35,000.00 of Private Money.
Old Mortgages paid in. New Loans taken and Mortgages Purchased.

Apply to
GIBSON & CLUTE,
Barristers, Napane.

FIRE INSURANCE !

We beg to advise those desiring Insurance that we are Agents for

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, of Canada.

THE COMMERCIAL UNION INSURANCE COY
of England.

THE WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY,
of Toronto, Ont.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN INSURANCE COY,
of Toronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farmers will find it to their interest to insure
with us.

Record kept of all Policies and Notices sent in
before expiration of same.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY,
6-L Deseronto, Ont.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN INSURANCE COY.

Who will write Policies as low as any other Stock
Company.

The standing of these Companies is such that all
may be satisfied that in case of loss the settlement
will be prompt and equitable.

Farm

THE BRITISH BARMAID.

She is Apparently not such a Handily Babied Servant as has been Supposed.

There is in reality no reason why a barmaid's should be a less respectable situation than that of any other class of working women, says the Pall Mall Gazette. In the low public houses, however, in which a barmaid is kept, the situation is different; but it is mostly girls from a very low class who enter such a situation, while the great majority of young girls have never in reality been so far from home as from the middle class. They are generally the daughters of tradespeople, railway officials, and restaurant keepers, and are, in the social scale, considered one degree below the young ladies who teach in elementary schools and hold places as nursery governesses.

A girl who wishes to take a situation as barmaid will probably be under 18 years old. On applying for a place she is required to produce one or two references as to her respectability. She has then to pass a short examination in writing and simple arithmetic. He who is in the higher classes of society of the time requires this. The examination satisfactorily passed, she is engaged on a month's trial, during which time she earns nothing besides board and lodging. If, at the end of the month, she is still retained, she may then be apparently engaged, and begins her work at once. I could, perhaps, say here that this manner of training is only adopted in establishments where large numbers of barmaids are employed, and where the place of the rules and regulations are less strict. What the work consists of need hardly be explained, for it appears to everybody who casts a glance at a public bar. Besides the waiters, the barmaid has no duties but those of the house, department, room, and tidy. But, although it may at first moment appear very easy to provide hungry visitors with refreshments, the attentive, civil young lady must nevertheless have her eye to the ball.

The hours of work are hardly fixed. At some refreshment bars, such as, for instance, those at large railway stations, work begins very early in the morning; at others, again, very late hours are kept; but, as a rule, there is a regular time for work, with the usual intervals for meals, making the working day. One evening a week is generally free and one Sunday every month. The wages vary from $ shillings to 10 shillings a week, and the days do not differ in the kind of employment—in which they are exposed to draughts and cold. The monotony and drudgery of which many women complain in their work, are entirely absent from the barmaid's life. The temptation to which she is exposed, though they are not altogether fictitious, are exaggerated—a steady girl, finding no difficulty in keeping a proper distance between herself and her customers without becoming rude, and a girl who is given to dissipating beings is a rare, no good basis, however, and therefore apt to be discharged. To many girls the bustling, hurrying life, the new faces, and the many topics discussed in her hearing are of great attraction, and as a result, girls are led into the society of women. After they have served for some years they may, if they do not marry, which, however, they often do, aspire to the post of a restaurant manager, who has the superintendence of the establishment. As such they earn from $20 to $30 a week, and, if at the head of a large restaurant, there are sure to be able to put up by some savings. Many a woman who has begun life as a barmaid has, as a hotel keeper, later on made a little fortune, and if she has any power of organization and understandance of housekeeping, no woman with a small capital to begin with will find it difficult to make a good living in this way.

A Tragedy of the Pacific.

The steamer Kildare arrived at Cooktown on Nov. 29, with Captain David Brown, sole survivor from the sunken Elbank Castle. The Elbank Castle left Bradshaw a few months since on a cargo trading expedition in charge of Capt. Routh. On a previous cruise two of her crew were massacred, she being then owned by Routh, but not sailed by him. On the return voyage he took a part-time charge, in order to work up a friendly business with the natives.

The vessel went to Sydney, and from thence came on board, carrying tomahawks and spears, and two Captains was showing them off. One day he was shooting at the natives, and if at the head of a large restaurant there are sure to be able to put up by some savings. Many a woman who has begun life as a barmaid has, as a hotel keeper, later on made a little fortune, and if she has any power of organization and understandance of housekeeping, no woman with a small capital to begin with will find it difficult to make a good living in this way.

The Pretty Baby.

"Isn't she a pretty baby, John?" See, just look at him," and the mother holds up there creature to papa, who kisses and fondles him lovingly.

"Yes, John, she is a pretty baby, but Tom is a prettier boy."

"Tom was a pretty baby—everybody said so," and she glanced across the room at a sunny-faced 4 year old, "but Tom is not like Tom, he is taller, he is taller, and his eyes—looking wistfully into the baby's face, "are dark and so deep, that when I look in them I am almost afraid, they have such a way light, they seem to know something we cannot see."

"Oh, nonsense! I don't think that he'll grow up to be a fine fellow. But, Tom would think so much about him, he'd be a dear, good boy, but, I wouldn't want him, it isn't right."

"As if I could help it," the mother says reproachfully, pressing the slight form closer, and looking into the dark eyes again.

A mouth passes away, and one day they stand beside a small white casket, within which the pretty baby is sleeping. Ah, the mother's eyes were sharp, and when friends said, "How sweet she is!" she knew it was the light that never was on land, or sea.

"Oh, John, John!" she said, "I knew he wasn't long for the world. I could see it in his eyes. Oh, my pretty baby, you are so beautiful."

"Yes, dear, you are right," says papa, and there is a glimmer in the firm voice; "if it had pleased God to let him with us we would have cared for him the best we could, but we could give him nothing but love, and that is what he wanted."

"Yes, I know it," and the stoop and cuts a tiny wisp of hair from the baby's head. "Oh, John, you say I worshipped him. I did, oh, I did, and God forgive me, I can't say I did for it now, he was such a dear, pretty baby."

Years pass on. Other babies are born. They are all pretty babies, every one who sees them say that, but none are like the baby with the dark eyes. Look. And the mother goes to gather round mom's chair, and she never tires of telling of the dark-eyed baby who went to live with God. And, when with childish curiosity they open the Bible to look at the pictures, and find between the leaves a tiny wisp of hair tied to a string, they touch it reverently and whisper beneath their breath: "The pretty baby."

Years still pass on. The children grow to sturdy men and women, and as the mother's eyes are still fondling the dark-eyed baby, she says to her son: "He had lived his life and he would have been such a beautiful man," and then she smiles and is glad that in Heaven there is no time, and no matter how the others may change he is still the pretty baby.

One day they gather around her bed, and looking in each other's face morosely whisper: "The pretty baby."

She stretches her thin hand toward the table on which the old Bible rests, and they say: "The baby's hair."

They place it in her hand. She kisses it tenderly and a bright light comes into the dim old eyes, and they say: "The pretty baby."

"What does she say?" She smiles and whispers: "The pretty baby."

They place the wisp of hair on her breast and fold the wrinkled hands upon it, and tenderly lay her by the side of the pretty baby.

ROMANCE OF A POOR YOUNG MAN.

A Head Waiter Who Succeeded to a Little and £12,000 a Year.

A few days ago there sailed for England a young man who was to world famous, and certain enough to construct a romance out of. His father was a younger son of a good family, and related collaterally to a baronet of old descent, living in a valuable estate in which wild in his youth and a clever amateur actor. A junior clerkship was procured for him in the Treasury, and he used to spend as many of his evenings as he could in one or the other, where, when he fell in love with a girl, he was a perfect gallant. His father was the stage-door jack and whose mother was the wadrobe woman in the theatre from which her husband took her.

The union gave great offence to his friends, who found very little difficulty in persuading him to leave England and go directly accompanied by £500 over, and furnished with the sum of £500 over and above their passage money.

During the voyage a son was born to them, and a situation was found for the child's father. "He accidentally got down the hatch and injured his spine so severely that he was bed-ridden from that time forth. He lingered for a twelvemonth after his landing, and then died. His protracted illness had exhausted his resources, and his young wife, who had been brought up in poverty somewhat in debt after paying the funeral expenses. But she was a brave little woman, and soon obtained an engagement at the Theatre Royal under her maiden name, and resolved to go to England and get a favorable education to her boy. She died of cancer for he was seventeen, and his life since then—which was about five years ago—has been one of vicissitudes.

He had been a waiter in a hotel, and one of our restaurants, wherein certain inherent elegance of manner and refinement of accent on his part have often caused me to speculate as to his history. By chance I met the opportunity of rendering him a trifling service, which he repaid with a hearty confidence, and he told me his personal history.

A few months ago glancing down the advertising columns of The Times, I noticed one enquiring for a missis' heir, and the partition of his property to the extent of half of his own narrative. I called his attention to it, and the result was the opening up of a correspondence with a firm of solicitors in Lincoln, a long distance, followed in due time by a letter from them and information that he had succeeded to a baronetcy and £12,000 a year.

No less than three lives had stood between him and when the old possessors of New Guinea, and stranded on the deck, terribly gashed, and laid low at an angle. The vessel drifted about for a week. They then sighted what Brown supposed to be New Guinea, and stranded on the reef. The vessel got off, but not so badly that the man paid all the provisions, and the ship's papers into a boat. On the south-west side of New Guinea they got into a gale, and the sand glibbing suddenly, knocked him overboard. Brown being unable to help him out, shot him with a pistol, and then sailed and drifts about for forty-eight days, when he reached Key Island, and was picked up by a Danish brig on Sept. 25. He had eaten all the provisions in the boat. The crew of the Elbank Castle consisted of the Captain, mate, cook, and three seamen, and a native boy, all of whom perished except Brown.

In the morning the dead bodies of the Captain, mate, cook, one seaman, and a native boy were found floating on the deck.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

In the morning the dead bodies of the Captain, mate, cook, one seaman, and a native boy were found floating on the deck. The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside, and then both them. It then sank, and they slipped the cable and made sail.

The vessel then closed the companionway and fired through the cabin windows at the two other natives inside,

THE WEEK'S NEWS

HOME.

A party of men have left Kingston to make preparations for beginning operations at the fort.

Mr. Smith, of the 47th Battalion, has accepted the command of the 14th Battalion, resigned by Colonel Kerr.

Two of the five gipsy children who were abandoned in Kingston have died of scarlet fever, and two others are ill with the disease.

Many circles in Kingston are again excited over an order calling out another company of the 14th Battalion for garrison duty in the barracks.

At a meeting of the Ontario Beekeepers Association, at Toronto, it was decided to send a display of honey to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

It is proposed to appoint a commission of civil engineers to enquire into and find a remedy for the periodical floods caused by Montreal by the rise in the St. Lawrence River.

Two streets in Beloeil have been flooded to a depth of two feet, consequence of the water having been dammed back by an anchor ice at the mouth of the Moira river.

Great distress prevails on the north-east coast of Cape Breton, the settlers and fishermen having been prevented from getting in their winter supplies by the severe weather.

The names of the two stole Miss Bennett's purse from the vault at Sandhill, and the persons have been secured by the lady's relatives, who intend prosecuting them.

The floods in the western section of Montreal are gradually subsiding. Great distress exists among the people thrown out of employment by the stoppage of the various factories.

The plans and specifications for the deepening of the Welland canal have been prepared, and are on exhibition at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department in Ottawa.

Lachlan McDonald of Galt, has been arrested on charges of attempting to murder his wife with a ax during a quarrel. Mrs. McDonald is in a very low condition from her wounds.

The Kingston School Board has decided to hold an investigation into the conduct of one of its employés who is alleged to have been concerned in the plot to get the educational minutes thrown to the city by the school board.

The attorney of the Canadian Pacific air has from Smith Falls to Montreal, which is expected to shorten the distance between the latter city and Toronto by at least fifty miles, has commenced, and construction will be begun in the spring.

Attorney General Mowat has decided not to proceed further against Mr. McLean, who was under arrest at Toronto on a charge of wilful murder in the shooting of Wm. Hall, barber, the corner's jury having brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Five extensive warehouses, with their contents, were completely destroyed by the fire. Major damage was done to other buildings, and others more or less damaged by fire and water. The total loss is estimated at a little over $200,000, with about $150,000 insurance.

George McCabe, a reporter near London, Ontario, reported a reporter to have died in Dales a few days ago after having confessed the murder of his wife, after he attempted to murder a third, turned up in Chicago the other day and denied the whole story.

A boarding-house at Germany, near Gravenhurst, caught fire early this morning, and the people were compelled to leave in the middle of the night. They managed to escape, awakening the neighbors by the flames. They narrowly escaped with their lives, and almost naked, several being so badly burned that their recovery is doubtful.

The practical joker fender caused a sensation in Hamilton the other Sunday night by picking up a stationery boy and dropping him into a tub of cold water. It caused a scare when found, but on being opened was found to contain only a lump of ice and a few harmless pieces of wire.

It is stated that, in response to representations made by Father Lacombe that the half breeds in the Batoche district were in a state of rebellion, the government has directed the Governor of the territory to supply food and clothing to those he may find upon investigation to be in need of it.

At a meeting held in Ottawa of gentlemen engaged in collecting exhibits for the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, it was shown that those already offered were thoroughly represented. The Minister of Marine has agreed to add to the collection, but owing to the large increase of space allotted, it would be difficult to find room to adequately display the various collections.

Early the other morning Abner Loring, Scotch, aged 45, was found lying in the snow at the corner of Queen and Hunter Streets, in Hamilton. He had his hands and face to badly frozen that the local physicians may have to amputate the hands. Loring has only lived in Hamilton a short time and a few harmless pieces of wire.

It is stated that, in response to representations made by Father Lacombe that the half breeds in the Batoche district were in a state of rebellion, the government has directed the Governor of the territory to supply food and clothing to those he may find upon investigation to be in need of it.

At a meeting held in Ottawa of gentlemen engaged in collecting exhibits for the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, it was shown that those already offered were thoroughly represented. The Minister of Marine has agreed to add to the collection, but owing to the large increase of space allotted, it would be difficult to find room to adequately display the various collections.

The other night No. 26 mixed, going east on G. I. R. struck an unknown man half a mile west of Bell's Corners, and killed him on the spot. He was picked up, but his life was found to be extinct. He was walking along the track at the time of the occurrence, and was not observed until the train was passing upon him that the engineer was unable to stop. As none of the railway men could recognize him it is supposed he was a tramp.

AMERICAN.

Ta boys from Newark, N. J., who were treated by M. Pasteur for hydrocephalus, have arrived home.

There is now no doubt that the remains of Col. Wright and Capt. Moore are buried in the same tomb in the building which collapsed at Louisville, the other day.

A commission of two gentlemen appointed by the American Fishery Union of New England to make a tour of enquiry and engineer an agitation against the renewal of a redundant treaty with Canada have arrived in Buffalo.

It is stated that the losses of cattle through the cold winter in Texas will amount to $100,000,000. The animals on up to date are dead, and the carcasses are frozen solid, and the grass is buried in snow, and the cattle are perishing by hundreds from cold and famine.

It is rumored in Rutland, Vt., that Mr. McNamee, the defrauding president of the Vermont and Hudson, has fled to Canada. Mrs. McNamee is represented as believing that her husband is dead. The Boston detectives, who recovered the bank's money, are in Rutland at work on the matter.

FOREIGN.

Germany has seized the islands of Samoa in the Pacific ocean.

A society has been formed in Paris to prevent the use of dogs.

A snow-storm which lasted fourteen hours, visited Vienna the other day.

A report is current in Cairo that an Arab army is advancing under El Kair.

The Princess of Wales has almost recovered from the effects of her recent illness.

M. de Lesseps is confident that the Panama canal will be completed by the end of 1888.

It is understood the Earl of Carnarvon will shortly resign the Lord-Lieutenancy of Ireland.

The Duchess of Argyle, the Marquess of Lorne's stepmother, is now in a more hopeful condition.

The Duke of Westminster, a Liberal peer, believes England will never grant Home Rule to Ireland.

Prince Bismarck is the first protestant who has ever received the decoration of the Order of Christ.

Mr. Justin McCarthy, the Nationalist member of Parliament, has severed his connection with the Daily News.

The London Telegraph says the conferment of Peascod, member of Parliament held in Dublin was a farce.

Sir Edward Thornton has arrived at Constantinople, and will immediately assume his duties as British ambassador.

The Dominion fishery exhibit at Ottawa will be packed for shipment to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition next week.

King Ludwig of Bavaria is living in the strictest seclusion, and is likely to die in court if that misery is intense.

It is stated an ukase has been issued threatening the expulsion from Russia of all Prussians who have not been naturalized.

Sir Herbert E. Maxwell intends introducing a bill in the Imperial Parliament providing for the docking of dynamitards.

A Carlist chief, while smuggling muskets into Spain from the French frontier, got lost in a narrow pass, and was captured by a party of Spanish marines.

Six hundred convicts in the prison at Riom in the department of Puy-de-Dome, France, have revolted and secured possession of the prison.

The Imperial Government does not intend to prevent Mr. Brailford sitting in the House of Commons as member for Northampton.

The municipal authorities of Paris have undertaken the care and education of three daughters of Oliver Pain, who lost his life in the Soudan.

M. de Lesseps says the French investments in the Suez canal had been returned tenfold, and he expects the Panama canal will be equally fruitful.

A cyclone of twenty minutes, passed over the middle colonies of England lately, doing a great deal of damage to property. Two persons were killed.

An Irish High Sheriff, writing to the London Times, takes a very gloomy view of the situation. He says a famine is approaching, and it will come lawlessness.

The inhabitants of the Phillipine Islands have paid $10,000 to buy torpedo boats with which to prevent the occupation of the islands by a foreign power.

Two persons were killed.

An Irish High Sheriff, writing to the London Times, takes a very gloomy view of the situation. He says a famine is approaching, and it will come lawlessness.

The inhabitants of the Phillipine Islands have paid $10,000 to buy torpedo boats with which to prevent the occupation of the islands by a foreign power.

Farmers in Wales are demanding a permanent reduction of 25 per cent. in their rents, fifty years, and compensation for making improvements to their holdings.

The London Daily News says it is rumoured that Gen. Wolseley is a coup d'etat in Ireland, and that Gen. Wolseley is to be appointed to the command of the military forces in that country.

An Alsace peasant sold his wife recently for an ex and 20 marks, but when the purchaser arrived to take home the woman he was berating her husband with such a sharp tongue that he withdrew from the bargain.

A strange suicide and attempted murder is related by a Paris correspondent. A banker's clerk named Bastien waking in the night requested his wife to get him a drink of water, but she was absent so he put some muriatic acid and sugar into two glasses, filling them with water, asked her to join him in a drink of cau sucre, drinking his glass down as he spoke, and expired almost instantly. The wife only took a mouthful and is seriously ill.

Point of View.

We are apt to look at things from our own point of view. This practice saves one the trouble of changing position, but one gets, at times, a curious view of things, as in the case of the sailor and the sympathetic tongue.

An English gentleman and his wife were coming over to the United States, upon an ocean steamer. Soon after they were in blue water, and the crew became mutinous and roared that they were cut out from the hand of the captain, and in the presence of the passengers.

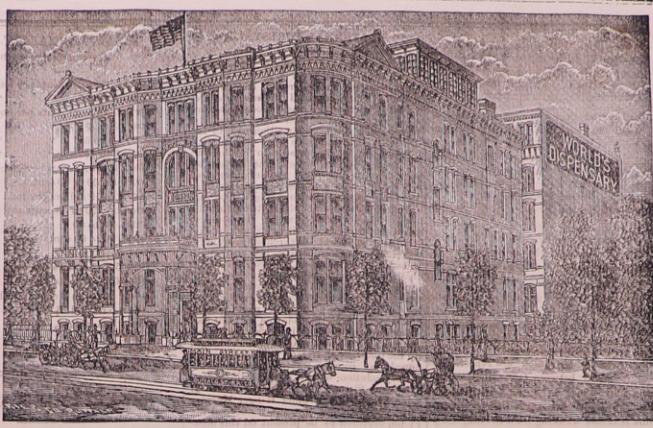

The lady, who was beginning to suffer from seasickness, was much shocked and very ill, and retreated to her cabin, from which she did not venture again until they were almost in sight of land.

The first day she came on deck, the man who had been struck down was at the wheel. Approaching him with kindly interest, she inquired,—

"How's your head now?"

The sailor, who was suffering from rough usage and hard treatment, said "about the little tap his own head had received, thought the lady was inquiring about the ship's course and replied,—

"West and by nor'ma'm."

INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE

No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Not a Hospital, but a pleasant Remedial Home, organized with A FULL STAFF OF EIGHTEEN PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS,

And exclusively devoted to the treatment of all Chronic Diseases.

This imposing Establishment was designed and erected to accommodate the large number of invalids who visit Buffalo from every State and Territory, as well as from many foreign lands, that they may avail themselves of the professional services of the Staff of skilled specialists in medicine and surgery that compose the Faculty of this widely-celebrated institution.

NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.

By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases just as successfully without, as with a personal consultation. We are anxious that you should become acquainted with them, show them our institutions, and familiarize them with our system of treatment, yet we have not seen fit to publish a manual of our system, because we do not feel accuracy with which scientists are enabled to deduce the most minute particularities of the disease, and to determine almost entirely if it will live in the light of the early signs. Take, for example, the electro-magnetic telegraph, the greatest invention of the age, which has been demonstrated to the world, which enables an operator to exactly locate a fracture in a submarine cable nearly three thousand miles long? Our venerable "gods" of science have not even approached the most rudimentary elements of nature that he can accurately predict their movements. He can not tell us whether he will live or die in New York or New Haven, as well as if several hundred miles did not intervene between him and the places named. What is required is the knowledge of certain signs. From these scientists deduce accurate conclusions, and from these conclusions, and from the original scientific, diseases have certain unmistakable signs, or symptoms, and by reason of this fact, we "gods" of science have not even approached the most rudimentary elements of determining with the greatest accuracy, chronic diseases, without seeing and personally examining our patients. In recognizing diseases without a personal examination of the patient, we claim to possess no medical knowledge, but we do not claim to be ignorant of diseases by the practical application, to the practice of medicine, of well-established principles of modern science. And it is to the memory of such a system of diagnosis, and that we owe our almost world-wide reputation of skilfully treating lingering or chronic diseases, that we call our system "the Marvelous Success."

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much service to the afflicted of our land, without the most perfect, complete and extensive provision for the most improved treatment of diseases, we have established the INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE.

Recognizing the fact that no great institution, for the treatment of chronic diseases, would be of much

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, JAN. 29, 1886.

For the first time the county councils of Hastings and Frontenac have elected Roman Catholics as Wardens. Messrs. Hogan and Kavanagh are men well qualified by business and municipal experience for the positions to which they have been elected.

The Salisbury administration has been defeated on an amendment to the address, and have tendered their resignation. The Parliament voted against the Government. It is supposed that Mr. Gladstone will be called on to form a government, and that he will endeavor to bring in a measure of home-rule for Ireland. Never before British statesmen been confronted with such grave difficulties as those which now press a solution.

The negotiations which are reported to be taking place between Great Britain and China in reference to Burma are fraught with the most important consequences. China is at last awaking from the long sleep of centuries. The late war with France has convinced her that the railway and telegraph are absolute necessities if she is to retain the distant provinces of the empire. Concessions will be given to foreign capitalists which will enable them to construct lines of railway connecting the great commercial centres. Through Burmese English manufacturers will be enabled to push their trade into the west and south of the great empire of the east. No argument is required to show that when a nation of 400,000,000 is opened to commerce the results must be far reaching. Doubtless one of the first effects must be a vast impulse to British commerce, which by the principle of free trade will be enabled to monopolize the trade of those old regions of Asia.

ONTARIO boasts of the excellence of its school system, and in many respects that system is deservedly worthy of the highest commendation. In some respects the results are not commensurate with the expenditure of money, or the efforts put forth by the instructors of the youth of our land. In nothing is this more noticeable than in the general disinclination to reading, which unfortunately obtains in the households of Canada. As readers of instructive books our people do not rank with those of the United States, much less with those of the mother country. It is difficult to determine the cause of such a condition of things. The young are taught to read—and to read well—in our schools, but they do not appear to contract that love of reading which might be expected. Books are now published and sold at prices which place them within the reach of all, but how many of our young men and women are found spending a dollar in that way? How many of our people old or young spend a whole evening poring over the pages of a book? It may safely be asserted that their number is comparatively small. It were well if our leading educationists would enquire into and account, if possible, for this aversion to healthy reading on the part of our people. Are our school books really the best, or is the system employed in our schools of such a character as to stimulate pupils to gain an acquaintance with the best authors or even with the current literature of the day?

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The County Council met last Tuesday and was called to order by the County Clerk.

Mr. W. R. Ayleworth, after expressing his gratification at being present once more in the Council, and referred to the death of Mr. McGregor, an old and respected member of the Council, nominated Mr. D. Kavanaugh, Reeve of Dundas and Faraday, for the chairmanship. The motion was seconded by Mr. Vermilyea. Messrs. J. G. Hanley, Tuttle, Ashley, and Faulkner were also nominated, but declined in favor of Mr. Kavanaugh, who was therefore elected by acclamation.

Having taken the oath of office he thanked the members for the honor, first because he was the first Warden from the rear townships, and secondly, because he was the first Roman Catholic warden the county ever had.

A number of petitions and a mass of correspondence were laid on the table and referred to the proper committees.

Mr. Ashley reported that the committee appointed to meet him had made a satisfactory arrangement with the Merchants Bank.

James Lang, who has labored on the gravel road, petitioned for assistance.

A resolution of condolence with the family of the late Mr. McGregor, Reeve of Wollaston, was passed by a standing vote.

The Council then adjourned until Wednesday.

Lovens of Black Tea shipped by a package of "Kangra Valley" at Tura Bio Strong.

Orders Harper's "Bazaar" and Weekly and Magazine from the Deseronto News Company, sole agents for Deseronto.

So great is the demand for the Big Stor¹ 50 cent tea, that Mr. Richardson has this month placed an order with New York for a second lot of twenty-five thousand First class goods and low price takes care of the trade.

Mexico is said to possess only about 100 factories of all kinds, owing to the paucity of water and the high cost of fuel. These factories turn out about $3,000,000 worth, and those devoted to weaving consist of 5,000 looms and 250,000 spindles. The largest cotton Mill is at Queretaro, employs 1,400 hands and manufactures the unbleached cloth worn by all Indians.

FRATERNAL FORESTERS.

A large party of Foresters from Picton Court drove over on a fraternal visit to their brethren in Deseronto last Tuesday evening. They attended the session of Deseronto Court where the proceedings were of a social nature. After the meeting the whole party adjourned to the Deseronto House, where the visitors were entertained by the Deseronto brethren to an oyser supper. The meal was served by a man, not Dayman in a manner more than creditable. The bivalves and ectera were evidently relished, there being a good selection of jokers, oysters, plumpers, and the whole. Chief singer, Hoppes presided on the occasion. Bro. Palmer, of Picton, and some local brethren of great staying power, having been at last completely satisfied by proceeded to present several oysters. "The Queen" was received with much enthusiasm. "The Governor General" was coupled with the name of Bro. Palmer, of Picton, who gave a short speech, stating that Lord Lansdowne had never had many opportunities of displaying his genius. He was an Irishman, and that fact brought up the question of Ireland in his mind. He hoped that the country would get some satisfactory solution of that most difficult question.

"Cord Picton" was the next toast. It was responded to by Chief Ranger Murray, who expressed the pleasure it afforded the Picton brethren to be present on this occasion. There was one of the principles of Forestry to consider the welfare of the dependent on them. No other organization could offer such a satisfactory and liberal system of benefit and insurance. It behoves us all to work earnestly for the good of the order. On behalf of Court Picton he thanked them for their kind hospitality.

"The Army and Navy" brought up a number of veterans of both arms of the service, including Bros. Jas. Stiles, who vowed to make a speech, which Bro. Palmer who pleaded excuse on the sick and disabled list; Capt. O'Hagan, a gallant old salt, and Bro. Hoppes, who recounted some of his experiences in the American Civil War, brought up the important fact that he had witnessed the famous fight between the Merrimac and Monitor.

"The Press" was responded to by a Tribune representative.

In another general call, Bro. S. Green, was favored all with a speech. He claimed he was a real Forester, being a son of the forest. He referred to the unquestionable superiority of the Foresters over other benefit and insurance societies. They paid no claim within six days. He was and by means of the continued success of Picton Court, who by their zeal were showing themselves examples to others.

"The Ladies" found able and eloquent champions in Bros. Tyner, the youngest member present, Moffat, Williams, Carter and Palmer.

"Court Deseronto" coupled with the name of the chairman, was proposed by Bro. Murray, of Picton. Bro. Hoppes proved equal to the occasion, winding up an excellent address with the song "The Shores of Tripoli" to be outdone by Deseronto. Bro. Palmer sang with great effect "My Father's Goat."

"Our Host and Hostess" brought the very pleasant reception to a close, and it is to be hoped that it is not the last of these happy gatherings we will have to record this season.

DISTRICT.

Ira Kimmerly has been appointed assessor of Napavine on a salary of $125.

The new Roman Catholic Church at Clayton is to be cut stone and cost $60,000.

Thos. Hogan, Reeve of Wolfe Island, was unanimously elected Reeve of Frontenac.

The new bridge to be built over Deer Creek in the village of Madoc will cost $2,800.

The Bishop of Ontario has appointed Rev. T. Basil, of Cardinal, to the incumbency of Ayrshire.

The part of Trenton lying east of the river and north of the bridge is suffering badly from a flood.

The bridge is in progress for a harbor at West Lake. It is said the cost of work would be trifling.

The grand Trunk Railway Company is asking for tenders for the construction of line from Madoc to El Dorado.

Mrs. Thos. Hill, Coborne, died recently from the effect of injuries received by her clothes catching fire from a stove.

The Napanee Council will confer with Sir Richard Jarvis on the subject of constructing a waterworks for the town.

Shaver, the Belleville bigamist, proves to be one Cyrus E. Seymour, of the township of Mountain. He has three wives all told.

The recent fire in Kingston reveals the fact that the water supply is sadly deficient and things generally in a very demoralized condition.

Slimmers' drug store in Kingston was gutted by fire last Saturday morning and other buildings also damaged. While the fire was in progress Henry Horsey was caught in the act of setting fire to another shop. He is of a respectable family and is supposed to have been the author of many former incendiary fires.

Joseph Brenton, formerly of the 4th con. of Tyendinaga, but now living in Rawdon, on Wednesday 20th, went to get wood from an island in the Trent River and while driving about 150 rods from the well beat path, he struck a large rock through the head and perished before he could get assistance to rescue them. The water was 25 feet deep, and Mr. Brenton had a very narrow escape from being drowned in trying to save his team.

On Saturday night the new Queen-street church, Kingston, only in use for a few months, was destroyed by fire. The conflagration originated in the furnace room and quickly spread to the whole of the building. A party of watermen endeavored against this action of the flames, others that they might have saved the building in a partially ruined condition. The church was valued at $10,000 and lost $7,000.

The leaders of the congregation met on Sunday afternoon, and decided to secure a hall for temporary occupation, and to rebuild at hand.

You will also be able to purchase from us

DESERONTO MARKET.

Deseronto, Jan. 28th 1886.

BARLEY,	55 to 65 cents per bushel.
OATS,	30 to 35 "
BUTTER,	18 to 21 cents per pound.
LAMB,	5 to 6 "
BEEF,	3 to 5 "
LARD,	9 to 11 "
Eggs,	18 to 20 cents per dozen.
POTATOES,	60 to 70 cents per bag.
HAY,	8 to 10 dollars per ton.
CHICKENS,	20 to 35 cents per pair.
DUCKS,	50 to 60 "
GEES,	50 to 60 cents each.
TURKEY,	60 to $1 "
HIDES,	5 to 7 dollars per cwt.
PELTS,	50 to 75 cents each.
Tallow,	rough 3 cents per lb.
Tallow rendered,	5 "
HOGS,	live weight, $4.00 to $5.00 per cwt.
HOGS, dead,	$5.00 to $6.50 "

ESTABLISHED 1873.

APOTHECARIES HALL.

FRESH and PURE DRUGS

CHEMICALS

FANCY SOAPS,

PERFUMES,

BRUSHES,

HERBS,

ROOTS,

PILLS,

OILS,

FANCY POWDER FOR THE TOILET.

PIPES,

CIGARS,

TOBACCO,

SPONGES,

PATENT MEDICINES.

RAZOR STRAPS,

LAMP GOODS,

Horse & Cattle Medicines.

OFFICE OF DR. NEWTON.

W. G. EGAR.

MAIN STREET, DESERONTO

THE RATHBUN CO.,

Deseronto, Ont.,

Manufacturers of

Doors, Sashes, Blinds,

Mouldings, Frames,

and every description of

House Finish.

We make a Specialty of

GLAZED WINDOWS

And parties building will find it greatly to their advantage to buy their Sashes Glazed and Primed ready for use. Send for prices.

—ALSO—

LUMBER,

At reduced prices, including

Flooring, Siding, &c.

Dressed Lumber always on hand.

You will also be able to purchase from us

SHINGLES

Cheaper than ever.

Call or write before purchasing any of the articles required for new building or for repairs.

THE BEST AND

CHEAPEST ORGANS

SEWING MACHINES

FOR SALE BY

JOHN DALTON

AT THE

FURNITUE WAREROOMS, ST. GEORGE STREET.

IMPORTANT TO HOUSEKEEPERS

AND THOSE DESIROUS OF SPENDING THEIR MONEY TO THE BEST POSSIBLE ADVANTAGE.

Remember that at the

BELLEVILLE TEA AND GROCERY HOUSE

You will find a complete stock of TEAS and GROCERIES, the quality of which CANNOT BE EXCELLED, and at prices which SIMPLY ASTONISH ALL who favor us with a call.

Space will not permit a quotation of prices, but we believe a personal examination of Goods cannot help but convince all that we are

EVERYTHING AT BELLEVILLE FIGURES.

Don't forget the place, SMITH'S BRICK BLOCK, DESERONTO.

WALMSLEY & SPAFFORD,

TEA AND COFFEE MERCHANTS

Cheap! Cheap! Cheap!

THE DESERONTO NEWS COMPANY

Offers BOOKS and STATIONERY of every description at exceedingly low prices.

INK

PENS

PAPER

SLATES

PENCILS

MUCILAGE

all marked down to lowest rates.

NEW SERIES SCHOOL READERS.

A new supply of well selected books by popular authors at prices from 10 cts. up.

JUST OPENED

$2,000 worth of New Staple Dry Goods,

—AND—

50 SUITS OF MENS' CLOTHING,

Which will be sold at Prices Cheaper than you ever bought them.

Deseronto, Nov. 19th.

C. GOODMURPHY.

THE CANADA WIRE MATTRESS CO.

Are manufacturing the BEST and CHEAPEST mattress in the market.

Any person in want of a good durable mattress at a moderate price, should call at the BIG STORE where the above will be kept constantly on hand.

SIR EVAN JOHN MURRAY MAC-GREGOR,
GOVERNOR OF BARBADOES, AND CHIEF OF THE MACGREGORS, DIED IN BARBADOES,
JUNE 14th, 1842.

Sadly and slow tolls the bell,
And booms forth the minute gun;
Tis a Chieftain's funeral knell.
A warrior's race is run.

The shrill bugle rings on the ear,
It wails for the spirit that fled,
But none of his clansmen are here,
To mourn for their Chieftain dead.

The frame of a captured gun;
Is the warrior's funeral car;
A trophy his valour had won,
In some distant Indian war.

The flag he'd in triumph bore,
Through the breach in the shattered wall;
Now over his coffin is thrown—
What so fit for a soldier's pall.

Rest warrior—rest in thy grave,
Though none of thy clansmen are near;
To weep for the gallant and brave
And mourn o'er MacGregor's bier.

T. G. P.

SUNDERED FRIENDS.

Oh ! was it I, or was it you
That broke the golden chain that ran
Between us two, between us two ?
Oh ! was it I, or was it you ?

Not very strong the chain at best,
Not quite complete from span to span ;
I never thought 'twould stand the test
Of settled commonplace, at best.

But, oh ! how sweet, how sweet you are !
When things were at their first and best,
And we were friends without demon,
Shut out from all the sound of stir,

The little, pretty, worldly race !
Why couldn't we have stood the test—
The little test of commonplace—
And keep the glory and the grace.

Of that sweet time when first we met ?
Oh ! was it I, or was it you ?
That dropped the golden links and let
The little rift, and doubt, and fret.

Croop in and break that subtle chain ?
Oh ! was it I, or was it you ?
Still ever yet and yet again
Old parted friends will ask with pain.

WINTER STOCK FEEDING.

There is a vast amount of fodder wasted in winter feeding. Hay is thrown into the rick, and much of it finds its way under the feet of the stock, and becomes tainted with the filth of the stable and rendered unwholesome. Even if it is kept dry it is returned to the manger. With careless help even this is not always done. Straw, cornstalks and other fodder material are thrown out in the yard at noon, and the cattle tramp it into the snow or filth, as the case may be.

Grass is fed carelessly also. Corn that is put into the sheep trough which is so constructed as to make economical feeding impossible, and less unprofitable. The oats are thrown into the horses' feed-box, and the straw is fed from the top. The bottom will allow much to fall through and waste, because the farmer is not careful to see that the 'teaks' are eaten up clean. No long stalks and stubs are left in the manger after the stock are done feeding. And even poor fodder, like straw, with straw and grain mixed, is fed carelessly, and often at less cost than to feed the best hay. For horses, hay and oat straw can be cut together and fed with grain more economically and with better results than the other feeds.

It is now stated that there are 39 men imprisoned in the West Virginia mine, in which the explosion of fire damp occurred on Friday. None of the bodies have as yet been recovered.

It is now estimated that the damage to the fruit and farm interests in Florida by the recent cold wave will amount to two million dollars. More than one million dollars worth of oranges were frozen on the trees.

A Grand Trunk freight train collided with two shunting engines in the outskirts of Toronto recently, causing considerable damage. The fireman of one of the engines was seriously injured, one of his legs being cut off.

The passengers and mails of the disabled steamship Sarnia were taken back to Liverpool by the steamer Borderer, and left that port on Saturday for New York on the Cunard steamer Galia. The Sarnia is on her way back to Liverpool.

AN AGE OF DISCOVERY.

We certainly ought to appreciate the fact that we are living in an age of progress and discovery, this has especially been the case with all persons that have been afflicted with the disease of consumption.

Family Liniment is a positive cure for Rheumatism. It is invaluable for Cuts, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all diseases requiring external application. Sold by W. G. Eggar, druggist. Price 25 cents and 50 cents per bottle.

The residence of an aged couple named Bates, at Albany, was broken on Saturday morning. Their charred remains were discovered in the ashes of Mr. Bates' house. The body of Mrs. Bates, the wife of the deceased, was found unburned and lifeless, and those of her less burnable and bearing marks of foul play. It is believed the unfortunate pair were murdered for the purpose of robbery.

The residence of an aged couple named Bates, at Albany, was broken on Saturday morning. Their charred remains were discovered in the ashes of Mr. Bates' house. The body of Mrs. Bates, the wife of the deceased, was found unburned and lifeless, and those of her less burnable and bearing marks of foul play. It is believed the unfortunate pair were murdered for the purpose of robbery.

PERSONAL.

Miss Waterbury is spending her vacation in town.

Mr. G. E. Fraser, of Picton, was in town Thursday.

Mr. Anne Baker, of Picton, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. William Fretts, of Tyendinaga, was in town Tuesday.

Mr. B. D. Nixon, of Picton, gave us a pleasant call yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Fraser, of Shandonville, was in town Tuesday last.

Mr. Wm. Hill, of Richmond, gave us a friendly call yesterday.

Rev. Mr. McLean, of Aylmer, was in the village last Saturday.

Mr. James Haydon, of Clark's Mills, was in town Monday last on business.

Mr. John Pricket, was in Nanapee last Saturday, on professional business.

Dr. Alex McLaren, of Shandonville, gave us a call on Monday last.

Mr. R. M. Roy, the Inspector G. T. R., was in town last week on business for his company.

Mr. W. G. Eggar, who has been visiting friends in St. Marys and other points west, returned home last week.

Mrs. Finkle, of South Fredericksburg, was visiting friends in this village during the beginning of this week accompanied by her daughter.

Rev. Mr. L. Green, of Belleville, passed through the village last Saturday on his way to Aylmer, Ontario.

Measer, A. Chadwick, P. J. Shannon, H. Burgess, and J. Taylor, all agents of great renown, were in town this week in the interest of their respective agencies.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The London liner Sarnia has been spoken in mid-ocean with her rudder damaged.

Henry M. Stanley has been appointed construction manager of the Congo rail way.

Six thousand men are on strike in the Connellsville, Pennsylvania coke region.

The Dominion Parliament will be called for the despatch of business on February 25th.

General Strange thinks that the Indians should not be allowed off their reserves when armed.

There has been great destruction of life and property by snow slides in the Western States.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will introduce his Church Reform Bill into the House of Lords.

M. Delessert says a company will be formed to make the long-taught of African inland sea.

The propriety of relieving the half-breed prisoners being considered by the Dominion Government.

Two customs officials at Montreal have been arrested on the charge of complicity in the acts of smuggling.

Moukhart Pasha proposes the establishment of a Turkish army for Upper Egypt to replace the British troops.

The members of a Toronto's coroner's jury have been summoned for purchasing liquor during protracted absence.

Armenians have been made by which the Cape Race lighthouse will be taken over by the Dominion Government.

An effort has been made in Ottawa to obtain a remission of the fine and sentence imposed on Mr. Cayley, of Calver.

A resolution favoring a reciprocity treaty with the Dominion has been adopted by the United States National Board of Trade.

A number of Chinese have begun a suit against the City of Eureka for $132,000 damages sustained at the time of their expulsion from that city last February.

Mr. Gladstone has assured the Queen that the Liberal leaders are ready to grant the fullest support to Lord Salisbury in all measures aiming at the preservation of peace in Ireland.

It is now stated that there are 39 men imprisoned in the West Virginia mine, in which the explosion of fire damp occurred on Friday. None of the bodies have as yet been recovered.

It is estimated that the damage to the fruit and farm interests in Florida by the recent cold wave will amount to two million dollars. More than one million dollars worth of oranges were frozen on the trees.

A Grand Trunk freight train collided with two shunting engines in the outskirts of Toronto recently, causing considerable damage. The fireman of one of the engines was seriously injured, one of his legs being cut off.

The passengers and mails of the disabled steamship Sarnia were taken back to Liverpool by the steamer Borderer, and left that port on Saturday for New York on the Cunard steamer Galia. The Sarnia is on her way back to Liverpool.

MOTHERS TAKE CARE—West's Cough Syrup contains no Opium or any narcotic, and can be given to the youngest and most delicate child with perfect safety. It is an infallible cure for Whooping Cough. A bottle should always be kept convenient as it is also a cordial for Colds, Colic, Consumption, &c. in its early stages, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1 per bottle. Sold by G. E. Fraser, druggist.

THAT troublesome Cough should be at once cured, as if not it is liable to terminate in consumption. Thousands die annually that might have been saved if West's Cough Syrup had been taken in time. It will positively cure the "World's Disease," Lung and Liver Complaints, Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness, &c. 50 cents, and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by W. G. Eggar, druggist.

MARRIAGES.

McKINNEY-CARDON.—At St. Charles' Church, Read, on the 23rd inst., by the Rev. Father McCarthy, Patrick, son of Mr. John McKinney, of Read, to Margaret, daughter of Mr. Martin Cardon, of the 6th con. of Tyendinaga.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A NUISANCE.

Mister Editor,

Dear Son.—May I place yer honor? I would like to speak a word to ye about this peddling house to house. Do you know I wor mighty pleased at the stand ye took awhile ago in denouncing the practice, but I see, later, that wants to peddle have got large this is very handy for them, but very trying to me.

I'll give yer honor an illustration. Last Tuesday I attended the market, and I could not buy thim because of convenience it must be to the people of the town. I have such an opportunity of pickin' and chosen from such a big collection of realy fine stuff of all sorts (to say nothing of the pleasure of meeting one's neighbors) and exchangin' pleasantries generally. Well, after killin' my chickens, I went home with an old friend, Tom. More, as he came from his work to his dinner, and his wife kindly axed me to dine with them. Of course I expected a pleasant hour to take my bit of dinner in peace and quietness.

Well, Mr. Tribune, if ye will believe it, Mrs. More had to jump from the table three times to answer the rays at the dure, and I could not help say "No I have all I want, I attind the market."

At last Tom spoke up real decided, and says he, "Kitty, sit down and eat your dinner; if any of them hectorin' jintry come to bother us, tell 'em 'Tom's a man.'"

"What does it all mean?" I inquired as soon as I could get my breath for amazement.

"It means," said he, "that a lot of the folks who do not sell until 12 o'clock, quit the market and then go from house to house trying to peddle their stuff off."

"But," said I, "some of the town folks must encourage them or they would get sick of it."

"Truth and yet right there," replied Tom, "for I know more than a dozen women (the not the men's fault) who declare they would sooner have the peddlers fetch it to the house."

"How?" asked I, all surprised.

"Oh! they think they can get it a little cheaper perhaps, as the farmers will not like to take it home after fetching."

"Pooh!" said Mrs. More, scornfully, "there they get sold entirely, for 'tis only cuttings that is peddled around, all the real good is taken home again, or goes next to Deseronto."

Then Tom went off to his work; I started for home, and as I was going out of the gate in a hurry I came near falling over a man that was staggering in a bag of some sort, and he said "Excuse me, I am sorry for seemed to be filled wid things too little for apples but too big for gravel." So I says to myself "Mister, 'tis a free country, I'll stop and see what that peddler has got to bother poor Mrs. More wid."

"Rap, rap, rap," said I, "don't you want some nice cooking apples?" said he, as perite as you please.

"Let us see them first," said Mrs. More, with a wink to me. A minit after he was out of our yard (they wor apples big as butternuts)

I started once more for home wonderin' what sixt they would try to sell in Deseronto.

MICHAEL O'TOOL.

NOTICE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Shareholders of the Grand Trunk Navigation Company will be held at Deseronto, on Monday, the First day of February, A.D. 1886, at seven o'clock, evening, for receiving the report of Directors, for the election of Directors and other general business.

F. S. RATHBUN,
Secretary.
Deseronto, Ont.,
Dec. 28th, 1885.

THE ONLY SEWING MACHINE THAT GIVES PERFECT SATISFACTION
• HAS NO EQUAL • PERFECT IN EVERY PARTICULAR!

NEW HOME
SEWING MACHINE CO.
ORANGE MASS.
30 UNION ST., CHICAGO, ILL.
ST. LOUIS, MO. ATLANTA, GA.
FOR SALE BY

THIS PAPER may be found on Newspaper Advertising Bureau at Spruce Street, where advertising is done in New York.

NEW YORK:
McCOLL'S LARDIN
MACHINE OIL

1885.

1885.

THE BIG STORE TO THE FRONT. Business - Booming IN EVERY DEPARTM'NT !

FURS! FURS!! FURS!!!

A large assortment at the most reasonable prices.

Ladies' Astrachan Jackets; Persian Caps, Muffs and Boas; Seal Caps, Muffs and Boas; Mink Caps, Muffs and Boas; Black Fur Capes

A splendid assortment of Woolen Goods at remarkably low prices for Women and Children, unsurpassed by anything in the Trade.

Flannels of every description and quality now in Stock at the BIG STORE, and we respectfully solicit an inspection of these Goods; they are special value and will excel in make and prices anything previously offered to the public in Deseronto.

The Tailoring Department is now replete with the most fashionable and varied makes of goods that can be obtained in the European and Continental Markets, and we wish to impress upon our friends, that, as the best of Trimmings only are used in the making up of Garments, we can guarantee a style and finish which will stand comparison with any House in the Trade. A Stoddart, who is already well known for his superiority in making a good stylish fit, is in charge of this Department, and will be pleased to have an opportunity of exhibiting these special goods to his friends, and quote prices for same.

BOOTS and SHOES.

In this Department the BIG STORE still maintain their well known reputation for keeping only the best quality and the most fashionable Goods manufactured, their facilities for buying, and the immense quantity of Boots & Shoes disposed of, enable them to offer at more advantageous prices than can be done by other competitors who profess to sell the same class of Boots. Do not be induced to purchase inferior Goods simply because the price is low; such articles are dear at any cost. The Big Store do not impose upon their customers trashy goods, but sell only first-class articles, and this principle has won for them their well earned reputation, which is so generally known and appreciated by their Customers and the Public.

THE BIG STORE is the head rendezvous for Groceries and Provisions of Sterling Quality and finest brands. Canned Goods of every description in the market being on sale, but space will not permit us to enumerate in detail the specialties obtainable, but suffice it to say that for all Provisions reasonable and of the best quality, we recommend THE BIG STORE as unsurpassable.

HARDWARE, CROCKERY, GLASSWARE, LAMPS, VULCANISED CHIMNEYS, RUBBER GOODS, PAINTS, OILS, SALT.

We must not omit the astounding fact that the sales at the BIG STORE during the month of October were the largest since the creation of this establishment, which proves beyond doubt that in their endeavor to supply their Customers with the best goods at the most reasonable prices, they have won the confidence of the public, and now beg to thank their Customers for the very liberal support hitherto accorded them, and in the future solicit a continuance of the patronage so gratuonately bestowed upon them during the past.

THE BIG STORE, A. A. RICHARDSON, MANAGER.

Deseronto, Nov. 5th, 1885.

NEVER FAILS TO GIVE SATISFACTION

McCOLL'S LARDIN
MACHINE OIL

Our "English" Wool Oil—something new—finest in the market. Our Cylin der Oil, —6oo fin test—much superior to tallow.

GIVE OUR TRAVELLER A TRIAL ORDER.

McCOLL BROS. & CO., TORONTO, ONT.

HUDSON'S BAY TERRITORIES.

Interesting Observations of the Country by a Scientific Traveller.

Prof. Bell, M. D., LL. D., of the Geological Survey, lectured on the above subject in Ottawa the other night. He began his lecture by describing the great lakes and the geographical characteristics of Hudson's Bay, of which he said, might rather no oil as Hudson's Sea, and which was the Mediterranean of North America. The different regions of country included in the Hudson's Bay system, conveyances to the ground, have now standing in their honor monuments of solid rock higher than the Pyramids of Egypt.

ABOVE THE SEA.

It is said that nothing is more permanent than geographical names. They seem to last through the ages. The name of this whole group of islands and the association of them with the name of the bay, together with other circumstances that do not permit us to mistake the identity of the person meant, so that we know who gave the name. The battle of Loyalists in 1814—Fighting to Flight a Vastly Superior Force of Yankees.

THE BATTLE OF LACLOCHE MILL.

An Incident of 1814—Fighting to Flight a Vastly Superior Force of Yankees.

BY E. L. FORT HOPE.

The battle of Loyalists Mill is an old story, now, so old, that almost its only record is that whole group of islands and the association of them with the name of the bay, together with other circumstances that do not permit us to mistake the identity of the person meant, so that we know who gave the name. The battle of Loyalists in 1814—Fighting to Flight a Vastly Superior Force of Yankees.

It is said that nothing is more permanent than geographical names. They seem to last through the ages. The name of this whole group of islands and the association of them with the name of the bay, together with other circumstances that do not permit us to mistake the identity of the person meant, so that we know who gave the name. The battle of Loyalists in 1814—Fighting to Flight a Vastly Superior Force of Yankees.

SORER MOMENTS.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been beaten.

As under a hot iron masses disappear, so does the weight of adversity press out of a man his pride and vanity.

Reason is the washboard in which the intellectual washes the undershirt of doubt and cotton socks of incredulity.

It argues a poor opinion of ourselves when we cannot admit any other class of merit beside our own, or any rival in that class.

Happiness always seems to be like a traveler passing by, staying, perhaps, a little while, and leaving a little while, but never abiding a place there.

Men too often take the color of the branch on which they sit, like the dyer's hand to the hue of that on which they work.

When all is done, human life, at the greatest, is but like a forward child that cannot be played with and humored a little to keep it quiet till it falls asleep; then the care is over.

The Bible has laid the works of the old philosophers upon the shelf forever, and the fishermen of Galilee are now teaching mortality to the religious, the queens, kings and intellects of the world.

We must credit ourselfes with the highest possible point, and we should do this first, by gathering in knowledge that we may fill the bare; then by acquiring discrimination, that we may winnow the heap, and lastly, by our first retentiveness of mind, by which we may lay up the winnowed grain in the storehouse.

The best antidote against evils of all kinds, against the evil thoughts that haunt the soul, against the needless perplexities which distract the conscience, is to keep hold of the good we have. Impure thoughts are to be cast out, and impure words and deeds. Little doubts will not avail against great certainties. Fix your attention on things above, and then you will less and less be troubled by the cares, the temptations, the troubles of things on earth.—Dawn Starkey.

Sack to make life henceforth a consecrated task; that is, when the sun is bearing, with the clouds of noon, the heat of noon, the very clouds of sorrow may be fringed with golden light. Thus will the song in the house of your pilgrimage be always the truth of the heart. It will be composed of joyous tones, and will form one sustained, full long melody, dropped for a moment in death, only to be resumed with the angels, and blended with the everlasting cadence of your Father's house.—J. R. Macduff.

Whence comes the powerful impression that is made upon us by the tomb? Are a few grains of dust deserving of our veneration? Let us not then respect the tomb, but our ancestors for this reason, especially because a secret voice whispers to us that all is not extinguished in them. It is this that confers a sacred character on the funeral ceremony among all the nations of the globe; and we are persuaded that the sleep, even of the dead, is not everlasting, and that death is but a glorious transfiguration.—Chatsubriand.

And thus does life go on, until death accomplishes the catastrophe in silence, takes the worn frame within his hand, and, as if it were a dried up scroll, crumblies it in his grasp, and the spirit of the dead disappears. Still the stars shall burn; still the globe shall move; still the stars shall burn; still the sun shall paint its colors on the day, and its colors on the year. What then is the individual, or what even is the race in comparison with the universe? Yet, though the grand tones will form one sustained, full long melody, dropped for a moment in death, only to be resumed with the angels, and blended with the everlasting cadence of your Father's house.—J. R. Macduff.

What we want above all things, in this age is heartiness and bold simplicity; men who justify the name of Christians, who do not shrink from the truth, and do not let it back by artificial cloaks of prudence and false fear, or the sham pretences of fastidiousness and artificial delicacy. These are they whom God will make His witnesses in all ages. They dare to be bold, and sing, and sing, and sing. What God puts in them, that they sing; and when He puts a song in them, they sing it. They know Christ inwardly, and therefore stand for him outwardly. They endure hardships. They fight a fight. And these are the souls, my brethren, who will stand before God accepted.—Horace Bushnell.

A LIVELY PLACE.

The Rapid Development of the Nipissing District.

A gentleman who recently visited North Bay says that the Northern railway is expected to be finished early next month. In referring to that growing town he said that a fine colonization road is being built northward and this will also help the village. He also reports that the criminal business in his district, with which he is familiar, has increased greatly. Some twenty petitions for a school were held in Mattawa and Sturgeon Falls; another will be placed in North Bay shortly. At the last court in Mattawa Mr. Duran, the stipendiary magistrate, disposed of 38 cases, and the result was that 18 cases were school sections and revised the school and township rolls. The settlers are taking up land quite rapidly. One year ago a township just surveyed had one section. Now there are many and more than ever have been received a petition from nineteen heads of families to establish a school. Mr. Duran has two other such petitions in hand. The Indians have a magnificent reserve a few miles from North Bay, on which a large amount of a valuable iron deposit, supported by the government, lies. It seems too bad that such fine land be locked up so. The settlers going in are principally men of small means, many of whom have built houses on the railway whenever it is built. Some of the houses cost $1000 each, and to be paid in installments subject to rent unless and plus timber dues. Mining land is sold at $1 per acre, and actual survey fees are charged. There is copper and iron ore near Canadierville and Lake. At present there is good hunting. The snow is about as deep as Ontario. The lumbering shanties are in operation and this year it is expected that more logs will be taken out than for a long time.

Wealthy editors are about as scarce as bald-headed Indians.

It Looked Squally for a While.

SCENE BY THE EAST MAIN

cost was illustrated by a number of fine colored drawings. Reference was made to the supposed origin and end of the "Alert." Dr. Bell, the lecturer, discovered the name of the Sevartsen district of the Hudson's Bay company, this name he extended and adopted for the whole of the district described. The lecturer gave in creasing accounts of several coasting voyages in the boats which had been used in Hudson's Bay. In returning from one of these, he had suffered over 300 miles in a schooner's jolly-boat out of sight of land in the fall of the year when there is great danger from gales of wind. The

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in this Dr. Bell said in regard to the Church's skill mission, we give his remarks upon it almost in full:

The present Hudson's Bay Company's post is five miles up the river from the mouth of the creek a sort of neutral ground between the Cree and the Chippewas. The post of Churchill is on the west side of the bay, 300 miles from the ocean. The Prince of Wales stands at the latter place and is the largest military station in North America unless Quebec came under this designation. It was over 300 feet square and mounted forty guns, which still lie about the walls.

As far as our readers will be interested in

